

WHITMAN PRESENTS NAME OF HUGHES

Speech Well Received and Usual Noisy Demonstrations By Hughes Supporters Mark Its Conclusion, While New York Banner Remains Solidly in Its Socket—Root Nominated by President Butler.

Coliseum, June 9.—Enthusiastic applause greeted the name of Charles Evans Hughes when Governor Whitman of New York offered him as a candidate.

As the governor concluded his speech at 12:12 the demonstration began.

New York started the outburst, and half the delegation leaped upon chairs to lead the cheering. An Arizona delegate with a toy elephant 3 feet high swung over his head started a parade through the aisles.

Oregon's Hughes-instructed delegates joined in with their banner behind the baby elephant.

Vermont was next. Through the aisles went the procession with a steady "We want Hughes, we want Hughes" ringing out above the general tumult that swept the hall from pit to dome.

Mississippi and Michigan carried their banners into line, but the banner of New York, home state of Hughes, stood solidly in its socket, not an effort being made to take it from its place.

While the Hughes men from New York joined in the parade through the aisles, some forty of the anti-Whitman delegates in the delegation sat stolidly in their seats.

Ohio and Indiana likewise refused to join the uproar. The Hughes delegates from New York did their utmost to keep the demonstration going.

"Hughes and whiskers will beat Wilson and Watchful Waiting," yelled a leather lunged delegates as the procession swung around the hall, and he got a cheer. The favorite son delegates stood the strain well and seemed amused by the efforts of the Hughes shouters among the delegates to get real support from the galleries.

The Vermont delegation, armed with big rattles, added materially to the volume and variety of the tumult, but there was absent from the applause that note of frenzy that usually marks such a demonstration.

Chairman Harding did not make the slightest effort to cut off the demonstration.

"I might just as well let the boys keep it up," he said.

Somebody in the gallery yelled "Hurrah for Roosevelt," but it got nowhere if it was an attempt to capture the ovation.

Hughes manager, Hitchcock, from a place of vantage on the floor, viewed the demonstration with approval and nodded encouragement to the various Hughes delegations.

After the yelling had lasted 15 minutes, a Root man in the New York delegation suggested from his seat that "We get busy," but Chairman Harding simply smiled his pleasant smile and shook his head.

If the delegates were to be counted on the basis of their participation in the demonstration it was plain that the claims of the Hughes managers that they had the votes to put Hughes over in first ballot were not well founded. Less than a majority of the delegates participated in the parades or the cheering. There were about 300 delegates in the demonstration. At 12:31 Chairman Harding began pounding his table to restore order.

The Hughes demonstration ended at 12:33, having lasted 21 minutes. When Arizona was reached on the roll call, Frank R. Steward, an alternate, objected and it required a roll call of the delegates before the plan to have that state yield to New York could be made effective.

New York was called, and Chairman Harding recognized Governor Whitman, who was given a warm and tumultuous reception.

Governor Whitman in opening said:

"We have been frequently told that we are here to choose a standard bearer in a great campaign. If our action be wise and righteous, we will leave this place after having named the future ruler of 100,000,000 people.

"We are here to select the next president of these United States. The national horizon is dark and troubled. From afar the lurid flashes of a world war remind us of our own citizens killed and our own flag insulted. To the south we see anarchy encroaching on our borders. At Washington the president watches and waits. Yet we must not think the task before us an easy one. The country is still at peace and the maintenance of peace will be plausibly claimed by the Democratic party. That party hopes that the country will soon forget the insults to our national honor. It is its belief that the people will not remember the vacillating diplomacy clothed in glittering rhetoric which has alarmed our people, discredited our standing among the nations, and brought us to the verge of war.

siege of hard times such as had not been experienced since 1895. This great war turned our workmen from the breadlines back to the mills, the forges and the farms, as surely as did the election of William McKinley and a Republican congress in 1896.

"If the devout prayers of all mankind be answered and our hopes be fulfilled, which, God grant, the frightful holocaust of war will end as quickly and unexpectedly as it began, and the products of European labor will pour in upon us, undeterred by a tariff barrier at prices ruinous to our trade and industries.

"We must choose a man so great and of such masterful authority that he may bring home to the people a realization of the artificial character of our temporary prosperity. We must choose a man so great that he may be able to lead us safely through the perils that will follow the resumption of peace. We must choose a man so great in himself that the fear of comparison with himself will not deter him from surrounding himself with the greatest men and the ablest statesmen of the nation. We must choose a man so great that he may meet as a true American the supreme national issues not only of the hour, but those of the future.

"Our party is rich in men imbued with the spirit of Americanism. No one of them can claim a preponderance of the American spirit in his heart or in his nature. All have been brought up in the school of the great Republican party. Our party has ever believed that the nation should be ready, prepared and, did necessity call, 'proud to fight.'

"We bring to you today the name of a man trained in battle for the truth, tried and found faithful in the administration of great public trusts, sterling in his Republicanism, free from the animosities engendered by factional strife, his private life above suspicion, his public life without a flaw, a great lawyer, an effective campaigner, an able executive, a mature statesman, a learned jurist, he above all others, combines the essential qualifications of a true leader in this crisis of the party and of the nation."

Governor Whitman then reviewed the record of Justice Hughes at length, citing his management of the insurance investigation and his work as governor. He called attention to his great work in the 1908 campaign in behalf of William Howard Taft and of the personal triumph that campaign really was for Justice Hughes.

"There was not any question about his Americanism then," said the governor.

"The Republican party is the party of stability and the party of progress. Its fundamental policies have determined the course of the nation's history.

"Our candidate is sound upon the great question of national preparedness. He said eight years ago, 'We are devoted to the interests of peace and we cherish no policy of aggression. The maintenance of our ideals is our surest protection. It is our constant aim to live in friendship with all nations and to realize the aims of a free government secure from the interruptions of strife and the wastes of war. It is entirely consistent with these aims, and it is our duty, to make adequate provision for our defense and to maintain the efficiency of our army and navy. And this I favor.'

"No one could better express the fundamental doctrine which underlies our national defense.

"These, then, are his principles, sound, Republican and patriotic.

"I need not dwell upon his recent career.

"This phase of his career is a magnificent supplement to his earlier achievements. Few of our great executives have had such an opportunity, or such a trial of their intellectual power. His eminent success is as striking a tribute to the versatility of his genius as to the fundamental greatness of his character.

"We have seen him the man of action, the champion of the people, the idol of the electorate, the faithful public servant, the profound thinker on national issues.

"He, above all other men, can bring home to the people the fact that the Democratic party has failed miserably in its stewardship. He, above all other men, can bring to the people a conviction of the dangers which surround us. He, above all other men, can assure this country that the Republican party, the party of progress, of union and of patriotic achievement, is one more united and capable of assuming the helm of the ship of state. He, above all others, can bring back to the party the confidence of the people. He, above all others, can bring to the country prosperity, happiness and honorable peace.

"Gentlemen of the convention, the state of New York presents to the nation Charles Evans Hughes as its next president."

Root's Name Presented.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of New York was recognized to nominate Root.

greatest statesmen of his time in this or any other land. These are no ordinary times. The world is in upheaval. Forces long believed confined are loose in the world spreading death and destruction. The United States is in the midst of a great world storm. The winds of prejudice and hate are threatening the craft of civilization.

"Problems at home complicate problems abroad. Problems abroad bring problems at home. But all problems are merged into one; the problem of preserving and increasing American civilization. This is the task confronting the Republican party today.

"We are composite as a people, but we are one in our confident hope of the future. It was the Republican party which saved the nation in the stormy days of 1860.

"We are here to choose leaders who will give voice and effect to Republican principles.

"We are gathered here under the scrutiny of the whole American people to take the first step toward substituting a Republican administration now in power in Washington. That will mean safety and prosperity for the American people.

"Our candidate is one of the greatest Americans of the century and his career is one of whom all true Americans can well be proud."

Dr. Butler then reviewed the career of former Senator Root from the time of his first entry into politics to the present time. The delegates sat impassively while the speaker proceeded and there was very little interruption by applause.

Dr. Butler gave Mr. Root credit for the colonial policy of the United States as well as for the establishment of the army war college and the army general staff.

"He was the greatest secretary of war this nation ever has seen, was the manner in which Dr. Butler summed up the qualifications of his candidate. "He is known to all the nations of the world as America's leading man. Let us not forget that soon the question of restoring peace in Europe is to be raised and we must have a candidate who can meet the questions of that time in a manner to retain America in her position as the friend of all nations.

"When the countries are calling upon their most serious and wise statesmen into service we must ourselves remain calm. We must have our wisest man at the head of this nation during the coming four anxious years.

"The people of the United States are not willing that at a time like this the highest ability, experience and capacity for service shall be beyond their reach. The people want the best they have. Let us bring to the aid of the country today the entire power which can guide the nation through the perilous four years upon which we are about to embark."

Dr. Butler completed his work of placing ex-Secretary of War Root in nomination at 12:56. As in the case of Hughes, a demonstration was started. The New York Root delegation began it, and it spread rapidly. High up in the gallery behind the speaker's platform a woman with a voice like a steam whistle emitted a series of shrieks which carried the tumult on the floor, the blare of the band and all the rest of the miscellaneous medley of racket. The wonderful yell almost stopped the demonstration, as everyone looked to see if someone was hurt. But the woman, attired in a blue silk suit, jumped to the gallery chair, and swinging an American flag above her head, turned loose another series of ear-splitting yells.

Naming "Favorite Sons."

At 1:12 Governor Willis was recognized to nominate Senator Burton.

Plan to Dump Hughes.

When word reached the Republican convention that Senator Borah had begun a speech before the Progressive gathering, speculation was rife. Senator Smoot declared that Borah's visit to the Progressives was no part of any plan devised by the Republican leaders.

"I did not know he was going to the Progressive gathering," said Smoot. "He probably went on his own responsibility. He was not sent by the Republican wing of the peace conference."

The rumor continued to be circulated about the hall that through juncture of the favorite son delegates and the Roosevelt people, a combination had been effected which would be used to kill off Hughes. That was said to be as far as the arrangement went, and if the plan went through, it was hoped to take a couple of ballots late this evening and then adjourn over until morning when, with Hughes eliminated, an effort would be made to put across the nomination of a favorite son.

When asked about the truth of this report, Governor Whitman said:

"We still insist that we have the votes to nominate Justice Hughes. That is all we care to say just now."

Auditorium, Chicago, June 9.—The Conference Committee made its report and under the promise of the committee that there was hope that Republicans would take Colonel Roosevelt as their presidential nominee, the Progressive convention allowed the committee to continue its negotiations for a short time. Reports of the progress of events were promised "Every few hours."

The action was taken on the personal appeal of George W. Perkins that the committee be trusted.

It was taken upon the assurance that the Republican convention had also continued its committee on the score that it had not completed its work.

The truth is an armed one. It may expire any minute.

Some time was spent in considering amendments to the platform and listening to a speech by Senator Borah, after which a recess was taken until 3 o'clock.

PEACE COMMITTEES MAY CONTINUE WORK

Report That Progressives Insist on Roosevelt Received With Mingled Cheers and Hisses in Republican Convention—Nominating Speeches Begun.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Coliseum, Chicago, June 9.—The Roosevelt managers sprung their final trump card today. Through the peace committee which conferred with a similar committee of the Progressive party last night, the Roosevelt men brought squarely to the attention of the Republican convention the desirability of the nomination of Col. Roosevelt in the following words:

"The Progressive conferees were unanimous in urging with temperance and fairness the opinion that Theodore Roosevelt of New York had so large a personal following and such a close personal relation to the issues of the coming campaign as to make him a most desirable candidate upon which to unite."

The committee made no recommendation whatever. It put the whole thing squarely up to the convention. Its complete report, which was presented by Senator Smoot, chairman of the committee, was simply a statement of facts. But it emphasized the fact that the Republican and Progressive parties must unite on candidates if they were to have a chance to win. And it was on this, and the knowledge that the Progressives were solidly lined up for Col. Roosevelt, that the latter's active managers relied to get the nomination across.

The complete report of the conference was as follows:

"To the Republican National Convention:

"Your committee appointed pursuant to the resolution adopted at yesterday's session, met in conference with a committee representing the national Progressive convention last evening. That the Progressive committee of conferees consisted of Messrs. Perkins of New York, Johnson of California, Bonaparte of Maryland, Wilkinson of New York, and Parker of Louisiana.

"The conference was frank, free and most friendly. The conferees were of one mind in believing that the good of the country, and perhaps its repute and influence for years to come, depends upon the complete defeat of the present Democratic administration and the restoration of the control of the executive and legislative branches of the government to the hands of those who firmly believe in and will execute the policies that are so heartily supported by the Republican and Progressive parties alike.

"The Progressive conferees were unanimous in urging with temperance and fairness the opinion that Theodore Roosevelt of New York had so large a personal following and such close relation to the issues of the coming campaign as to make him the most desirable candidate upon which to unite.

"It was agreed that your conferees would report these facts to this convention.

"Respectfully submitted,

"REED SMOOT,
"W. MURRAY CRANE,
"W. E. BORAH,
"NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER,
"A. R. JOHNSON."

The Roosevelt Republican delegates who had been in conference in the auditorium left there for the Coliseum under instructions to whom it up for Teddy. Senator Fall has been instructed to make his speech for the colonel as soon as possible.

A hurried call was sent out to friendly state leaders to find out whether it would not be possible to get some state well up on the list in alphabetical order to give way to Roosevelt so that Fall could get Roosevelt's name before the convention as soon as possible. How successful the managers would be, no one knew.

The Old Guard had its back to the wall in its final fight to head off any capture of the convention by the Roosevelt people. They professed the utmost confidence in their ability to prevent any stampede.

"The delegates don't want Roosevelt," they said. But whether this was true only the developments of the day would show. The situation was so charged with high explosives that the slightest spark might start an explosion that would shatter all plans.

The convention was called to order at 11:14 while the floor was crowded with groups of leaders, near leaders and delegates, conferring excitedly and endeavoring to find out what plans had been made. Frank Hitchcock, carefully groomed and dapper as always, politely edged his way through the mass of humanity, rounding up the Hughes votes.

The prayer by Bishop McDowell, which opened today's session, was a plea for divine guidance in the proceedings of the day.

"We are here on the most important day of this great gathering," he said. "What we do here today means much to the republic and the great soul of the world. May the spirit of Abraham Lincoln guide us in our deliberations."

Chairman Harding asked unanimous consent to correct a mistaken ruling on a point of order made yesterday by a Kentucky delegate in connection with the election of a national committeeman from Kentucky. Senator Wadsworth of New York moved to refer the contest to the national committee with power to settle the dispute. A. T. Hiett and

John McCullough are the two candidates for the place.

After a brief debate the Wadsworth motion was agreed to.

It was exactly 11:32 when Chairman Harding recognized Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the "Peace Committee," to read the report of that committee. As the lanky form of the Utah senator was discerned coming to the front the delegates leaned forward in a seeming effort to read his very mind.

Smoot stood quietly while cries of "Quiet, Quiet," went up from all over the hall.

Cheers greeted Senator Smoot's statement that the peace conference was "frank, free and friendly." The cheering delegates made it clear that they wanted peace if possible.

Several times Senator Smoot was interrupted by cheers. But the mention of Theodore Roosevelt's name greeted by a mixture of cheers and jeers. When Senator Smoot stated the Progressives' insistent stand for Roosevelt, a demonstration was started. But the cheers were mingled with hisses and cries of "Order." The demonstration ended within two minutes and Senator Smoot stopped the reading of the report. A half hearted cheer and a hum of conversation followed.

"As the committee has not asked for its discharge," announced Chairman Harding, "it will be authorized to continue its work."

Arizona yields to New York. An alternate challenged the action and a roll call of the delegates was ordered.

Whitman of New York was recognized to nominate Hughes.

U. C. T. CONVENTION ELECTS OFFICERS

Most important of the business sessions of the Grand Council of the State of New York, U. C. T., concluded this morning in the lodge rooms of the Elks' Home, with the election of officers whose installation will be the chief feature of the meeting, which will precede the grand parade tomorrow morning.

The boat ride to West Point this afternoon and the grand ball tonight at the Armory are the events on the social program incident to the convention today.

Greatest interest was manifested in the election, a spirited contest developing over the office of grand treasurer to which Mason E. Shultis of Kingston was elected over C. R. Eggleston of Watertown. The latter was unable to be present today having been called home by the death of his father Thursday afternoon, but received a good vote, nevertheless.

The other offices are filled by progression and the only contest was over the position of Grand Sentinel, which is at the foot of the line. For this place Arthur Shafer of Albany was chosen after a spirited election in which three ballots were taken before C. H. Abbott of Auburn, M. P. Thwaite of New York and W. C. Nichols of Buffalo were eliminated.

In addition to the officers, the executive committee was elected and representatives to the Supreme Council which meets next week in Columbus, Ohio, were chosen with their alternates. The complete list of officers is as follows:

Grand Counselor,
John M. Weeks of Watertown.
Grand Junior Counselor,
W. G. George of Albany.
Grand Past Counselor,
James B. Spencer of Syracuse.
Grand Secretary,
C. A. Hebbard of Rochester.
Grand Treasurer,
Mason B. Shultis of Kingston.
Grand Conductor,
Andrew W. White of Jamestown.
Grand Page,
R. H. Davis of Bingham.
Grand Sentinel,
Arthur Shafer of Albany.
Grand Executive Committee,
J. P. Burrus of Buffalo, J. Du Bois, Newburgh; George Barker, Rochester; George Macomber of Auburn.

This morning the ladies in attendance at the convention enjoyed a ride around the city in a trolley car and later boarded cars for Kingston Point and the ride down the Hudson to West Point on the Mary Powell.

Owing to the lateness of the election of officers, the boat trip was delayed in starting until 2 o'clock. In all about 700 persons made the trip.

Back at the Old Home.

John A. Purcell, who recently resigned as manager of the Up-to-Date Company's store on Wall street, has accepted an important position with the L. B. Van Wagonen Company. Before going with the Up-to-Date in October last, Mr. Purcell had been a part of the Van Wagonen organization for 25 years and his many friends will be glad to see him located again in his old business home.

Chicago, June 9.—Roosevelt and "favorite sons" managers reached a working agreement on the votes of the delegates, whom they control in the Republican national convention today.

The program provides that the campaign managers shall hold their delegates in line for their various candidates until Justice Charles E. Hughes is eliminated as a candidate.

It is reported. The state department has warned Americans against going into Mexico. Francisco Villa is reported to be in the field again at the head of his bandits. He has looted Santa Barbara, a mining town near Parral.

ROOSEVELT REFUSES TO TALK POLITICS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Oyster Bay, June 9.—Having delivered his message to the Republican convention in his message to Delegate W. P. Jackson, Colonel Roosevelt settled down to silence which was undisturbed today.

It was a gray dripping day with the rain pelted the shrubbery when the reporters arrived at Sagamore Hill at 9:30 for their morning audience with the Colonel.

Col. Roosevelt greeted them gaily and cordially and took them to the "gun room," a big, bright apartment in the upstairs part of the house.

"Are you going to Chicago, Colonel?" asked one correspondent.

The Colonel countered with a funny story.

"Have you anything to say at all?" asked another.

"That gun has an interesting history," replied the Colonel, pointing to a heavy rifle.

The attitude of Col. Roosevelt today is this: "He will go to Chicago on one condition only. That condition is a formal invitation from the Republican convention as a whole. He will not accept the invitation of any individual nor of any committee."

Despite the fact that he was up until after midnight listening to long distance telephone reports from Chicago, the Colonel was bright and chipper. In fact he indicated by his general demeanor that he was having a perfectly corking time.

Greek Government to Move.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Athens, June 9.—Preparations are being made to remove the Greek government from Athens to Larissa. Political unrest throughout the kingdom is growing as a result of the renewal of the blockade by the allies.

It is reported that the "protecting powers," England, Russia and France, have informed the Greek government that they will take measures to protect Greek unity and the constitution.

Dreadnought Badly Damaged.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Copenhagen, June 9.—The new German dreadnought Konig was struck several times in the battle with the English fleet off the Jutland coast and badly damaged, says a message from Kiel today. It is believed the shells were fired by the British battleship Warspite, with which the Konig was engaged. The Konig displaced 25,292 tons, was put in commission in 1914 and carries a crew of 1,150 men.

Russians Surrounding Enemy.

Rome, June 9.—The whole Austro-Hungarian army on the eastern front is threatened with envelopment by the Russians, it was stated today at the Russian embassy. The Austro-Hungarian front has been broken over a length of 190 miles and for a depth of 40 miles.

Lawn Party Postponed.

The Queen Esthers of the Trinity M. E. Church will announce later the date of their lawn party which was planned for this evening at the corner of Broadway and Delaware avenue, and which is postponed on account of the weather.

PEACE COMMITTEES MAY CONTINUE WORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Columbus, Chicago, June 9.—The Roosevelt managers sprung their final trump card today. Through the peace committee which conferred with a similar committee of the Progressive party last night, the Roosevelt men brought squarely to the attention of the Republican convention the desirability of the nomination of Col. Roosevelt in the following words:

"The Progressive conferees were unanimous in urging with temperance and fairness the opinion that Theodore Roosevelt of New York had so large a personal following and such a close personal relation to the issues of the coming campaign as to make him a most desirable candidate upon which to unite."

The committee made no recommendation whatever. It put the whole thing squarely up to the convention. Its complete report, which was presented by Senator Smoot, chairman of the committee, was simply a statement of facts. But it emphasized the fact that the Republican and Progressive parties must unite on candidates if they were to have a chance to win. And it was on this, and the knowledge that the Progressives were solidly lined up for Col. Roosevelt that the latter's active managers relied to get the nomination across.

The complete report of the conference was as follows:

"To the Republican National Convention:

"Your committee appointed pursuant to the resolution adopted at yesterday's session, met in conference with a committee representing the national Progressive convention last evening. That the Progressive committee of conferees consisted of Messrs. Perkins of New York, Johnson of California, Bonaparte of Maryland, Wilkinson of New York, and Parker of Louisiana.

"The conference was frank, free and most friendly. The conferees were of one mind in believing that the good of the country, and perhaps its reputation and influence for years to come, imperatively demanded the defeat of the present Democratic administration and the restoration of the control of the executive and legislative branches of the government to the hands of those who firmly believe in and will execute the policies that are so heartily supported by the Republican and Progressive parties alike."

"The Progressive conferees were unanimous in urging with temperance and fairness the opinion that Theodore Roosevelt of New York had so large a personal following and such close relation to the issues of the coming campaign as to make him the most desirable candidate upon which to unite."

"It was agreed that your conferees would report these facts to this convention."

"Respectfully submitted,
"REED SMOOT,
"W. MURRAY CRANE,
"W. E. BORAH,
"NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER,
"A. R. JOHNSON."

The Roosevelt Republican delegates who had been in conference in the auditorium left there for the Coliseum under instructions to whom it up for Teddy. Senator Fall has been instructed to make his speech for the Colonel as soon as possible.

A hurried call was sent out to friendly state leaders to find out whether it would not be possible to get some state well up on the list in alphabetical order to give way to New Mexico so that Fall could get Roosevelt's name before the convention as soon as possible. How successful the managers would be, no one knew.

The Old Guard had its back to the wall in its final fight to head off any capture of the convention by the Roosevelt people. They professed the utmost confidence in their ability to prevent any stampede.

"The delegates don't want Roosevelt," they said. But whether this was true only the developments of the day would show. The situation was so charged with high explosives that the slightest spark might start an explosion that would shatter all plans.

The convention was called to order at 11:14 while the floor was crowded with groups of leaders, near leaders and delegates, conferring excitedly and endeavoring to find out what plans had been made. Frank Hitchcock, carefully groomed and dapper as always, politely edged his way through the mass of humanity, rounding up the Hughes votes.

The prayer by Bishop McDowell, which opened today's session, was a plea for divine guidance in the proceedings of the day.

"We are here on the most important day of this great gathering," he said. "What we do here today means much to the republic and a great deal to the world. May the spirit of Abraham Lincoln guide us in our deliberations."

Chairman Harding asked unanimous consent to correct a mistaken ruling on a point of order made yesterday by a Kentucky delegate in connection with the election of a national committeeman from Kentucky. Senator Wadsworth of New York moved to refer the contest to the national committee with power to settle the dispute. A. T. Hert and John McCullough are the two candidates for the place.

After a brief debate the Wadsworth motion was agreed to.

It was exactly 11:32 when Chairman Harding recognized Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the "Peace Committee," to read the report of that committee. As the lanky form of the Utah senator was discerned coming to the front the delegates leaped forward in a seeming effort to read his very mind.

Smoot stood quietly while cries of "Quiet, Quiet," went up from all over the hall.

Cheers greeted Senator Smoot's statement that the peace conference was "frank, free and friendly." The cheering delegates made it clear that they wanted peace if possible.

Several times Senator Smoot was interrupted by cheers. But the mention of Theodore Roosevelt's name greeted by a mixture of cheers and jeers. When Senator Smoot stated the Progressives' insistent stand for Roosevelt, a demonstration was started. But the cheers were mingled with hisses and cries of "Order." The demonstration ended within two minutes and Senator Smoot stopped the reading of the report. A half hearted cheer and a hum of conversation followed.

"As this committee has not asked for its discharge," announced Chairman Harding, "it will be authorized to continue its work."

Arizona yields to New York. An alternate challenged the action and a roll call of the delegates was ordered.

U. C. T. CONVENTION ELECTS OFFICERS

Most important of the business sessions of the Grand Council of the State of New York, U. C. T., concluded this morning in the lodge rooms of the Elks building, with the election of officers whose installation will be the chief feature of the meeting, which will precede the grand parade tomorrow morning.

The boat ride to West Point this afternoon and the grand ball tonight at the Armory are the events on the social program incident to the convention today.

Greatest interest was manifested in the election, a spirited contest developing over the office of grand treasurer to which Mason E. Shultis of Kingston was elected over C. R. Heggston of Watertown. The latter was unable to be present today having been called home by the death of his father Thursday afternoon, but received a good vote, nevertheless.

The other offices are filled by progression and the only contest was over the position of Grand Sentinel, which is at the foot of the line. For this place Arthur Shafer of Albany was chosen after a spirited election in which three ballots were taken before C. H. Abbott of Auburn, M. P. Thwaite of New York and W. C. Nichols of Buffalo were eliminated.

In addition to the officers, the executive committee was elected and representatives to the Supreme Council which meets next week in Columbus, Ohio, were chosen with their alternates. The complete list of officers is as follows:

Grand Counselor,
John M. Weeks of Watertown.
Grand Junior Counselor,
W. G. George of Albany.
Grand Past Counselor,
James B. Spencer of Syracuse.
Grand Secretary,
C. A. Hebbard of Rochester.
Grand Treasurer,
Mason E. Shultis of Kingston.
Grand Conductor,
Andrew W. White of Jamestown.
Grand Page,
R. H. Davis of Bingham.
Grand Sentinel,
Arthur Shafer of Albany.
Grand Executive Committee,
J. P. Burrus of Buffalo, J. DuBois, Newburgh; George Barker, Rochester; George Macomber of Auburn.

This morning the ladies in attendance at the convention enjoyed a ride around the city in a trolley car and later boarded cars for Kingston Point and the ride down the Hudson to West Point on the Mary Powell.

Owing to the lateness of the election of officers, the boat trip was delayed in starting until 2 o'clock. In all about 700 persons made the trip.

Before going with the Up-to-Date in October last, Mr. Purcell had been a part of the Van Wagenen organization for 25 years and his many friends will be glad to see him located again in his old business home.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

Street gossip says that two local men have had a falling out over a dollar. The story goes that one man owed the other man the dollar and did not pay and the latter has thought seriously of bringing suit to recover the dollar. Now the one who is to be sued is thinking of having the other man arrested on the grounds that he came into his place of business the other day and called him a bad naughty word.

Another story of a financial deal is going the rounds of the street corners. According to street talk a man who is agent for a baseball pool—oh yes there are still baseball pools—sold two tickets to a customer a short time ago, and did not get paid for them. The following week he saw the customer and told him that he might as well owe for three tickets as two and left another ticket with him. The customer said, "Well if this ticket wins I'll go fifty-fifty with you." Remarkable to say the ticket won a cash prize of $100, and the agent when he went around to pay the lucky one handed him $50, stating that the customer had said he would go halves if he won. Now it is said that the customer is thinking about suing the agent to recover the other $50. We wonder what would happen to agent and customer if the case ever really got into court.

Financial matters are figuring in the daily street talk and another tale being told is on a local merchant who employed a man to drive the delivery wagon. The first day the new man started on the route he collected about ten dollars and that evening after he had put the horse and wagon in the barn he decamped.

Considering what is happening at Chicago street gossip believe that it would not be a bad idea if there was inserted in the constitution of the United States a provision providing that Teddy be allowed to be a perpetual candidate for president.

Another story of a financial crisis is being told on the street. This concerns a tugboat and its crew. Street gossip says that the tug was sent up from New York and when the tug reached Rondout the men were paid off. When they opened their pay envelopes they immediately struck because they had not been raised ten dollars a month as they expected. Investigation of the tale showed that the tug had come up in a tow for repairs and that the crew had been paid off in New York, and did not come up with the boat.

Street corner weather prophets claim that this summer will be a rainy one and that there will be but few clear days.

Since the finger print system has been installed at police headquarters much interest is being manifested among the force over the way the system is worked. Street talk says that some of the force for a joke took the impression of a chicken's foot and handed it to one of the officers who claimed to be an expert. It is said that the "expert" studied over the print for some time and finally announced that in his opinion it was the print of a negro.

A Poncehockie man this season determined to have a garden and secured some seed through a friend to be planted in his front yard as he wanted a flower bed. The seed is commencing to come up but garden experts who have viewed the flower bed say that instead of flowers the householder will have a fine onion bed.

Cogan Estate Appraised.

County Treasurer Snyder, as appraiser under the taxable transfer act, has filed his report of appraisal of the estate of John Cogan of this city. The estate consists of $5,000 bank deposits; the debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $432.72, leaving a net estate of $4,567.28. Annie Cogan, the administratrix, was represented by Frederick Stephan; Joseph H. Vanderlyn appeared for the state comptroller.

First Step Toward Progress.

No one can hope to make any real progress in the pursuit and apprehension of truth who does not industriously ply the broom of impartial judgment, mercilessly sweeping down the cobwebs of misconception and error. Part of this work we can do for others, but we must begin by removing the beam from our own eye before seeking to cast out the mote that dims our brother's vision.—Exchange.

SHORTCAKES WE LIKE.

Learn to consume your own smoke. If you have misfortunes, pains, diseases, losses, keep them to yourself. Bury them. Those who know you have them, will love and admire you infinitely more for your suppression. A stout heart and persistent cheerfulness will be more than a match for all your troubles.—Orison Swift Marden.

The best shortcakes are made without sweetening and without eggs. The dough should be handled as little and as lightly as possible. If made in one large cake they are split much easier if they are patted thin, brushed with melted butter and another thin layer placed on top. When baked on top. When baked these layers separate without rough edges or are not apt to soak when the berries are added. If liked as individual cakes cut out with a large biscuit cutter. These may be prepared as the larger ones were, or split and spread with butter and berries.

A good recipe for shortcakes is the following: Take two cups of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, three tablespoonfuls of lard and three of butter, a half cupful of cold milk. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, then with two knives cut in the lard and butter, then add the milk and roll out lightly.

Any fruit mixture makes a good filling. Crush a few strawberries, enough to make a good layer on top and between the crusts, then put a few whole or halved berries for a garnish on top. Serve with whipped cream.

For a change sometime crush a cupful of berries and mix them with a cupful of cream, sweetened well; put on as usual and garnish with sliced berries.

Pineapple Shortcake.—Cut the pineapple in small cubes and stew until tender, with sugar to taste. Cool and chill on ice. Strain off the juice to use in pudding sauce, and to the fruit add whipped cream. Pile between and on top of the cakes and garnish with a candied cherry or cranberry.

Raspberry and Currant Shortcake.—These may be made of the canned variety, but are not nearly as good as the fresh. Mix with the berries, if fresh, a cupful of strained currant juice to a quart of the berries. If canned berries are used add a little currant juice or jelly to give a flavor. Garnish with whipped cream.

LIBRARY USE FOR BUSINESS MEN

Ten years ago, if any one had suggested a library for business men, for business purposes only, in connection with the city library, the proposal would have been looked upon as that of a visionary. Today there are a half dozen or more public libraries with business branches and many private business libraries over the country.

Old rule-of-thumb business methods have become obsolete, while the so-called "system man," who took the place of the rule-of-thumb method, is putting on his coat, ready to retire for good. The new era of efficiency is here.

There are two sources of knowledge—men and books. Efficiency is bringing the two together. The business man of this age is on the hot trail of knowledge, and he follows it no matter where it leads. If a business enterprise wishes to know how to feed goldfish it is going to the source of foundation for this information—the library. If a shipper wishes to know who the Peruvian consul is at Timbuctoo he seeks the information where he knows it will be on file. If another man wishes to know the oil production in Bulgaria in 1901, he can get the information if he knows how to use his city library.

Place of Books in Business.

It has been truly said there never has been an era when business men were writing more about their business and giving out their experience and the interpretation of that experience than they are today. The reason, say the investigators into the subject, is that business men and books are becoming more closely related.

A few years ago any one who mentioned "book farming" to a farmer, big or little, would have received a laugh for his pains. Today the successful agriculturist is the book farmer—the scientific farmer; in other words, the man who is profiting by the experience of others. But there are scores and hundreds of business men still who are trying to conduct their enterprises absolutely blindfolded, without the available aid of others who have climbed high on the ladder of success by taking information wherever it was to be had.

Private Business Libraries.

In this day of sharp competition and rapidly changing conditions, superficial information on any subject will not do. The knowledge must be comprehensive, exact, technical and yet easy to get and easy to understand. The achievements, records and writings of the great doers and thinkers of the past and present constantly must be studied and available if one would have the last word on the multitude of subjects affecting the many businesses and enterprises. This is the connecting link between the public library and the business man.

Many large firms—in fact, most all of them, have private libraries that bear on every phase of their business. Librarians who know how to collect and pare data for use are engaged at large salaries. But this is not necessary, it is pointed out, if business and public libraries co-operate as they should. It is not necessary for the reason that the public library is in position to supply such information, not only to one business, but to all. No one needs need thousands of dollars on a library when the public library can be obtained at the public library.

Success at Newark.

The city of Newark, N. J., has solved this problem, or is solving it. The city library there has established a business branch, in the heart of the downtown district as an advertisement of what it can do for the business man. This branch is on the first floor of a building near the trade and office traffic, with large storefront windows in which recent year-books, annuals of foreign countries, directories of cities, countries, trades and professions, and atlases are attractively displayed. The room is open to everybody but children from 9 o'clock a. m. until 6:30 p. m. It has a special telephone line to the main library and special messenger boys to fetch and carry whatever is desired if not on file at the branch.

This library makes a special effort to obtain all sorts of business information for business men. The library board recognized that the business man is a large taxpayer and that from him comes much of the money spent for books for the library. So the business men and the library board of Newark got together. Money for a business branch library was forthcoming and the branch was established.

Business Men Use Data.

The librarian of the Newark library saw the possibilities and from the time of the inception of the idea to the present time there has been a special service for the business man. As a result, the business man, it is pointed out, has availed himself of the knowledge and information of others on subjects he is interested in. At this branch, almost at a moment's notice, he can find atlases of the country, on earth, directory of cities, towns, counties, telephone, trade and foreign. He may look at maps of more than a thousand cities and post route maps of more than a thousand counties. He has the stories of 123 business periodicals, both foreign and American; he may look over house organs from almost a hundred firms; he can find books on bookkeeping, efficiency, and a thousand and one other subjects.

If there is nothing on file at the branch on the subject on which he wishes information, it is brought from the main library. If it isn't there it is obtained somewhere and turned over to him. The record shows that last year more than 42,000 persons used the maps and directories alone.

Improves Business Conditions.
This branch also maintains a telephone information bureau and it looked up more than 3,000 queries last year. The queries ranged from "Who makes pill boxes in Pennsylvania?" to "Please decipher this cablegram 'Vasculum Marcasite.'" After business men and the library board got together and established a business branch it is not difficult to convince the average business man the library has on file about what he wants, provided that the library board starts intelligently to collect and classify all sorts of business information from the remotest possibilities to the most pertinent interrogations. This all makes for a better buying and selling town. This has been proved, not only in Newark, but in Grand Rapids, Denver and other cities.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Andre Viret of Bloomington has been filed in the surrogate's court and a citation for its probate was issued returnable July 18. The testator gives all his estate in trust to his daughter, Louise Viret, as executrix, with instructions to sell the same within one year and from the proceeds to pay $100 each to his sons, Charles Viret and George Viret; $200 to his son, Frank Viret, $500 to his daughter, Rose Heffernan, and the balance of the estate he gives to Louise Viret absolutely. The will was executed May 26, 1916, and witnessed by Christopher A. Murray of this city and Herman Thielborn of Bloomington. The value of the real estate is $2,000 and the personal property amounts to $1,500. Christopher A. Murray appeared for the executrix. In the matter of the guardianship of Edward Hurry Havens Teltter of the town of Saugerties, letters of guardianship were issued to Anthea B. Teltter.

Police Deadline.
The police "deadline" in New York city, the especially guarded section which includes the financial district, covers the territory of Manhattan Island below Fulton street. The original use of the word "deadline" was to designate a line drawn around the inside or outside of a military prison, which no prisoner could cross without incurring the penalty of being immediately shot down. The word was especially used in the Civil war of open-air inclosures or prisoners' stockades.

People Hard to Please.
It is impossible to please everybody in the same way. Some people grumble even at the finest weather if it does not serve their every purpose.

Politeness Unmerited.

YOUR NEW BUNGALOW.

Hints About Furnishing the Small Summer Cottage.

There are many houses in excellent taste and more or less modern where the latest novelties in painted ware, furniture and the like are decidedly out of place, but just picture a dear little bungalow on squatty, colonial lines aching to be furnished with just these odd little painted bits of brightness.

If the hall seems a bit somber you may set on the table besides the white candle base lamp painted with birds and flowers and topped with a colored silk shade, a white rack of tin for letters. At first you might think it a toast rack, but you wouldn't want to put toast between flowers and birds in gaudy coloring. It's just the receptacle, however, for exciting things like letters.

Near a side door on a small table or from a hook on the wall place a bright green painted tin basket to hold the gardening tools. A garden hat of cretonne may hang from it. They will help in the decorative scheme.

In the sunniest window of the living or dining room you may have a white wicker flower stand. It is fitted with a tin trough which lifts out for refilling, watering of the plants, etc. An arch of white wicker extends over this box, and one can just imagine a small climbing rose finding its way along this trellis. A white bird cage is suspended in the middle directly above the plant box, where a silver throated canary may trill his loudest among the plants and flowers.

Right in the same living room or on the porch one may tuck this mending basket without any fear of its jarring on the artistic and critical eye. It is a nice, plump market basket of stout wicker, rather round as to shape. Two flaps of stiffened cretonne are edged with a cotton braid and maybe lifted up like the lids of a market basket. This will be found a dustproof hiding place for mending or light sewing when the outdoors beckons.

On Being Natural.

The world has established certain standards of etiquette for those who would be recognized as well bred and cultured. The earlier in life these standards are adopted the better for the woman. Fortunately, indeed, is she who has cultivated early in life a soft voice, poised, grace of carriage and the "pretty" way of doing things. She need have no fear that in a moment of excitement she will forget herself and be guilty of a faux pas.

Absolutely destructive of naturalness in manner is self consciousness. This affliction amounts at times almost to an obsession. It causes women to shout who wish to speak low; it leads often to an assumption of bravado, causing criticism that may be unjust, but is invited and unavoidable.

It is a gentle art, the art of being natural; one that is essential to every woman who wishes to be regarded as interesting, attractive and popular. No woman with an ounce of brains will allow herself to become the victim of affectation if she would get the most that is possible out of life.

Rich Strawberry Shortcake.

Two cupsful of flour, quarter of a cupful of sugar, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a teaspoonful of salt, one egg, a third of a cupful of butter, one tablespoonful of lard and a third of a cupful of milk. Mix carefully, roll in two cakes and bake in two pie tins. When browned split and butter generously. Fill layers with fresh strawberries crushed in sugar, pile berries atop and over all pour a pint of sweet cream.

STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

Street gossip says that two local men have had a falling out over a dollar. The story goes that one man owed the other man the dollar and did not pay and the latter has thought seriously of bringing suit to recover the dollar. Now the one who is to be sued is thinking of having the other man arrested on the grounds that he came into his place of business the other day and called him a bad naughty word.

Another story of a financial deal is going the rounds of the street corners. According to street talk a man who is agent for a baseball pool—oh yes there are still baseball pools—sold two tickets to a customer a short time ago, and did not get paid for them. The following week he saw the customer and told him that he might as well owe for three tickets as two and left another ticket with him. The customer said, "Well if this ticket wins I'll go fifty-fifty with you." Remarkable to say the ticket won a cash prize of $100, and the agent when he went around to pay the lucky one handed him $50, stating that the customer had said he would go halves if he won. Now it is said that the customer is thinking of suing the agent to recover the other $50. We wonder what would happen to agent and customer if the case ever really got into court.

Financial matters are figuring in the daily street talk and another tale being told is on a local merchant who employed a man to drive the delivery wagon. The first day the new man started on the route he collected about ten dollars and that evening after he had put the money and wagon in the barn he decamped.

Considering what is happening at Chicago street corners believe that it would not be a bad idea if there was inserted in the constitution of the United States a provision providing that Teddy be allowed to be a perpetual candidate for president.

Another story of a financial crisis is being told on the street. This concerns a tugboat and its crew. Street gossip says that the tug was sent up from New York and when the tug reached Rondout the men were paid off. When they opened their pay envelopes they found they had been raised ten dollars a month as the result of investigation of the tale showed that the tug had come up in a tow for repairs and that the crew had been paid off in New York and did not come up with the boat.

Street corner weather prophets claim that this summer will be a rainy one and that there will be but few clear days.

Since the finger print system has been installed at police headquarters much interest is being manifested among the force over the way the system is worked. Street talk says that some of the force for a joke took the impression of a chicken's foot and handed it to one of the officers who claimed to be an expert. It is said that the "expert" studied over the print for some time and finally announced that in his opinion it was the print of a negro.

A Ponekhookie man this season determined to have a garden and secured some seed through a friend to be planted in his front yard as he wanted a flower bed. The seed is commencing to come up but garden experts who have viewed the flower bed say that instead of flowers the householder will have a fine onion bed.

Cogan Estate Appraised.

County Treasurer Snyder, as appraiser under the taxable transfer act, has filed his report of appraisal of the estate of John Cogan of this city. The estate consists of $5,000 bank deposits; the debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $432.72, leaving a net estate of $4,567.28. Annie Cogan the administratrix was represented by Frederick Stephan; Joseph H. Vanderlyn appeared for the state comptroller.

First Step Toward Progress.

No one can hope to make any real progress in the pursuit and apprehension of truth who does not industriously ply the broom of impartial judgment, mercilessly sweeping down the cobwebs of misconception and error. Part of this work we can do for others, but we must begin by removing the beam from our own eye before seeking to cast out the mote that dims our brother's vision.—Exchange.

SHORTCAKES WE LIKE.

Learn to consume your own smoke. If you have misfortunes, pains, diseases, losses, keep them to yourself. Bury them. Those who know you have them, will love and admire you infinitely more for your suppression of a stout heart and persistent cheerfulness will be more than a match for all your troubles.—Orison Sweet Marden.

The best shortcakes are made without sweetening and without eggs. The dough should be handled as little and as lightly as possible. If made in one large cake they are split much easier if they are patted thin, brushed with melted butter and another thin layer placed on top. When baked these layers separate without rough edges or are not as apt to soak when the berries are added. If liked as individual cakes cut out with a large biscuit cutter. These may be prepared as the larger ones were, or split and spread with butter and berries.

A good recipe for shortcakes is the following: Take two cups of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, three tablespoonfuls of lard and three of butter, a half cupful of cold milk. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, then with two knives cut in the lard and butter, then add the milk and roll out lightly.

Any fruit mixture makes a good filling. Crush a few strawberries, enough to make a good layer on top and between the crusts, then put a few whole or halved berries for a garnish on top. Serve with whipped cream.

For a change sometime crush a cupful of berries and mix them with a cupful of cream, sweetened well; put on as usual and garnish with sliced berries.

Pineapple Shortcake.—Cut the pineapple in small cubes and stew until tender, with sugar to taste. Cool and chill on ice. Strain off the juice to use in pudding sauce, and to the fruit add whipped cream. Pile between and on the top of the cakes and garnish with a candied cherry or cranberry.

Raspberry and Currant Shortcake.—These may be made of the canned variety, but are not nearly as good as the fresh. Mix with the berries, if fresh, a cupful of strained currant juice to a quart of the berries. If canned berries are used add a little currant juice or jelly to give a flavor. Garnish with whipped cream.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 9, 1916.

Resources of the Hudson Valley, social, commercial and industrial, are second to none offered in any other locality in the country and the idea of a Saugerties business man to proclaim these advantages in a nation-wide advertising campaign has its merits. Every year sufficient money is being thrown away in so-called advertising by different cities in this region to more than foot the bills for a most ambitious and far more satisfactory scheme by which the entire list of attractions of the Hudson Valley could be impressed upon thousands of newspaper readers the country over. In some parts of the West, a tenth of the material and scenic assets enjoyed in this section would be made the occasion for continuous booster broadsides without end. Here there probably exists a greater diversity of manufacturing enterprises and the greatest market possibilities in all lines known anywhere in the world. In addition, the Hudson river is known wherever the English language is spoken. By coupling that name with the opportunities and products that line its banks a distinctly valuable advertising item could be capitalized for the direct benefit of all the cities of the Hudson Valley. The combination of Chambers of Commerce from these communities should not ignore this suggestion.

What the enterprise of Metropolitan journalism won't lead to is a question hard to answer. Mr. Reid's Tribune is still gathering in the dimes of little children to build a battleship and now Mr. Pulitzer's World is raising a fund of $30,000 by popular subscription which will be used to light the Statue of Liberty at night. Mr. Hearst's American and Journal have as yet made no counter-moves, but anything from a peace pension fund for European rulers to a reward for any individual who manages to set fire to General Carranza's whiskers may be confidently anticipated. It is a part of the freedom of the press and its privilege to enter into such schemes of a semi-public nature to whatever extent desired. An equal freedom to subscribe or not is discretionary with the public, refusals so to do having not yet been included in the growing list of actions of individuals which the legislature has classed as misdemeanors. The Freeman has not reached such stage of advocating preparedness as to pass the hat for the Port Even bridge and has no present intention of so doing. It occurs to us, however, as being a project deserving far more support than battleship subscriptions or putting Liberty in the limelight for the night boats. Incidentally it is an important item in any defense program for the lower Hudson. The State Highway Department has received bids for the foundations of the bridge at last; it is to be hoped that no further public agitation will be necessary to bring about the early execution of this contract.

The custom of suspending sentence during the good behavior of first offenders brought before the courts is being gradually enlarged in all parts of the country, so that it is rare for a first offender to suffer more than the odium usually attaching to an arrest unless the offense is an aggravated case. In the big cities the habit of suspending sentence on all except certain classes of offenders has been superseding gradually the old custom of imposing the minimum fine, with results which have caused considerable discussion. The unlimited exercise of the power of the magistrate to suspend sentence in all except cases of the most exasperating nature tends, it is urged, to make men and women better by keeping before their mind the idea of what will happen if a second offense is committed, but opponents of the plan urge with a large degree of forcefulness that the tendency is to a disregard of existing laws and ordinances and the development of a disregard for common decency. The nature of punishment should depend on the individual in many cases, and what one person regards as punishment is a mere incident in the life of another, quickly forgotten in the busy whirl of life. Fining a miserly person is most severe, jail imprisonment is a trying ordeal to a person fond of freedom or of sensitive nature, and publicity frequently effects a cure of persons who fondly imagine that their most flagrant violations of law and decency pass unnoticed if not unknown unless called specifically to public attention by newspaper publication. For each case of suspended sentence every magistrate, whether of high or low degree, should devote some study to the particular features of the case and the individual, and to accomplish the best results not only should "the punishment fit the crime," but also the individual.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Miss Howler says she learned to sing in Paris." "That may be, she certainly can't sing in Boston."—Boston Transcript.

Visitor—"But whatever induced you to take up safe-cracking for a living?" "Oh! I dunno, lady. I guess I had a natural gift for it."—Life.

"Now, Willie, what are aster-olds?" "I know, teacher. They're the things the doctor cuts out of your nose when your want to make a good boy of you."—Baltimore American.

"Will you be heard in the Convention?" "I'm afraid not," answered Congressman Twobble. I have neither a foghorn voice nor any aptitude for blowing a horn or beating a drum."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Of course, you remember the fable of the thrifty ant and the mendicant grasshopper?" "Yes; the grasshopper, having sang all summer, was invited to dance." "And then what happened?" "Well, if the grasshopper was any good as a dancer, it ought to have made enough money to make the ant feel like small change."—Washington Star.

Narrow Escape.

Percy Ames, who is just back from the warring side of the world, says a mustering officer—a sergeant—met on the street of an English village a strapping, upstanding youngster of 21 or thereabouts. The non-com. hailed him:

"See, here, me lad," he said, "are you in good 'ealth?"

"I am," stated the youth?

"Are you married?"

"I aren't."

"Ave you anyone dependent on you?"

"I ave not."

"Then your king and country need you. Why don't you enlist?"

The youth stared at the sergeant, round-eyed.

"Wot?" he said. "With this bloomin' war goin' on? You must think I'm a silly fool."—Saturday Evening Post.

Lost.

The late Gilman Marston of New Hampshire was arguing a complicated case, and looked up authorities back to Julius Caesar. At the end of an hour and a half, he was pained to see what looked like inattention. It was as he had feared. The judge was unable to appreciate the nice points of his argument.

"Your Honor," he said, "I beg your pardon; but do you follow me?"

"I have so far," answered the judge, shifting wearily about in his chair, "but I'll say frankly that if I thought I could find my way back, I'd quit right here."—Christian Register.

They'd Be Safe, Then.

They may have been medically unfit, but certainly they didn't look it, or perhaps they were conscientious objectors. In any case, they were neither armlets nor war-badges. They were busily chaffing the waitress of the little restaurant, relates Tit-Bits. "You'll have to hurry up, or you won't be married by next Christmas," said one young Hercules, with a grin. "Christmas will soon be here, you know." "I wish next Christmas was now," said the girl, sadly, "then perhaps this terrible war would be over." "Don't say that," cried another, who was evidently doing well in the absence of better men. "When the war's over we'll all be out of work." "Can't help your troubles," retorted the girl. Then she continued, with suspicious sweetness, "You needn't worry about that. After the war's over you can all join the army, you know."

Not Reckless.

An aged negro was crossing-tender at a spot where an express train made quick work of a buggy and its occupants. Naturally, he was the chief witness and the entire case hinged upon the energy with which he had displayed his warning signal.

A grueling cross-examination left Rastus unshaken in this story: The night was dark, and he had waved his lantern frantically, but the driver of the carriage paid no attention to it.

Later the division superintendent called the flagman to his office to compliment him on the steadfastness with which he stuck to his story.

"You did wonderfully, Rastus," he said. "I was afraid at first you might waver in your testimony." "Nossir, nossir," Rastus exclaimed, "but I done feared ev'ry minute that 'ers dern lawyer was agwine ter ask me if mah lantern was lit."—Puck.

BULL MOOSE ARE IMPATIENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 9.—As the Progressive convention forces began their pilgrimage toward the Auditorium today the assertion was made by the militant radicals that a nomination of Theodore Roosevelt could not be delayed beyond 5 o'clock this afternoon. Danger that the convention would earlier take the bit in its teeth was freely admitted.

"It was our program," said one of the leaders, "to nominate at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. I do not see how the nomination can be delayed beyond that hour today."

As he spoke, Senator Reed Smoot, of the Republican conference committee, passed through the Moosers' ranks. The senator lives among them, while he works across the street. A friend asked: "What is the chance for peace, Senator?"

"I think it is very good," said the senator. The statement went rapidly about the little groups of Moose delegates and the comments were fast and interesting. Taking the Utah senator's placid assurance as their text, the Progressives insisted that they must be shown something regarding the only thing that possesses their minds. They want to know whether or not the Republican convention is going to take Roosevelt for president.

A new and interesting trouble was to be accounted among the early comers. In some states, particularly Illinois, the law prohibits the placing of the name of the same man on two electoral tickets. This means that the Progressives and Republicans cannot both have electoral tickets for the same candidate in the event that they agree. One of the parties must drop out of the election and be lost in favor of the other. Illinois delegates called attention to their dilemma and other states added the complaint that the amalgamation proposed with the Republicans meant the death of the Progressive party in their state with the advent of peace.

This state of affairs cut a powerful figure in the early discussion.

The medium for the passing of information from the inner councils of the Progressives at the Blackstone Hotel to the members is through the state chairman. Some of the more active have their scouts out for the latest news. To these scouts came the information that the party science-keepers were sincerely anxious to give the Republicans a chance for further parley and take a run-away nomination was to be prevented if possible.

At the opening of the day's session the situation was peculiar and dangerous. When the convention adjourned the unfinished business before the house was the consideration of the party platform.

The delegates assembled today with the platform half in and half out of the convention. Under the rules it was to be read in its entirety and then re-read section by section and voted upon. Thus the platform, having been read in its entirety, is only half born. It was held under the theory that if there was to be peace there must be a joint platform as well as a joint candidate. It was plainly stated to the leaders that so much of the Moose platform as revived and put into effect the 1912 platform, including the initiative, the referendum and the recall of judicial decisions would have to die if such eminent Republicans as Elihu Root, Nicholas Murray Butler, William Barnes, Murray Crane and their conservative ilk were to be found at a love feast.

With the necessity for further side-tracking the convention's platform action, if there is to be more peace talk, the Moose had nothing before them. They have no more work that can be done until the platform is disposed of.

"The devil," said a peace lover, "always finds some work for idle hands to do."

"I hope that you don't refer to the radical element as the devil's meat," replied his radical neighbor. But in the copybook quotation lies the fear of the Perkins element and the hope of the Johnson-Murdock contingent. What one looks upon as a danger and a thing to be avoided, the other sees as a rainbow of promise for the future life of the party and the triumph of its principles.

Thus stood the case at the opening of the convention.

It is not only out of order, but utterly

Penzance and Oxford.

A curious coat of arms, dating back to early religious times, is that possessed by Penzance. The town is called Pen Sans on the corporation seal, and the coat of arms shows the head of John the Baptist on a charger.

Pen Sans is old Cornish for Holy Head, and so that the expression might be properly shown in the arms of the town the head of John the Baptist was chosen. The date of the coat of arms of Penzance is 1614.

The most appropriate coat of arms of any town in England is that belonging to Oxford. It shows an ox and commemorates the fact that the site of the town was originally on a part of the river fordable by oxen; hence Oxford.

They both reported a very pleasant

Man's Three Characters.

Every man has three characters:

What He Got.

"What're ye comin' home with your farmer. "Didn't the old cow give anything?"

"Yep," replied the chore boy, "nine quarts and one kick!"—Exchange.

End of the Flirtation.

LIBRARY USE FOR BUSINESS MEN

Ten years ago, if any one had suggested a library for business men, for business purposes only, in connection with the city library, the proposal would have been looked upon as that of a visionary. Today there are a half dozen or more public libraries with business branches and many private business libraries over the country. Old rule-of-thumb business methods have become obsolete, while the so-called "system man," who took the place of the rule-of-thumb method, is putting on his coat, ready to retire for good. The new era of efficiency is here.

There are two sources of knowledge—men and books. Efficiency is bringing the two together. The business man of this age is on the hot trail of knowledge, and he follows it no matter where it leads. If a business enterprise wishes to know how to feed goldfish it is going to the source of information for this information—the library. If a shipper wishes to know who the Peruvian consul is at Timbuctoo he seeks the information where he knows it will be on file. If another man wishes to know the oil production in Bulgaria in 1901, he can get the information if he knows how to use his city library.

Place of Books in Business.

It has been truly said there never has been an era when business men were writing more about their business and giving out their experience and the interpretation of that experience than they are today. The reason, say the investigators into the subject, is that business men and books are becoming more closely related.

A few years ago any one who mentioned "book farming" to a farmer, big or little, would have received a laugh for his pains. Today the successful agriculturist is the book farmer—the scientific farmer; in other words, the man who is profiting by the experience of others. But there are scores and hundreds of business men still who are trying to conduct their enterprises absolutely blindfolded, without the available aid of others who have climbed high on the ladder of success by taking information wherever it was to be had.

Private Business Libraries.

In this day of sharp competition and rapidly changing conditions, superficial information on any subject will not do. The knowledge must be comprehensive, exact, technical and yet easy to get and easy to understand. The achievements, records and writings of the great doers and thinkers of the past and present constantly must be studied and available if one would have the last word on the multitude of subjects affecting the many businesses and enterprises. This is the connecting link between the public library and the business man.

Many large firms—in fact, most of them, have private libraries that bear on every phase of their business. Librarians who know how to collect, put and use are engaged at large salaries. But this is not necessary, it is pointed out, if business and public libraries co-operate as they should. It is not necessary for the reason that the public library is in position to supply such information, not only in one business, but to all. No need of spending thousands of dollars on a library when the city library may be obtained at the public library.

Success at Newark.

The city of Newark, N. J., has solved this problem, or is solving it. The city library there has established a business branch, in the heart of the downtown district as an advertisement of what it can do for the business man. This branch is on the first floor of a building near the trade and office traffic, with large storefront windows in which recent year-books, annuals of foreign countries, directories of cities, countries, trades and professions, and atlases are attractively displayed. The room is open to everybody but children from 9 o'clock a. m. until 6:30 p. m. It has a special telephone line to the main library and special messenger boys to fetch and carry whatever is desired if not on file at the branch.

This library makes a special effort to obtain all sorts of business information for business men. The library board recognized that the business man is a large taxpayer and that from him comes much of the money spent for books for the library. So the business men and the library board of Newark got together. Money for a business branch library was forthcoming and the branch was established.

Business Men Use Data.

The librarian of the Newark library saw the possibilities and from the time of the inception of the idea to the present time there has been a vital service for the business man. As a result, the business man, it is pointed out, has availed himself of the knowledge and information of others on subjects he is interested in. At this branch, almost at a moment's notice, he can find atlases of any country or earth; directories of cities, towns, counties, telephones, trades and professions. He may look at maps of more than a thousand cities, and post route maps of more than a thousand countries. He has the files of 123 business periodicals, both foreign and American; he may find many business forms from almost a hundred firms; he can find almost any business, efficiency, and a hundred and one other subjects. There is nothing on file at the branch on the subject on which he needs information. It is brought from the main library. If it isn't there it is obtained somewhere and sent over to him. The record shows that last year more than 42,000 persons used the maps and directories alone.

Improves Business Conditions.

This branch also maintains a telephone information bureau and it looked up more than 3,000 queries last year. The queries ranged from "Who makes pill boxes in Pennsylvania?" to "Please decipher this cablegram: 'Vasculum Marasite'."

After business men and the library board get together and establish a business branch it is not difficult to convince the average business man the library has on file about what he wants, provided that the library board starts intelligently to collect and classify all sorts of business information from the remotest possibilities to the most pertinent interrogations. This all makes for a better buying and selling town. This has been proved, not only in Newark, but in Grand Rapids, Denver and other cities.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of Andre Viret of Bloomington has been filed in the surrogate's court and a citation for its probate was issued returnable July 18. The testator gives all his estate in trust to his daughter, Louise Viret, as executrix, with instructions to sell the same within one year and from the proceeds to pay $100 each to his sons, Charles Viret and George Viret; $200 to his son, Frank Viret, $500 to his daughter, Rose Heffernan, and the balance of the estate he gives to Louise Viret absolutely. The will was executed May 26, 1916, and witnessed by Christopher A. Murray of this city and Herman Thielborn of Bloomington. The value of the real estate is $2,000 and the personal property amounts to $1,500. Christopher A. Murray appeared for the executrix.

In the matter of the guardianship of Edward Henry Havens Teitler of the town of Saugerties, letters of guardianship were issued to Anthea B. Teitler.

Police Deadlines.

The police "deadline" in New York city, the especially guarded section which includes the financial district, covers the territory of Manhattan Island below Fulton street. The original use of the word "deadline" was to designate a line drawn around the inside or outside of a military prison, which no prisoner could cross without incurring the penalty of being immediately shot down. The word was especially used in the Civil war of open air inclosures or prisoners' stockades.

People Hard to Please.

It is impossible to please everybody in the same way. Some people grumble even at the finest weather if it does not serve their every purpose.

Politeness Unmerited.

"Bein' polite to some men," said Uncle Eben, "don't do no more dan encourage 'em in thinkin' you is easy fooled."

READY FOR GARDEN PARTY

Gay Silks in the Shape of Coats Garnish White Frocks.

With the vogue for white gowns comes the contrast of gay coats, hats and parasols. The picture shows a dashing garment of many colored hues.

HER BROCADE.

Each set off with patch pockets and belt of silk cord and tassels. Worn with a white net skirt and picture hat, this is the ultra outfit for outdoor functions.

YOUR NEW BUNGALOW.

Hints About Furnishing the Small Summer Cottage.

There are many houses in excellent taste and more or less modern where the latest novelties in painted ware, furniture and the like are decidedly out of place, but just picture a dear little bungalow on squatty, colonial lines, each to be furnished with just these odd little painted bits of brightness.

If the hall seems a bit somber you may set on the table besides the white candle base lamp painted with birds and flowers and topped with a colored silk shade, a white rack of tin for letters.

At first you might think it a roast rack, but you wouldn't want to put toast between flowers and birds in gaudy coloring. It's just the receptacle, however, for exciting things like letters.

Near a side door on a small table or from a hook on the wall place a bright green painted tin basket to hold the "garden tools." A garden hat of cretonne may hang from it. They will help in the decorative scheme.

In the sunniest window of the living or dining room you may have a white wicker flower stand. It is fitted with a tin trough which lifts out for refilling, watering of the plants, etc. An arch of white wicker extends over this box, and one can just imagine a small climbing rose finding its way along this trellis.

A white bird cage is suspended in the middle directly above the plant box, where a silver throated canary may trill his loudest among the plants and flowers.

Right in the same living room or on the porch one may tuck this mending basket without any fear of its jarring on the artistic and critical eye. It is a nice, plump market basket of stout wicker, rather round as to shape. Two flaps of stiffened cretonne are edged with a cotton braid and maybe lifted up like the lids of a market basket. This will be found a dustproof hiding place for mending or light sewing when the outdoors beckons.

On Being Natural.

The world has established certain standards of etiquette for those who would be recognized as well bred and cultured. The earlier in life these standards are adopted the better for the woman. Fortune, indeed, is she who has cultivated early in life a soft voice, polite, grace of carriage and the "pretty" way of doing things. She need have no fear that in a moment of excitement she will forget herself and be guilty of a faux pas.

Absolutely destructive of naturalness in manner is self consciousness. This affliction amounts at times almost to an obsession. It causes women to shout who wish to speak low; it leads often to an assumption of bravado, causing criticism that may be unjust, but is invited and unavoidable.

It is a gentle art, the art of being natural; one that is essential to every woman who wishes to be regarded as interesting, attractive and popular. No woman with an ounce of brains will allow herself to become the victim of affectation if she would get the most that is possible out of life.

Rich Strawberry Shortcake.

Two cupsful of flour, quarter of a cupful of sugar, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a teaspoonful of salt, one egg, a third of a cupful of butter, one tablespoonful of lard and a third of a cupful of milk. Mix carefully, roll in two cakes and bake in two pie tins. When browned split and butter generously. Fill layers with fresh strawberries crushed in sugar, pile berries atop and over all pour a pint of sweet cream.

SOCIAL SIDE OF U. C. T. CONVENTION

Women visitors are numerous at the convention and this morning parties of them were escorted about the city finding much to interest them in the historic buildings, particularly the old Senate House where numbers of them registered during the day. While the mists hung over the mountains, preventing them from gaining any idea of the scenic beauties in the immediate vicinity of Kingston, all of the fair visitors were happy at the cessation of the showers.

A delightful entertainment was held for the ladies Thursday afternoon at the Stuyvesant where the visitors were given cordial greetings

SEA SERPENTS ARE MADE FIREMEN

Mayor Canfield Confers Honor at Banquet at Hotel Eichler For Bravery in Putting Out Fire in Banquet Hall.

The Sons of Neptune of the Order of Sea Serpents of North America, a secret order affiliated with the United Commercial Travelers, held its annual banquet at the Hotel Eichler on Thursday evening, at which time Mayor Canfield, who was the guest of honor, was made an honorary member of the order.

While the festivities were at their height some of the paper snakes used in decorating the banquet hall caught fire, but as everyone knows, it is hard to scare a traveling man, and those sitting nearby jumped to their feet and pulling down the blazing decorations soon extinguished the fire. The half dozen Sea Serpents who acted as voluntary firemen were immediately made honorary members of the Kingston fire department by Mayor Canfield for their efficient work.

During the evening Muller's orchestra furnished music and the Fitzgerald colored quartet sang a number of selections, and solos were rendered by Thomas Dolan. Covers were laid for seventy-five and every one present had a most enjoyable time. The mayor was the only invited guest present.

RUBY-CROWNED KINGLET

(Regulus calendula)

Length, about four and one-fourth inches. Olive green above, solid white below, concealed feathers on head (crest) bright red.

Range: Breeds in southern Canada, southern Alaska, and the higher mountains of the western United States; winters in much of the United States and south to Guatemala.

Habits and economic status: In habits and haunts this tiny sprit resembles a chickadee. It is an active, nervous little creature, flitting hither and yon in search of food, and in spring stopping only long enough to utter its beautiful song, surprisingly loud for the size of the musician. Three-fourths of its food consists of wasps, bugs, and flies. Beetles are the only other item of importance (12 per cent). The bugs eaten by the kinglet are mostly small, but, happily, they are the most harmful kinds. Treehoppers, leathoppers, and jumping plant lice are pests and often do great harm to trees and smaller plants, while the worst scourges of the fruit grower—in fact, the prevalence of the latter has almost risen to the magnitude of a national peril. It is these small and seemingly insignificant birds that most successfully attack and hold in check these insidious foes of horticulture. The vegetable food consists of seeds of poison ivy, or poison oak, a few weed seeds, and a few small fruits, mostly elderberries.

What Becomes of the Goats.

The reported goat shortage in the United States may be due to anything from British interference with neutral trade to the fact that neighbors with autos honk loudly before the houses when returning home at midnight. What becomes of gotten goats is another of those questions like that concerning the whereabouts of lights that go out.—Springfield Republican.

"INFORMATION"

A few facts about the telephone girl who answers to the name.

"Information" is a young lady whose duty it is to supply telephone numbers that are not in the telephone directory or telephone numbers that have been changed since the directory was last issued.

But in spite of this fact, more than one-half the calls that "Information" handles are for numbers that are properly listed in the telephone directory.

This means that more than one-half of the people who call "Information" waste their time, for it takes more time to get a number from "Information" than from the telephone directory, and in addition the practice prevents "Information" from serving people who have a real need for her services.

Always consult the telephone directory first.

REEL'S STRIKE DELAYS WORK

A strike for higher wages among the employees of the Upper Hudson Stone Company at Cedarcliff has tied up all work there and prevents the prompt delivery of the stone needed for the work on Wall street, between Maiden Lane and Henry street.

C. Gordon Reel, who has the contract for furnishing the stone, has been expecting to proceed with the preparation of the stone needed in order to fulfill his contract, by treating it with asphalt at his plant in Kingston, but rainy weather for the past two days has prevented that work from being carried out.

Mr. Reel stated today that the stone had been delivered in sufficient quantity to complete the one block from Maiden Lane to St. James street but inquiry from the board of public works discloses that several loads are still needed to complete the work on that block.

Work on the rest of Wall street will wait, of course, until Mr. Reel settles his Cedarcliff strike or gets his plant here in full operation. He much prefers to proceed with the treatment of the stone needed at his Cedarcliff plant, which has a much greater capacity than the Kingston plant, but if the board of public works insists on prompt fulfillment of his contract, the work at the Kingston plant will be pushed, provided the weather is clear.

SPELLING IN ROSENDALE.

Blanche Jones Best Speller in Rosendale Town Schools.

On Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock pupils from all the schools of the town of Rosendale, with the exception of No. 6, met in the Rosendale union school to enter the township spelling match. Following is a list of the pupils who entered the contest: Charles Riley and Archie DePuy, from No. 1; Gladys Christiana and Eva Freer from No. 2; Catherine O'Connor and Frank O'Connor from No. 3; Naomi Steinilber and Ignatius Riley from No. 4; Nellie Conner and Blanche Jones from No. 5; Albert Rigkins and Richard Peterson from No. 7; Julia Mackerer and Esther Kavanaugh from St. Peter's School.

As the spelling proceeded the contestants yielded one by one until those remaining were Blanche Jones of Cottickill, Archie DePuy of Rosendale, and Catherine O'Connor of Bloomington. Finally Blanche Jones was declared township champion as the other two "spelled down." As there are fourteen to be selected to represent this supervisory district in the county spelling match, others beside the champion will be selected from the last who "spelled down."

depends upon his power to produce what the world recognizes as of value.

And when you skirmish around you'll find that this power—which is just power of mind and body—depends to a remarkable degree on the food one eats.

For highest accomplishment one must have the best values in food—food which builds well-balanced bodies and brains.

Grape-Nuts

has that kind of value. It contains all the nutriment of whole wheat and barley, including the important mineral elements so often lacking in the usual dietary.

Grape-Nuts comes ready to eat, is easy to digest, nourishing, economical, wonderfully delicious—a help in building men of worth.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 9, 1916.

Resources of the Hudson Valley, social, commercial and industrial, are second to none offered in any other locality in the country and the idea of a Saugerties business man to proclaim these advantages in a nation-wide advertising campaign has its merits. Every year sufficient money is being thrown away in so-called advertising by different cities in this region to more than foot the bills for a most ambitious and far more satisfactory scheme by which the entire list of attractions of the Hudson Valley could be impressed upon thousands of newspaper readers the country over. In some parts of the West, a tenth of the material and scenic assets enjoyed in this section would be made the occasion for continuous booster broadsides without end. Here there probably exists a greater diversity of manufacturing enterprises and the greatest market possibilities in all lines known anywhere in the world. In addition, the Hudson river is known wherever the English language is spoken. By coupling that name with the opportunities and products that line its banks a distinctly valuable advertising item could be capitalized for the direct benefit of all the cities of the Hudson Valley. The combination of Chambers of Commerce from these communities should not ignore this suggestion.

What the enterprise of Metropolitan journalism won't lead to is a question hard to answer. Mr. Reid's Tribune is still gathering in the dimes of little children to build a battleship and now Mr. Pulitzer's World is raising a fund of $30,000 by popular subscription which will be used to light the Statue of Liberty at night. Mr. Hearst's American and Journal have as yet made no counter-moves, but anything from a peace pension fund for European rulers to a reward for any individual who manages to set fire to General Carranza's whiskers may be confidently anticipated. It is a part of the freedom of the press and its privilege to enter into such schemes of a semi-public nature to whatever extent desired. An equal freedom to subscribe or not is discretionary with the public. Refusals so to do having not yet been included in the growing list of actions of individuals which the legislature has classed as misdemeanors. The Freeman has not reached such stage of advocating preparedness as to pass the hat for the Port Ewen bridge and has no present intention of so doing. It occurs to us, however, as being a project deserving far more support than battleship subscriptions or putting Liberty in the limelight for the night boats. Incidentally, it is an important item in any defense program for the lower Hudson. The State Highway Department has received bids for the foundations of the bridge at last; it is to be hoped that no further public agitation will be necessary to bring about the early execution of this contract.

The custom of suspending sentence during the good behavior of first offenders brought before the courts is being gradually enlarged in all parts of the country, so that it is rare for a first offender to suffer more than the odium usually attaching to an arrest unless the offense is an aggravated case. In the big cities the habit of suspending sentence on all except certain classes of offenders has been superseding gradually the old custom of imposing the minimum fine, with results which have caused considerable discussion. The unlimited exercise of the power of the magistrate to suspend sentence in all except cases of the most exasperating nature tends, it is urged, to make men and women better by keeping before their mind the idea of what will happen if a second offense is committed, but opponents of the plan urge with a large degree of forcefulness that the tendency is to a disregard of existing laws and ordinances and the development of a disregard for common decency. The nature of punishment should depend on the individual in many cases, and what one person regards as punishment is a mere incident in the life of another, quickly forgotten

In the busy whirl of life. Fining a miserly person is most severe, jail imprisonment is a trying ordeal to a person fond of freedom or of sensitive nature, and publicity frequently effects a cure of persons who fondly imagine that their most flagrant violations of law and decency pass unnoticed if not unknown unless called specifically to public attention by newspaper publication. For each case of suspended sentence every magistrate, whether of high or low degree, should devote some study to the particular features of the case and the individual, and to accomplish the best results not only should "the punishment fit the crime," but also the individual.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Miss Howler says she learned to sing in Paris." "That may be; she certainly can't sing in Boston."—Boston Transcript.

Visitor—"But whatever induced you to take up safe-cracking for a living?" "Oh! I dunno, lady. I guess I had a natural gift for it."—Life.

"Now, Willie, what are aster-olds?" "I know, teacher. They're the things the doctor cuts out of your nose when your want to make a good boy of you."—Baltimore American.

"Will you be heard in the Convention?" "I'm afraid not," answered Congressman Twobble. "I have neither a foghorn voice nor any aptitude for blowing a horn or beating a drum."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Of course, you remember the fable of the thrifty ant and the mendicant grasshopper?" "Yes; the grasshopper, having sang all summer, was invited to dance." "And then what happened?" "Well, if the grasshopper was any good as a dancer, it ought to have made enough money to make the ant feel like small change."—Washington Star.

Narrow Escape.

Percy Ames, who is just back from the warring side of the world, says a mustering officer—a sergeant—met on the street of an English village a strapping, upstanding youngster of 21 or thereabouts. The non-com. hailed him:

"See, here, me lad," he said, "are you in good 'ealth?"

"I am," stated the youth?

"Are you married?"

"I aren't."

"Are you anyone dependent on you?"

"I are not."

"Then your king and country need you. Why don't you enlist?"

The youth stared at the sergeant, round-eyed.

"Wat?" he said. "With this bloomin' war goin' on? You must think I'm a silly fool."—Saturday Evening Post.

Lost.

The late Gilman Marston of New York, who was engaged in a complicated case, and looked up authorities back to Julius Caesar. At the end of an hour and a half, he was pained to see what looked like infatuation. It was as he had feared. The judge was unable to appreciate the nice points of his argument.

"Your Honor," he said, "I beg your pardon; but do you follow me?"

"I have so far," answered the judge, shifting wearily about in his chair, "but I'll say frankly that if I thought I could find my way back, I'd quit right here."—Christian Register.

They'd Be Safe, Then.

They may have been medically unfit, but certainly they didn't look it, or perhaps they were conscientious objectors. In any case, they were neither armlets nor war-badges. They were busily chaffing the waitress of the little restaurant, relates The Bits. "You'll have to hurry up, or you won't be married by next Christmas," said one young Hercules, with a grin. "Christmas will soon be here, you know." "I wish next Christmas was here," said the girl, sadly. "Then perhaps this terrible war would be over." "Don't say that," cried another, who was evidently doing well in the absence of better men. "When the war's over, we'll all be out of work." "Can't help your troubles," retorted the girl. Then she continued, with suspicious sweetness, "You needn't worry about that. After the war's over, you can all join the army, you know."

Not Reckless.

An aged negro was crossing a tender at a spot where an express train made quick work of a bulky and its occupants. Naturally, he was the chief witness and the entire case hinged upon the energy with which he had displayed his warning signal.

A grumbling cross-examination left Rastus unshaken in this story: The night was dark and he had waved his lantern frantically, but the driver of the carriage paid no attention to it.

Later the division superintendent called the flagman to his office to compliment him on the steadfastness with which he stuck to his story.

"You did wonderfully, Rastus," he said. "I was afraid at first you might waver in your testimony."

"Nossir, nossir," Rastus exclaimed, "but I done feared ev'ry minute that ere durn lawyer was arguin' ter ask me if mah lantern was lit."—Puck.

BAPTISTS TO HOLD UNION EXCURSION

The Sunday schools of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church and the Wurts Street Baptist Church will hold a union excursion to Kaaterskill, Haines Falls and Tannersville, on Wednesday, June 28, over the Ulster & Delaware Railroad. This popular event is always looked forward to with much pleasure by many Kingstonians, and no doubt a record breaking crowd will take in the beauties of this most picturesque region this year.

A special train has been engaged for the event, and everything will be done to make the excursion a most enjoyable one. The scenery through which the railroad now passes between Kingston and Poughkeepsie is equal to anything on the American continent, and the beautiful sheet of water comprising the Ashokan reservoir can be seen for miles from the car windows. Tourists come from all over the world to view this scenery and those who go on the excursion will be given an opportunity to enjoy it at greatly reduced excursion rates. Tickets are on sale at the various drug stores and can be had of members of the two schools.

The foliage on the mountains at this time of year is at its best, and to those who have never taken this trip it will prove to be a never forgotten treat, while to many who have been there before it will be another opportunity to spend a delightful day close to nature amidst the haunts of old Rip Van Winkle.

Does It Run On Kerosene?

THE most important feature of a farm power engine today is the fuel it uses. That, more than anything else, determines its usefulness and economy.

At present prices of gasoline and kerosene, you could not afford to accept a gasoline engine as a gift, if you had to use it.

You could better afford to pay a big premium for a Mogul kerosene engine.

See the Mogul work on kerosene. Ask your dealer to show you the difference in fuel cost between a Mogul in any size from 1 to 50-H. P., and a gasoline engine of the same size. The figures will surprise you.

PLATFORM ADOPTED BY REPUBLICANS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 9.—Following is the report of the resolutions committee of the Republican Convention.

"In 1861 the Republican party stood for the Union. As it stood for the Union of States, it now stands for a united people, true to American ideals, loyal to American traditions, knowing no allegiance except to the Constitution, to the government and to the flag of the United States. We believe in American policies at home and abroad.

American Rights.

"We declare that we believe in, and will enforce, the protection of every American citizen in all the rights secured to him by the Constitution, treaties and the law of nations, at home and abroad, by land and sea. These rights, which in violation of the specific promise of their party made at Baltimore in 1912, the Democratic President and the Democratic Congress have failed to defend, we will unflinchingly maintain.

Peace—Neutrality.

"We desire peace, the peace of justice and right, and believe in maintaining a straight and honest neutrality between the belligerents in the great war in Europe. We must perform all our duties and insist upon all our rights as neutrals without fear and without favor. We believe that peace and neutrality are as the dignity and influence of the United States cannot be preserved by the shifty expedients, by phrase making, by performances in language, or by attitudes ever changing in an effort to secure groups of voters.

"The present administration has destroyed our influence abroad and humiliated us in our own eyes. The Republican party believes that a firm, consistent and courageous foreign policy, always maintained by Republican Presidents in accordance with American traditions, is the best, as it is the only true way, to preserve our peace and restore us to our rightful place among the nations.

"We believe in the pacific settlement of international disputes and favor the establishment of a world court for that purpose.

Mexico.

"We deeply sympathize with the fifteen million people of Mexico who, for three years have seen their country devastated, their homes destroyed, their fellow citizens murdered and their women outraged, by armed bands of desperadoes led by self-seeking, conscienceless agitators who, when temporarily successful in any locality, have neither sought nor able to restore order or establish and maintain peace.

"We express our horror and indignation at the outrages which have been and are being perpetrated by these bandits upon American men and women who were or are in Mexico by invitation of the laws and of the government of that country, and whose rights to security of person and property are guaranteed by solemn treaty obligations.

"We denounce the indefensible methods of interference employed by this administration in the internal affairs of Mexico and refer with shame to its failure to discharge the duty of this country as next friend to Mexico, its duty to other powers who have relied upon us as such friend, and its duty to our citizens in Mexico, in permitting the continuance of such conditions, first by failure to act promptly and firmly, and second, by lending its influence to the continuation of such conditions through recognition of one of the factions responsible for these outrages.

"We pledge our aid in restoring order and maintaining peace in Mexico. We promise to our citizens on and near our border, and to those in Mexico, wherever they may be found, adequate and absolute protection in their lives, liberty and property.

Monroe Doctrine.

"We reaffirm our approval of the Monroe Doctrine, and declare its maintenance to be a policy of this country essential to its present and future peace and safety and to the achievement of its manifest destiny.

"We favor the continuance of Republican policies, which will result in drawing more and more closely the commercial, financial, and social relations between this country and the countries of Latin America.

Philippines.

"We renew our allegiance to the Philippine policy inaugurated by McKinley, approved by congress and consistently carried out by Roosevelt and Taft. Even in this short time it has enormously improved the material and social conditions of the islands, given the Philippine people a constantly increasing participation in their government, and if persisted in will bring still greater benefits in the future.

"We accepted the responsibility of the islands as a duty to civilization, and the Philippine people. To leave our task half done, would break our pledges, injure our prestige among nations and imperil what has already been accomplished.

"We condemn the Democratic administration for its attempt to abandon the Philippines, which was prevented only by the vigorous opposition of Republican members of congress, aided by a few patriotic Democrats.

"We reiterate our unqualified approval of the action taken in December, 1911, by the president and congress to secure with Russia, as with other countries, a treaty that will recognize the absolute right of expatriation and prevent all discrimination of whatever kind between American citizens, whether native born or alien, and regardless of race, religion or previous political allegiance. We renew the pledge to observe this principle and to maintain the right of asylum which is neither to be surrendered nor restricted, and we unite in the cherished hope that the war which is now desolating the world may speedily end, with a complete and lasting restoration of brotherhood among the nations of the earth and the assurance of full equal rights, civil and religious, to all men in every land.

Preparedness.

"In order to maintain our peace and make certain the security of our people within our own borders the country must have not only adequate but thorough and complete national defense ready for any emergency. We must have a sufficient and effective regular army, and a provision for ample reserves, already drilled and disciplined, who can be called at once to the colors when the hour of danger comes.

Navy.

"We must have a navy so strong and so well proportioned and equipped, so thoroughly ready and prepared, that no enemy can gain command of the sea and effect a landing in force on either our western or our eastern coast. To secure these results we must have a coherent and continuous policy of national defense, which even in these perilous days the Democratic party has utterly failed to develop, but which we promise to give to the country.

Tariff.

"The Republican party stands now, as always, in the fullest sense for the policy of tariff protection to American industries and American labor and does not regard an anti-dumping provision as an adequate substitute. Such protection should be reasonable in amount but sufficient to protect adequately American industry and American labor and be so adjusted as to prevent undue exactions by monopolies or trusts. It should, moreover, give special attention to securing the industrial independence of the United States as in the case of dyestuffs.

"Through wise tariff and industrial legislation our industries can be so organized that they will become not only a commercial bulwark, but a powerful aid to national defense.

Democratic Tariff.

"The Underwood Tariff act is a complete failure in every respect. Under its administration imports have enormously increased in spite of the fact that the intercourse with foreign countries has been largely cut off by reason of the war, while the revenues of which we stand in such dire need have been greatly reduced. Under the normal conditions which prevailed prior to the war it was clearly demonstrated that this act deprived the American producer and the American wage earner of that protection which entitled them to meet the foreign competitors, and but for the adventitious conditions created by the war would long since have paralyzed all forms of American industry and deprived American labor of its just reward.

Repeal Promised.

"It has not in the least reduced the cost of living, which has constantly advanced from the date of its enactment. The welfare of our people demands its repeal and the substitution of a measure which in peace as well as in war will produce ample revenue and give reasonable protection to all forms of American production in mine, forest, field and factory.

"We favor the creation of a tariff commission with complete power to gather and compile information for the use of congress in all matters relating to the tariff.

Business.

"The Republican party has long believed in the rigid supervision and strict regulation of transportation and great corporations of the country. It has put its creed into its deeds, and all really effective laws regulating the railroads and the great industrial corporations are the work of Republican congresses and presidents.

"For this policy of regulation and supervision the Democrats, in a stumbling and piecemeal way, are undertaking to involve the government in business which should be left within the sphere of private enterprise, and in direct competition with its own citizens, a policy which is sure to result in waste, great expense to the taxpayer, and in an inferior product.

"The Republican party firmly believes that all who violate the laws in regulation of business should be individually punished. But prosecution is very different from persecution, and business success, no matter how honestly attained, is apparently regarded by the Democratic party as in itself a crime. Such doctrines and beliefs choke enterprise and stifle prosperity. The Republican party believes in encouraging American business, as it believes in all who seek to advance all American interests.

Rural Credits.

"We favor an effective system of rural credits as opposed to the ineffective law proposed by the present Democratic administration.

Rural Free Delivery.

"We favor the extension of the rural free delivery system, and condemn the Democratic administration for curtailing and crippling it.

Merchant Marine Subsidy.

"In view of the policies adopted by all the maritime nations to encourage their shipping interests, and in order to enable us to compete with them for the ocean-carrying trade, we favor the payment to ships engaged in the foreign trade of liberal compensation for services actually rendered in carrying the mails, and such further legislation as will build up an adequate American merchant marine, and give up ships which may be requisitioned by the government in time of national emergency.

"We are utterly opposed to the government ownership of vessels as proposed by the Democratic party, because government-owned ships, while effectively preventing the development of the American merchant marine by private capital, will be entirely unable to provide for the vast volume of American freights and will leave us more helpless than ever in the hard grip of foreign syndicates.

Transportation.

"Interstate and intrastate transportation have become so interwoven that the attempt to apply two and often several sets of laws to its regulation has produced conflicts of authority, embarrassment in operation and inconvenience and expense to the public. The entire transportation system of the country has become essentially national. We therefore, favor such action by legislation or, if necessary, through an amendment to the constitution, as will result in placing it under exclusive federal control.

Economy—A National Budget.

"The increasing cost of the National government and the need for the greatest economy of its resources in order to meet the growing demands of the people for government service call for the severest condemnation of the wasteful appropriations of the Democratic administration, of its shameless raid on the treasury, and of its opposition to and rejection of President Taft's oft-repeated proposals and earnest efforts to secure economy and efficiency through the establishment of a simple, businesslike budget system, to which we pledge our support and which we hold to be necessary.

Conservation.

"We believe in a careful husbandry of all the natural resources of the nation—a husbandry which means development without waste; use without abuse.

Civil Service Reform.

"The civil service law has always been sustained by the Republican party, and we renew our repeated declaration that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced and extended wherever practicable. The Democratic party has created since March 4, 1913, 30,000 offices outside of the civil service law at an annual cost of $2,000,000 to the taxpayers.

"We condemn the gross abuse and the misuse of the law by the present Democratic administration, and pledge ourselves to a reorganization along lines of efficiency and economy.

Territorial Matters.

"Reaffirming the attitude long maintained by the Republican party, we hold that officials appointed to administer the government of any territory should be bona-fide residents of the territory in which their duties are to be performed.

Labor Laws.

"We pledge the Republican party to the faithful enforcement of all federal laws passed for the protection of labor. We favor vocational education, the enactment and rigid enforcement of a federal child labor law, the enactment of a generous and comprehensive workmen's compensation law within the commerce power of congress, and an accident compensation law covering all government employees. We favor the collection and collation under the direction of the department of labor of complete data relating to industrial hazards for the information of congress, to the end that legislation may be adopted to secure the safety, conservation and protection of labor from the dangers incident to industry and transport.

Suffrage.

"The Republican party, reaffirming its faith in government of the people, by the people, for the people, as a measure of justice to one-half the adult people of this country, favors the extension of the suffrage to women, but recognizes the right of each state to settle this question for itself.

"Such are our principles, such are our purposes and policies. We close as we began. The times are dangerous and the future is fraught with peril. The great issues of the day have been confused by words and phrases. The American spirit which made the country and saved the union has been forgotten by those charged with the responsibility of power. We appeal to all Americans, whether naturalized or native-born, to prove to the world that we are Americans in thought and in deed, which one loyalty, one hope, one aspiration. We call on all Americans to be true to the spirit of America, to the great traditions of their common country, and above all things, to keep the faith."

SAUGERTIES SPELLERS.

David Schoenfeld is the Champion of That Town.

The spelling match for the town of Saugerties was held Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium of the high school. The following pupils entered as contestants: Oscar Wolven and Arnold Fuller from District No. 3; Margaret Spring and Marion Ingersoll from No. 5; Algernon Finger and Elsie Raabe from No. 6; Russell Benn from No. 7; Dorothy Short from No. 9; Emil St. Lawrence from No. 10; David Schoenfeld, Ethel Schwab, Ethel Ballard, Florence Doyle and Mabel Doyle from grades 6, 7 and 8 of the grammar school, and Lucy Langman and Alice O'Connor of St. Mary's in District No. 10; Catherine Magee from District No. 13; Lillian Snyder from No. 14; William Pfisterer from No. 15; Helen Tipp and Catherine Legg from No. 18; Elizabeth O'Rourke and Mabel McLaughlin from No. 21.

When three-fourths of the line had spelled down, the following remained on the floor: David Schoenfeld, Ethel Ballard, Elizabeth O'Rourke, Elsie Raabe, Lila Heins and Lillian Snyder. The last three then "spelled down," leaving David Schoenfeld, Ethel Ballard and Elizabeth O'Rourke; then the two girls lost their places, leaving David as champion speller of the town of Saugerties.

The spelling match was conducted by District Superintendent Emily S. Burnett, with Mrs. Jennie Sickles and Miss Bloodgood as judges.

Just a Suggestion.

Mrs. Bragge—I want to call the new house which I have just bought some name which will let people know that it belongs to me. What would you suggest, dear? Miss Witt—How would "Iona House" do?—London Telegraph.

"Safety First" Means Buying at Shader's Saturday Sale!

Three essentials to the success of this market have been Quality, Value and Service. They have represented our standards of dealings through years of healthy, solid, continuous growth. And in these days of excessively high wholesale prices, we consider them even more important factors than ever. Besides, there is today more cheaply made merchandise than in the old days, with the consequent danger of our paying the price of high grade goods for inferior kinds. Trade here and be on the safe side. Begin Saturday.

BULL MOOSE ARE IMPATIENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 9.—As the Progressive convention forces began their pilgrimage toward the Auditorium today the assertion was made by the militant radicals that a nomination of Theodore Roosevelt could not be delayed beyond 5 o'clock this afternoon. Danger that the convention would earlier take the bit in its teeth was freely admitted.

"It was our program," said one of the leaders, "to nominate at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. I do not see how the nomination can be delayed beyond that hour today."

As he spoke, Senator Reed Smoot, of the Republican conference committee, passed through the Moosers' ranks. The senator lives among them, while he works across the street. A friend asked: "What is the chance for peace, Senator?"

"I think it is very good," said the senator. The statement went rapidly about the little groups of Moose delegates and the comments were fast and interesting. Taking the Utah senator's placid assurance as their text, the Progressives insisted that they must be shown something regarding the only thing that possesses their minds. They want to know whether or not the Republican convention is going to take Roosevelt for president.

A new and interesting trouble was to be accounted among the early comers. In some states, particularly Illinois, the law prohibits the placing of the name of the same man on two electoral tickets. This means that the Progressives and Republicans cannot both have electoral tickets for the same candidate in the event that they agree. One of the parties must drop out of the election and be lost in favor of the other. Illinois delegates called attention to their dilemma and other states added the complaint that the amalgamation proposed with the Republicans meant the death of the Progressive party in their state with the advent of peace.

This state of affairs cut a powerful figure in the early discussion. The medium for the passing of information from the inner councils of the Progressives at the Blackstone Hotel to the members is through the state chairman. Some of the more active have their scouts out for the latest news. To these scouts came the information that the party conscience-keepers were sincerely anxious to give the Republicans a chance for further parley and take a run-away nomination was to be prevented if possible.

At the opening of the day's session the situation was peculiar and dangerous. When the convention adjourned the unfinished business before the house was the consideration of the party platform.

The delegates assembled today with the platform half in and half out of the convention. Under the rules it was to be read in its entirety and then re-read section by section and voted upon. Thus the platform, having been read in its entirety, is only half born. It was held under the theory that if there was to be peace there must be a joint platform as well as a joint candidate. It was plainly stated to the leaders that so much of the Moose platform as revived and put into effect the 1912 platform, including the initiative, the referendum and the recall of judicial decisions would have to die if such eminent Republicans as Elihu Root, Nicholas Murray Butler, William Barnes, Murray Crane and their conservative ilk were to be found at a love feast.

With the necessity for further side-tracking the convention's platform action, if there is to be more peace talk, the Moose had nothing before them. They have no more work that can be done until the platform is disposed of.

"The devil," said a peace lover, "always finds some work for idle hands to do."

"I hope that you don't refer to the radical element as the devil's meat," replied his radical neighbor.

But in the copybook quotation lies the fear of the Perkins element and the hope of the Johnson-Murdock contingent. What one looks upon as a danger and a thing to be avoided, the other sees as a rainbow of promise for the future life of the party and the triumph of its principles.

Thus stood the case at the opening of the convention.

"Mr. Chairman," said the new member of the literary club, "I move you, sir."

"I rise to a point of order, Mr. Chairman," interrupted one of the other members.

"State your point of order."

"The gentleman says 'I move you.' It is not only out of order, but utterly absurd for a man of 114 pounds to talk of 'moving' a chairman who weighs 36."

"The point is well taken," roared the presiding officer, bringing his gavel down with a resounding thud. "The gentleman will merely 'move' or take his seat!"—Chicago Tribune.

Penzance and Oxford.

A curious coat of arms, dating back to early religious times, is that possessed by Penzance. The town is called Pen Sans on the corporation seal, and the coat of arms shows the head of John the Baptist on a charger.

Pen Sans is old Cornish for Holy Head, and so that the expression might be properly shown in the arms of the town the head of John the Baptist was chosen. The date of the coat of arms of Penzance is 1614.

The most appropriate coat of arms of any town in England is that belonging to Oxford. It shows an ox and commemorates the fact that the site of the town was originally on a part of the river fordable by oxen; hence Ox-ford.

GREAT NOMINATIONS IN SHORT SPEECHES

"I desire on behalf of the delegation from Illinois to put in nomination as a candidate for president of the United States Abraham Lincoln of Illinois."

In this simple sentence N. B. Judd placed Lincoln's name before the Republican convention in 1850.

Eight nominating speeches were made in fifteen minutes. There was no display of the emotions, no review in lurid light of the candidate's career.

How different from the frenzied flights of oratory which have become the fashion for most convention nominators and seconders!

The emotional convention speech usually draws applause and sometimes, but not often, results in a nomination.

Chauncey M. Depew after speaking for ten minutes in seconding Harrison's nomination at Minneapolis in 1892, mentioned the name of Blaine. The Maine statesman's delegates, aided by the galleries, took up the rhythmic cry of "Blaine! Blaine! James G. Blaine!" and pandemonium reigned for twenty-three minutes. Then Harrison was nominated.

Ten days later in Chicago Bourke Cockran in a great speech seconding the nomination of David B. Hill was confronted by a tremendous vocal demonstration in behalf of Grover Cleveland. In this case the orator failed to accomplish the object he sought, the convention voting as it had cheered.

The year 1896 brought the free silver fight, the walkout of Henry M. Teller and other western senators from the Republican convention, and at the Democratic convention, the speech in which Bryan declared:

"You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold. You shall not press down upon the brow of labor a crown of thorns."

A Bryan demonstration in the 1908 Democratic convention in Denver lasted an hour and twenty-eight minutes, easily breaking all records. The convention was for the Nebraskan in the voting too.

Every one remembers the details of the conventions of four years ago. In Chicago the wild demonstration for Roosevelt and another extended period of cheering, which was in part a compliment to Governor Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, followed by Taft's renomination on the first ballot; in Baltimore, where Champ Clark received a majority of votes on the tenth ballot; but Woodrow Wilson was nominated on the forty-fifth in accordance with the two-thirds rule.

Speaker Clark, by the way, has not been the only victim of the two-thirds rule. It was adopted by a Democratic convention first in 1836, and under its operation Martin Van Buren was nominated both in that year and in 1840.

A convention speech has often made an orator's reputation. Robert G. Ingersoll first drew country-wide attention to himself through his clever assembling of flowers of speech in a nominating convention. James A. Garfield's eloquence in another's behalf helped to bring about his own nomination. William Jennings Bryan's "cross of gold" speech was the real beginning of his spectacular career, though this speech was not made, in fact, in behalf of any one's candidacy.

LOVE AND RESPECT.

The most essential thing in marriage is respect. It is above love, above compatibility. Respect will bring one through the most trying disagreements with no bruise on the soul, whatever wounds there may be in the heart. Therefore, men and women, never, never marry any one you don't really respect, however passionately you may love.

Encouragement.

She—Yes, I love dogs! He—Then I'd like to be a dog. She—Never mind; you'll grow.—Harvard Lampoon.

TIME.

Time is a mocker. To two persons differently situated time has either the wings of an eagle or the feet of a snail. To a man in expectancy a day appears a week and a month a year. To one in possession the summer has scarcely arrived before autumn seems ready to appear.

Billingsgate to Chancery Lane. "Billingsgate" is now scarcely heard. e are told, at Billingsgate. The epithet must be disestablished. What shall take its place? Dickens, who knew London thoroughly, places about the worst and most forcible language to be found in his novels in the mouth of Smallicwood, a denizen of the parlous of Chancery Lane!—London Evening Standard.

Civilization in the Congo. Natives of the Congo, Africa, use glassware and crockery to a considerable extent.

Fastidious Snuff User. Lord Petersham, famous among dandies, made a wonderful collection of snuff and snuff boxes, and was fastidious in his choice of a box to carry. Once when a light Sevres snuffbox which Lord Petersham was using was admired the noble owner replied, with a gentle hiss: "Yes, it is a nice summer box—but would certainly be inappropriate for winter wear."

To Cheer Her Up. "The Fun of Cooking" is among the new books. What a splendid present for ma!

GASOLINE DROPS TO 25 CENTS

The joys of the motorists throughout town have been increased by the statement by several of the garages that they will sell gas for 25 cents a gallon. How long this price will remain in effect is doubtful, as the wholesale price has not been reduced to the dealers as yet. The action was brought on by the fact that some dealers have been selling gas for 26 cents cash and 28 cents when the amount was carried on the books. Now with the price cut by several of the dealers to 25 cents a dealer will probably come down to that figure. In many of the smaller places about the county gas sells from 24 cents to 28 cents, according to the locality, although the wholesale price is the same.

TAXPAYERS PROTEST.

Think No Woman Should be Appointed Truant Officer.

Kingston, N. Y., June 9, 1916
Editor of the Freeman,
Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—We have noticed that the Freeman is a splendid medium for the expression of public opinion so we trust that you will see fit to publish these remarks. It was with great amazement that we read the letter in the issue of last night as written by Mr. Britt, the truant officer, wherein he states that a woman has been selected as his successor.

We are certainly surprised at this action of the Board of Education, and if it is to be carried out we desire to make a positive protest, not in behalf of Mr. Britt but a protest against the appointment of any woman as attendance officer.

We believe in the liberal expenditure of money for school purposes; however it should be expended in a manner designed to produce real results and efficiency. To accomplish this we are impressed with the fact that it requires the service of a strong, active and intelligent man as truant officer.

It is true that there are many positions that women can fill as well as men, however this is a police position and in this instance we question the good judgment of the board.

Yours very truly,
CITIZEN-TAXPAYERS.

Superintendent Harrison Returns.

Superintendent Harrison of the water department has returned from New York city where he has been attending the American Water Works convention at Hotel Astor in that city.

HANDLES TO THE GRIPS.

"It's hot work putting six where four ought to go," said Past Councillor William C. Dutton to a group in the registry room and then proceeded to hunt up a room for a stray traveling man who was not a member but who had to get a place to sleep over night. Then Mr. Dutton put up his fountain pen order-extinguisher and hurried forth for a taxi to escort some of the reception entertainers in from the dampened outskirts of the city.

If the ladies have tea at their reception the heavens can pour," remarked one delegate from an upstate city where the spring rains have been pouring so long that the residents have frogs in their throats and a webby filament starting between toes.

Grand Secretary C. A. Hebbard—he isn't grand at all in his manner—made his "steenth" annual speech of acceptance of that office this morning. He has been doing it for more than fifteen years now, nobody knows exactly how long, and on account of his youthful appearance he refuses all information.

"The Parlor City is a good name all right for Binghamton," said a delegate from downstate. "I suppose they travel in parlor cars and are on their parlor behavior—and say, some of the parlor maids are certainly there for looks!"

One group lingered over a neighboring bar in the late hours of study. The pronunciation of "Ashokan" Two swore that it was pronounced like "ash can" with an "o" in between the syllables. A third said "a" as in "at bat" and the rest plain "shoken." Another round of drinks was "shooked" with some of the Ashokan product and the finer distinctions in accents were lost to their lingual labors. The Chamber of Commerce is going to be asked to put the proper pronunciation of the word on all future literature to avoid trouble.

Speaking of literature the handiest folder of all those on tap for the delegates is the eight page affair with a map on the inner side. All of the delegates are interested in those and they are being mailed far and wide.

Past Councillor Dugan of Kingston Council has not been on the road in some time but is, nevertheless, well known to many of the visitors of the U. C. T., who took pleasure in speaking of his youthful appearance in exchanging greetings. Mr. Dugan was a busy figure at the initial gatherings and made one of the local group that radiated cordial greetings to delegates in all directions.

Some of the handsomest badges are in evidence at the convention, the key to the city being at premium. This is a heavy affair of nickel alloy, the bar at the top being in the form of a key bearing the name, "Kingston." Below is a ribbon in the colors of the U. C. T. with a seal of the city as a pendant. The seal is especially well executed and the reverse of the seal is the monogram of the U. C. T. All in all the badges were handsome contributions to the occasion and much admired. By noon there were none left so great was the demand.

Many delegates have been joshing the mayor about any necessity for oiling the city streets. "Pre-paration" is the reply. The delegates from the Starch City were the only ones objecting to the rain.

Auburn is making an energetic campaign for the 1917 convention. Chances are that the city on the waters of the Otsego will land it, judging from the quantity of literature describing fair Auburn that is being distributed around the hotel.

The white uniforms of Flower City Council, No. 203, brightened up the display of badges on the streets this morning. A live, energetic lot of fellows comprise the Rochester delegation and their appearance is an advertisement for the enterprise of the old town on the Genesee.

A stranger came to the hotel and inquired for the Lockport delegation. Grand Page A. W. White, who runs true to name all through, could not identify any Lock City men, but he said that he would pick them out of the crowd immediately. He then shouted out:

"Love bridge!"

A coterie of travelers standing in the corner ducked their heads with a suddenness that surprised those near them.

"There's the Lockport bunch," said Mr. White, pointing to the group which he had identified by the same trick that David Harum used in tracing the antecedents of his millionaire city friends.

Everywhere throughout the town are window displays representing scenes familiar to the visiting Knights of the Grip, but perhaps the window display of S. Cohen's clothing store on Wall street is the most complete of any in the city. The window has been decorated by Tunis H. Hausenbeck to represent a Hart Schaffner & Marx salesman selling clothing. In the window is a salesman (sax) while on all sides are displayed the wares being offered for sale. A sample cabinet, swatches or samples of goods and a complete line of men's toggery makes up the display. The entire layout has been cleverly arranged and many of the traveling men in town have stopped to comment upon the clever work.

Elizabeth Wants Roberts.

Vance C. Roberts, secretary of the Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce, was selected Thursday to become secretary of the board of trade of Elizabeth, N. J. Mr. Roberts has not decided as yet whether he will accept the offer or not. In Poughkeepsie the salary is about $2,000, while the secretaryship in Elizabeth pays $2,500.

SUFFRAGISTS FAR FROM SATISFIED

Neither Republican Nor Progressive Platform Gives Them Exactly What They Asked For, so They Are Indignant.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 9.—A lively and interesting situation has developed in the suffrage problem before both conventions. That one may come to an adequate understanding of the case, let it be remembered that women who are here fighting for the vote demand that the two parties shall favor the giving of the vote to women by national action. This, be it understood, is no combination of state conventions.

The Republicans incorporated in their platform a clause favoring suffrage but insisting that the question be left to the states for action. No national aid for the cause was promised. Which, said the women, was only the negative well-wishing of a party that had sent along its compliments without any invitation to a political dinner.

On the other hand the Moose platform, as it was read to the women in the original draft, called for full suffrage, to be obtained by both national and state legislation. When the platform appeared for adoption in the convention, it read differently. The word both had been lost in the shuffle, and the word either replaced it, followed by or, this platform was non-committal upon a vital point.

Delegates Costigan's quick ear caught the shifting of the words. He brought the matter to attention of the convention and a dashing woman delegate from Illinois in the first floor fight ever made by a woman in the history of American conventions, insisted upon the restoration of the verbal masterpiece to its original status.

The whole matter was left in the air along with the rest of the platform, and it constitutes one of the main points of hitch between the two conventions.

The women want the Progressive declaration in its real form. They realize that if the two conventions amalgamate and take a joint platform, they have been left nothing more than the husk of the republican promise, and they propose to fight for their rights in the Moose ranks.

The strength of this item is not to be overlooked in the many varied things that go to make harmony difficult.

Old Timer Names Ticket.

Editor Freeman.

Dear Sir:—Kindly print this letter written by an Old Timer in the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association. After looking the situation over carefully and making a canvass of the delegates the following ticket, I think, should be put in the field for election for the best interests of the association at large as they are all men who have the best interests of the association at heart and will always do what they can for its general welfare: President, James B. Osborne of Poughkeepsie; vice president, Frank E. Wiley of Suffern; second vice president, Harry Arnold of Staatsburg; secretary, Patrick J. McCarthy, Hudson; treasurer, Andrew J. Murphy; director, Samuel A. Fowler, Rensselaer. Rensselaer wants the convention for 1917. By all means this ticket should be supported and elected for the best interests of the association, as it selects one man from each town.

Truly yours,

AN OLD TIME FIREMAN.

SOCIAL SIDE OF U. C. T. CONVENTION

Women visitors are numerous at the convention and this morning parties of them were escorted about the city finding much to interest them in the historic buildings, particularly the old Senate House where numbers of them registered during the day. While the mists hung over the mountains, preventing them from gaining any idea of the scenic beauties in the immediate vicinity of Kingston, all of the fair visitors were happy at the cessation of the showers.

A delightful entertainment was held for the ladies Thursday afternoon at the Stuyvesant where the visitors were given cordial greetings

MISS BLANCHE DE LA MONTAGNE.

Head of the local committee of ladies in charge of arrangements for reception given the ladies in attendance at the convention.

by Miss Blanche De La Montagne, Bridge, five hundred and pinocle were played during the afternoon following a delightful program which was rendered as follows:

MORE RAIN LIKE HOME, SWEET HOME

Up-State Delegates Are the Duckiest Crowd of Optimists That Anybody Ever Heard of Saw—Hudson Valley Drizzle Is What They Call a Fair Day in Rochester.

As is usual when traveling men get together, a lot of good stories are being told and, contrary to the impressions of many, all of these stories would look as well in print as those told at gatherings of the clergy or men in any other walk of life. One of the best stories of the convention comes from a Buffalo delegate who laughed when Kingstonians apologized to him for the showers which were general through Thursday.

"Why," said this delegate, whose name at home is withheld as there he is a booster for W. N. Y. climate, "you call this rain, why to us upstate this is the next best thing to fair weather. We haven't seen the sun since the groundhog climbed out of his hole last February and the newspaper men have had to go back to the Book of Noah for comparisons to the floods which have visited every place west of Syracuse this spring."

"When we read up on Kingston and learned about the clear weather which prevails in the Hudson Valley for 365 days in the year and 365 days in Leap Year, you can bet we began to let our water-proof coats go unpressed and our sou' wester go hang. And we came down here without anything to shed water, relying on the far-famed sunshine of the region. And to tell you the truth, compared with what we've had up there in the way of rain, hail storms, rain and hail again for variety, this pleasant, mild shower is just like fair weather to us."

"You people down here may think you've had a wet spring but you don't know what wet is. If it rains cats and dogs today or tomorrow, it'll be just like home, sweet home to most of us delegates, so don't worry."

A Rochester man chimed in to give his testimony as to the truth of the Buffalo man's yarn. If both statements are true, these cities won't go dry in a century.

"The Four Corners, one of the busiest streets in the world, was flooded only a few weeks ago in spite of a river wall we've put up that matches Galveston's sea wall. We had an artesian well spring up in the heart of the business section and the rain poured torrents, honestly, as a matter of fact you had to wade to the bars in some downtown places in order to get counter-irritants for the deluges."

All present agreed that it must be some country and some rain and the moistened effect became noticeable in the group. Shortly afterward the Buffalo man and the Rochester man, arm in arm, were singing, "This is the Close of a Per-fect Day," and the feeling they put into the opening line showed that they meant what they said about the hospitality of the Hudson river weather men.

There will be a business meeting of the C. E. Society after the prayer meeting Thursday evening.

Mrs. LeGrand Hotelling of Rondout visited her mother-in-law, Mrs. Isaac Hotelling, on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Beale and mother, Mrs. F. Vogt, motored to Troy Sunday, where they were the guests of Mrs. Vogt's grandson, Walter Vogt.

Andrew Cockfair is a guest of his daughter, Mrs. Vincent Valentine, at Brooklyn.

Mr. Riefenberg has been confined to his home on Connelly Heights the past week by illness. Dr. Robinson is attending him.

Miss Pauline Klug of Rondout is spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. John Klug, on Third street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kyer and daughters, Mary, and Olive of Kingston, visited Mrs. Kyer's sister, Mrs. Charles Becker, on Sunday.

Only 421 Dogs Licensed.

So far this year but 421 dog licenses have been issued by the police department. There are said to be over 1,200 dogs in the city, and it is likely that dog heaven will receive a large addition to its population shortly when the police begin to round up dogs that have not been licensed.

Returned From Saratoga Convention.

Dr. Frank A. Johnston and Dr. Harold Clarke of the board of health have returned from the state health officers' convention which has been in session at Saratoga Springs.

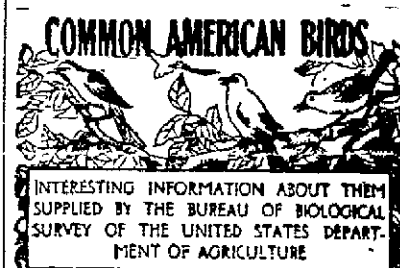

SEA SERPENTS ARE MADE FIREMEN

Mayor Canfield Confers Honor at Banquet at Hotel Elchler For Bravery in Putting Out Fire in Banquet Hall.

The Sons of Neptune of the Order of Sea Serpents of North America, a secret order affiliated with the United Commercial Travelers, held its annual banquet at the Hotel Elchler on Thursday evening, at which time Mayor Canfield, who was the guest of honor, was made an honorary member of the order.

While the festivities were at their height some of the paper snakes used in decorating the banquet hall caught fire, but as everyone knows, it is hard to scare a traveling man, and those sitting nearby jumped to their feet and pulling down the blazing decorations soon extinguished the fire. The half dozen Sea Serpents who acted as voluntary firemen were immediately made honorary members of the Kingston fire department by Mayor Canfield for their efficient work.

During the evening Muller's orchestra furnished music and the Fitzgerald colored quartet sang a number of selections, and solos were rendered by Thomas Dolan. Covers were laid for seventy-five and every one present had a most enjoyable time. The mayor was the only invited guest present.

RUBY-CROWNED KINGLET (Regulus calendula)

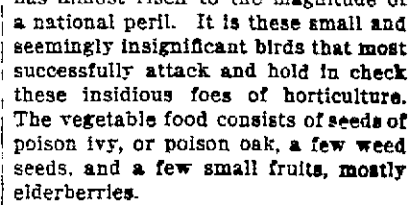

Length, about four and one-fourth inches. Olive green above, soiled whitish below, concealed feathers on head (crest) bright red.

Range: Breeds in southern Canada, southern Alaska, and the higher mountains of the western United States; winters in much of the United States and south to Guatemala.

Habits and economic status: In habits and haunts this tiny spry resembles a chickadee. It is an active, nervous little creature, flitting hither and yon in search of food, and in spring stopping only long enough to utter its beautiful song, surprisingly loud for the size of the musician. Three-fourths of its food consists of wasps, bugs, and flies: Beetles are the only other item of importance (12 per cent). The bugs eaten by the kinglet are mostly small, but, happily, they are the most harmful kinds. Tree-hoppers, leafhoppers, and jumping plant lice are pests and often do great harm to trees and smaller plants, while plant lice and scale insects are the worst scourges of the fruit grower—in fact, the prevalence of the latter has almost risen to the magnitude of a national peril. It is these small and seemingly insignificant birds that most successfully attack and kill in check these insidious foes of horticulture. The vegetable food consists of seeds of poison ivy, or poison oak, a few weed seeds, and a few small fruits, mostly elderberries.

What Becomes of the Goats.

The reported goat shortage in the United States may be due to anything from British interference with neutral trade to the fact that neighbors with autos honk loudly before the houses when returning home at midnight. What becomes of gotten goats is another of those questions like that concerning the whereabouts of lights that go out.—Springfield Republican.

MORE THAN HALF THE TOWNS ARE DRY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, June 9.—Commissioner of Excise George E. Green has completed a table showing the form of license for the sale of liquor prevails throughout the state and other interesting statistics relative to excise matters.

It is shown by Commissioner Green that there are 339 towns in New York state which are operating under the full license system; 113 which are known as partial license towns and 480 where there are no license privileges for the sale of intoxicants.

For the past few years the campaign conducted to end the liquor traffic in this state has brought about astonishing results. Legislative action increasing the price of liquor tax certificates has helped greatly in the movement to lessen the sale of strong drink and there has been a steady decrease in the number of places where liquor has been sold under state protection.

A partial license embraces four privileges and entitles the holder to conduct a saloon, sell liquor at wholesale, dispose of it as a pharmacist or conduct a hotel.

A full license certificate has no restrictions other than those which are defined by the Raines law.

No license absolutely restricts the sale of liquor within the precincts of a town where by the vote of the residents such action has been taken.

The dry counties of the state are Tompkins, except the city of Ithaca; Otsego, Chemung, with the exception of Elmira; Chautauque, almost entirely; Cattaraugus, very largely; the greater portion of Allegany; most of Ontario, Otsego, Delaware and a considerable portion of Schoharie.

Full license privileges prevail very large in the counties of Sullivan, Suffolk, Erie, Putnam, Hamilton, Lewis, Essex, Niagara, Orleans, Columbia, Onondaga, Rensselaer, Albany and Herkimer. The other counties are split up into full, partial and no license towns and communities.

An interesting map has been prepared by the state department of excise which shows which communities have either, full, partial or no license privileges. This map can be obtained upon application to that department. The laws governing the excise privileges as shown upon the map do not become effective, however, until October first of the present year.

Each year the map is altered, following elections at which the liquor question is dealt with by popular vote.

For many years the state department of excise has been the largest revenue producing department through the taxes collected for liquor certificates and the fines and penalties collected for violation of the excise laws. Since the falling off of the liquor traffic the source of income has naturally likewise diminished. It is still substantial, however.

MAYOR CANFIELD IS SURPRISED

Flower City Patrol of Rochester Visit the Mayor at City Hall and Presents Him With Greetings From Rochester's Mayor—Key to Colonial City Reappears.

Mayor Canfield received a call this morning from his secretary, Harold A. Styles, urging him to come to the city hall on important business, and while at the hall he was surprised to receive a visit from Flower City Patrol of Rochester, who brought him the greetings of Mayor Edgerton of Rochester.

The visit, which had been secretly arranged, was a complete surprise to the mayor and the first warning he had of it was hearing martial music on Broadway, and suddenly there came into sight Muller's Band, while behind marched the Flower City Patrol in white uniforms, and in the rear was the patrol of Kingston Council of the Commercial Travelers. The parade turned into the city hall grounds and marched into the common council chambers in the city hall, where they presented the greetings from Rochester's mayor to Kingston's mayor.

Mayor Canfield responded briefly and thanked the Flower City Patrol for bringing the greetings and assured them that he on behalf of the city was pleased to extend hospitality to the Commercial Travelers.

When the mayor had concluded his remarks he was surprised to be presented with the key to the city of Kingston. This was the large wooden key that the Kingston delegation carried to the last convention at the time an invitation was extended to the delegates to hold this year's convention in Kingston. At the close of the convention some of the Kingston delegates carried the key back to Kingston without the knowledge of Mayor Canfield, and he was greatly surprised to receive it back again with the best wishes of the city of Rochester.

Council of War in London.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, June 9.—An important council of war, attended by General Joffre, was held in Downing Street today. It is understood the conference was to discuss the new military situation brought about by Lord Kitchener's death. Others attending were the French ambassador to England, Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary and members of the war council.

KITCHENER DROWNED NEAR THE SHORE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, June 9.—Lord Kitchener and his staff were drowned off the Orkney Islands while trying to make their way to shore from the sinking cruiser Hampshire, according to an Aberdeen dispatch to the Times today. The Kitchener disaster occurred between Marwick and Brough Birsay, northwest of the Scottish mainland. Lord Kitchener and his staff reached the Orkney Islands Monday night and immediately embarked for Archangel. Apparently the Hampshire sank about two miles from land, going down in about 20 minutes. Lord Kitchener and his staff were placed in boats but they were soon swamped by the high seas.

PLATFORM STIFFENS WILSON'S BACKBONE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, June 9.—The adoption by the Republican convention of a strong Mexican plank in their platform is expected here to result in President Wilson becoming more firm in his refusal to withdraw American forces from Mexico, which is being incorporated in the note now being written to Carranza. The uprising at Chihuahua City, by which Americans were endangered and the seriousness of the monetary situation in Mexico are being considered as reasons for a firmer stand than the government has yet taken.

A significant matter being considered during the drafting of the note is that Amoro Sato, former Japanese minister to Mexico, has been selected to succeed Viscount Chinda in Washington as Japanese ambassador to the United States.

Diplomats here today were attaching great importance to the fact that a new ambassador is going to be named during the European war, and more so to the fact that the prospective successor of the present Japanese statesman has had long service in Mexico. A question has arisen as to whether Japan is more deeply concerned with Mexico than appears on the surface.

AUBURN TO HAVE NEXT CONVENTION

Auburn won the 1917 convention of the Grand Council of the United Commercial Travelers.

That important battle was fought out Thursday night on the floor of the Elks' lodge rooms, with Glens Falls and Niagara Falls as the opponents of the Cayuga capital in a three-cornered contest.

Delegate C. H. Abbott was the general in charge of the Auburn forces and in the field work he was supported by an active army of Auburn boosters, headed by R. J. Hennham, brother of Warden Benham, former warden of Auburn prison. Mr. Abbott promised all sorts of entertainment in the home town of the Mutual Welfare League, but he was reluctant about agreeing to give the keys to the city to any visiting traveling men.

"We in Auburn probably have more people from every city of the state represented in our midst than any other community except Ossining, although all of them are not free to welcome their former townspeople coming to conventions. There are other and weighty conventions which keep them confined. It is always the plan of cities to deliver the keys of the city to visitors but we cannot do that for if we did some of you would be turning your friends loose!"

Continuing, Mr. Abbott expressed the welcome from Auburn Chamber of Commerce, the Auburn Council and divers other organizations. All the power of Niagara could not pull the convention away from Auburn and Glens Falls was a third. By unanimous vote the convention decided upon Auburn for next year.

Celebrating Auburn's victory with Mr. Abbott were C. L. Sheldon, Hon. Fred Durfee, Fred Schover, John L. Welty, Alderman E. G. Weeks, Robert J. Benham, B. A. Lakey, Carl Bowman, Fred Ten Eyck, Al. Brown, W. S. Gardner and George Macomber. Each of the delegates except the last two named are accompanied by their wives and Miss Ruth Ten Eyck is also a member of the party.

The presence of two officers of the supreme council, which will meet next week in Columbus, Ohio, lends interest to the deliberations of the convention today. Supreme Junior Council George E. Hunt of Boston is here together with Supreme Sentinel R. A. Tate of Utica. Both are listening with interest to the discussion of various amendments to the supreme council constitution which are to come up at Columbus. The grand council this morning expressed its approval or disapproval of the various amendments which are submitted in the form of a referendum to all the grand councils.

Grand Page A. W. White is from Jamestown and wants it so published. He was announced as being from Watertown by the committee, and says that he never takes water for any committee. He is being hailed as grand conductor following election this morning.

"The Seven Seas."

"The Seven Seas" is a poetic name for the oceans of the earth. To answer definitely the question of "J. M. A." the "waters embraced" in the term include, therefore, all the great waters of the earth. Specifically, the seven seas are divided as the North and South Atlantic, North and South Pacific, Arctic, Antarctic, and Indian Oceans.

Height of Napoleon.
The question of the exact height of the Emperor Napoleon is one of considerable interest, and yet it is almost impossible to find any authoritative statement on the subject. In the appendix to "Napoleon: the Last Phase," by Lord Rosebery, there is a statement by Captain Maitland that he was about 5 feet 7 inches in height, and another by Mr. Bunbury that he appeared to be about 5 feet 6 inches.

Robertson to Act as British Army Chief Under Civilian Head.
(Viscount Milner and Sir William Robertson).

There is a possibility of a political struggle in England in the naming of the successor to Lord Kitchener as Secretary of State for War. It is probable that Gen. Sir William Robertson, present chief of staff, will continue to act in that capacity under a civilian head.

Viscount Milner prominently mentioned as the successor to Kitchener, is an empire builder. Born in 1854, he devoted himself to journalism under Morley and Stead and began his public career under Lord Goschen. As Governor of the Cape of Good Hope during the Boer war, he was bitterly criticised by the Liberals for the part he played with Chamberlain and Cecil Rhodes. As a testimony to his work in South Africa he was presented with an address in 1906, signed by over 370,000 names.

Like Asquith, Milner is a Balliol man.

GORDON APPROVES OF KINGSTON FOLKS

"Kingston," the conductor shouted. I picked up my grip and got off the train. A total stranger in a strange town. Looked around and was undecided as to which way to go. Noticed an officer and went over to ask him which way I am to go to get to the main part of the town. "Right this way, sir," he replied, and didn't turn away until he gave me full instructions as to how to get to my destination. Instructed me with the utmost courtesy. And it made me feel right at home. To have public officials of this kind is a credit to a town, as it is the first impression that remains in your memory for a long time. Took the car and went up town. Got off and stopped on a street corner, and started to take notice of the people passing by. Now, I have traveled quite some, and had the occasion of being in a great many towns and meet different classes of people, and have acquired a little knowledge of human nature, and have noticed from the outer appearances that they are a class of people that aren't discriminating, but that are always ready to welcome a stranger, as a great many that passed me by greeted me, and I realized that I was in a town which every American is proud of. And to my sorrow, I must say, that there aren't many like it in this country. You will say, why every town in this country is good, and that all the people in this country are nice. Yes, to a certain extent. You can only convince yourself to that fact when you travel. There are different classes of people. There are some people that welcome their fellow men regardless of whether they are relatives, friends or total strangers. But there are some people that are selfish and discriminating, and who look upon a stranger as an impostor and an intruder. Now, after being here a short time, I convinced myself that my first impression was not a false one. On the contrary, it strengthened it to an unlimited extent. I had the occasion to call on the honorable mayor of this city. And, again, I noticed, the intelligence and good judgment of the people of Kingston by selecting as their chief executive a man of his calibre, as his appearance alone expressed honesty, integrity, and a man that is trustworthy, and that has the welfare of others at heart. He was very busy, too busy to talk to me, but not too busy to give me a pleasant smile, and a hearty greeting, and which was greatly appreciated by me. Benjamin Franklin said "good words are followed by good deeds." He was right. If only every one in this world would have a good word for his fellow man, hatred and bad feeling would be a thing of the unknown. Newspapers? Yes, of the honest kind only. No cheap rotten politics, no false sensations, but good and clean news, interesting, as well as beneficial reading.

In conclusion, I will say, and say with the utmost sincerity, that Kingston is a city whose foundation is the constitution of the United States. Prejudice and discrimination is unknown, and where real good and true American spirit prevails. It is an American city in the full sense of the word.

It is a treat to be in Kingston.

NO PROOF THAT HE SET CAT AFIRE

Adam Thiel Found Not Guilty of Charge After Lengthy Trial in Recorder's Court—Other Matters Before Recorder Lang.

Thursday afternoon Adam Thiel and Chester Kilmer, the two young men who had been arrested charged with dousing a cat in oil and then setting fire to the animal on the complaint of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, were arraigned in recorder's court before Recorder Lang to which time the case had been adjourned when the young men were arrested. Amos Van Eiten represented the society while Judge N. Frank O'Reilly appeared for the young men.

The charge was withdrawn against Kilmer, but the case was pressed against Thiel. Considerable testimony was introduced by both sides. Thiel's contention was that he was sitting on his front porch when the blazing cat staggered around the corner of the house and he was attempting to extinguish the fire when seen by the one who had lodged the complaint with the society.

After hearing all of the evidence Recorder Lang found Thiel not guilty and discharged him.

The trial of Mrs. Granville Quick on a charge of disorderly conduct which had been adjourned to Thursday afternoon was again adjourned until next Tuesday owing to the fact that it was after five o'clock before the cat case was concluded.

Samuel R. Christian, who stabbed Herbert Harbeck with a pen knife, had his case adjourned again for another two days as Harbeck was not able to leave the hospital to appear in court.

Robertson to Act as British Army Chief Under Civilian Head

There is a possibility of a political struggle in England in the naming of the successor to Lord Kitchener as Secretary of State for War. It is probable that Gen. Sir William Robertson, present chief of staff, will continue to act in that capacity under a civilian head.

WILBERT ROBINSON SEVERE TASKMASTER

Leader of Brooklyn Dodgers and Some of His Players.

There always has been an impression that Wilbert Robinson was an easy boss and that as such his men will play on him with the result that the athletes shirk their duty to the detriment of Brooklyn's pennant interests. Any number of fans can be found who will declare in favor of a taskmaster like McGraw and against a suave manager like Robby. They hold the opinion that ball players must be driven slavishly if a club is to be a winner. Kid-gloving them gets nothing in the end but the horse laugh.

Recent events have proved, however, that Robby is less solicitous of the feelings of his men than in other years, writes Len Wooster in the Brooklyn Times. While he still applies the same and is ever ready to bestow praise for a clever piece of work he is driving his team harder and compelling every man in a regular berth to step right up to the top notch of his ability. Failure to meet requirements carries with it the ignominy of a job at bench warming. Ollie O'Mara was given two days only to establish his worth to the team. The same limit was set for Gus Getz. Casey Stengel was somewhat short of the standard and Jimmy Johnston was given the assignment in right field. Zack Wheat is under surveillance. The noted caretaker of the left wing of the outer defense is cutting very little fire in batting and his fielding lacks the snap of old times.

Robby is determined to land Brooklyn a winner if it's in the team. He is experimenting with that object in view. Robby is playing the cards for a winner, and expects every man to do his part or suffer the consequences.

WON'T CHANGE HIS PITCHERS

Hughie Jennings, the keeper of the Jungle team, says that he has been panned a lot for keeping pitchers on the bill when the batters have found their range, but explains his motives with some sound reason. "When I announce the pitcher to start the game," said Jennings, "he is the best man I have for that day's work. If they hit him they will probably hit the next one I offer them. These one-inning bursts win games sometimes, but if you don't win and you throw away a couple of pitchers, you are up against it when the double-deckers come along."

WOULD TABOO 'TROT' STEALS

Move on Foot to Eliminate Unwarranted Purloining of Bases in One-Sided Games.

There's a movement on foot for a new rule that will cut down the base-stealing averages of athletes who get a chance to bolster this percentage by trotting from sack to sack when they get on in the ninth inning and their team is hopelessly behind.

For years it has been understood among ball players that catchers won't even try to get runners out under such circumstances. These pilfered socks don't help to win the game and they're a regular joke.

And yet a few such donated steals may enable the lucky player to lead the league in base running, noosing out some player who has had to work for every steal. The rulemakers have legislated out credit for a steal when the other half of an attempted double steal fails, and now they are figuring how to void a rule to cover this other scoring evil.

BASEBALL NOTES

"Fritz" Malsel is showing improvement in his outfielding.

Ty Cobb says that it is easier to steal third base than any other.

Napoleon Lajoie is convinced that Home Run Baker has not gone back.

Manager Jennings says his team will show marked improvement soon.

"Heinie" Zimmerman, the Cubs' third baseman, has struck his batting stride.

Barney Dreyfuss denies the report that he contemplates retiring from baseball.

The big asset on Mike Kelley's Saints is big Phil Douglas, when he behaves.

The record of the Red Sox hitters is really the best of the American league circuit.

If the transfer of Speaker is good for the game why not transfer Cobb to the Athletics?

All things come to him who waits—when he's hitting against a pitcher who has lost control.

Jack Graney of the Cleveland Indians will be passing Tris Speaker if he keeps up the pace.

"Mike" Kelly has added strength to his St. Paul outfield by signing Walter Cruise of the Cardinals.

Don't get Markle of the Yanks mixed with Markle of the Giants. The Yankee man is a pitcher.

Griffith's Senators are reasonably certain to get a square deal as long as Judge remains on the job.

Jimmy Johnston, who played the garden for the Cubs some time ago, is doing fine work for the Dodgers.

McGraw is dicker for a pitcher named Worm. Maybe Mac figures he will make good crawling out of holes.

Lee Fohl's Indians didn't lift any scalps last season, but they've put on some hair-raising finishes this season.

"Terry" Turner, the veteran infielder, is about the liveliest member of the Cleveland Indians at the present time.

Pieh and Egg form the short-order battery for Newark. Pieh is not of the lemon variety and Egg is hard to beat.

Pitcher George Dumont of the Washington team is now a real big leaguer—he has had his tonsils removed.

Ty Cobb is great in every department except one. He is the weakest player in the league when it comes to lagging base runners.

Harry Coveleskie is running Walter Johnson a close second already as a rescue pitcher. He is a truck horse for working overtime.

REEL'S STRIKE DELAYS WORK

A strike for higher wages among the employees of the Upper Hudson Stone Company at Cedarcliff has tied up all work there and prevents the prompt delivery of the stone needed for the work on Wall street, between Maiden Lane and Henry street.

C. Gordon Reel, who has the contract for furnishing the stone, has been expecting to proceed with the preparation of the stone needed in order to fulfill his contract, by treating it with asphalt at his plant in Kingston, but rainy weather for the past two days has prevented that work from being carried out.

Mr. Reel stated today that the stone had been delivered in sufficient quantity to complete the one block from Maiden Lane to St. James street but inquiry from the board of public works discloses that several loads are still needed to complete the work on that block.

Work on the rest of Wall street will be delayed until the Cedarcliff strike is settled or until Mr. Reel gets his Kingston plant in full operation, which he expects to do as soon as the weather becomes clear. Two days are required for the preparation of the stone, which is baked to dry out all moisture and then treated to a coat of asphalt. The work on Fair street will wait, of course, until Mr. Reel settles his Cedarcliff strike or gets his plant here in full operation. He much prefers to proceed with the treatment of the stone needed at his Cedarcliff plant, which has a much greater capacity than the Kingston plant, but if the board of public works insists on prompt fulfilling of his contract, the work at the Kingston plant will be pushed, provided the weather is clear.

SPELLING IN ROSENDALE.

Blanche Jones Best Speller in Rosendale Town Schools.

On Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock pupils from all the schools of the town of Rosendale, with the exception of No. 8, met in the Rosendale union school to enter the township spelling match. Following is a list of the pupils who entered the contest: Charles Riley and Archie DePuy, from No. 1; Gladys Christiana and Eva Freer from No. 2; Catherine O'Connor and Frank O'Connor from No. 3; Naomi Steinhilber and Ignatius Riley from No. 4; Nellie Conner and Blanche Jones from No. 5; Albert Riggs and Richard Peterson from No. 7; Julia Mackerer and Esther Kavanaugh from St. Peter's School.

As the spelling proceeded the contestants yielded one by one until those remaining were Blanche Jones of Cottickill, Archie DePuy of Rosendale and Catherine O'Connor of Bloomington. Finally Blanche Jones was declared township champion as the other two "spelled down." As there are fourteen to be selected to represent this supervisory district in the county spelling match, others beside the champion will be selected from the last who "spelled down."

"INFORMATION"

A few facts about the telephone girl who answers to the name.

"Information" is a young lady whose duty it is to supply telephone numbers that are not in the telephone directory or telephone numbers that have been changed since the directory was last issued.

But in spite of this fact, more than one-half the calls that "Information" handles are for numbers that are properly listed in the telephone directory.

This means that more than one-half of the people who call "Information" waste their time, for it takes more time to get a number from "Information" than from the telephone directory, and in addition the practice prevents "Information" from serving people who have a real need for her services.

Always consult the telephone directory first.

ROOSEVELT STANDS IN PATH OF PEACE

His Ambition and Assertiveness the Only Obstacles in the Way of an Agreement Between the Parties.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Coliseum, Chicago, June 9.—Unless Col. Theodore Roosevelt shall eliminate himself as a candidate for president, peace between the Republican Progressive parties is impossible. This was the judgment of the leaders of the Republican party when its convention reassembled here today.

The peace conference was ready to report "progress" but that was all that could be said. The Progressive party committee had agreed that there would be no trouble in getting together on any question of policy. But it insisted that Col. Roosevelt was the only man to lead the fight of a reunited party. And the instance was of such a character that the Republican leaders saw little hope. So it was decided that unless the situation cleared up the convention would proceed to the next order of business and let the candidates be placed in nomination.

The Progressive leaders insisted that they did not know just what they would do. Their delegates were anxious to go ahead and nominate Col. Roosevelt and put the issue of whether he would be accepted by the Republicans, or whether that party preferred to go down again to defeat, squarely up to the Republican convention. The Progressive leaders, of course, could present this, but whether they would do so only they themselves knew.

Col. Roosevelt talked by telephone to several of his friends on the Republican leadership list, but he seemed simply to be trying to find out what was to be done and it is understood that he insisted again that he was a candidate. Meanwhile the managers of the favorite sons were considering a plan to unite on a single candidate after the first ballot and thus prevent the nomination of Justice Hughes. They easily could do this but both Frank Hitchcock and Governor Whitman insisted that they had all of the votes they needed to put Justice Hughes across when they decided that the right moment had arrived.

The great mass-play of the men behind Hughes—the men who want party success and the endorsement of the Progressives, was being carried out in secret. They were in touch with a representative in Washington whose identity was carefully guarded. He was trying to get into communication with Justice Hughes and ask him to come out into the open and say where he stands on the great question of Americanism. If he would do so and do it with emphasis, then his nomination by the Republicans and his endorsement by the Progressives could be secured. Otherwise this was out of the question.

It is understood that the conservative Progressives with whom Hughes is a second choice should Col. Roosevelt eliminate himself and Hughes show that he "stood right" made it very plain to the Hughes managers that under no circumstances could they support Hughes unless he personally, and in language that would leave no doubt of what it meant, purge himself of the charge that he favored hyphenism. After the conference between the committees from the Republican and Progressive conventions broke up these men let it be known that the only way Hughes could be made acceptable was as follows:

Announce in emphatic terms that he stood for America first and for the maintenance of neutrality at every cost.

Agree immediately to resign from the bench and make his fight on the declarations of the Republicans and the amended platform of the Progressives.

If Hughes was willing to do this then he could count on the support of Col. Roosevelt and the Colonel would come to Chicago on a special train and deliver his own delegates to Hughes. It was admitted that only Roosevelt would deliver the Progressive nomination to any other than himself. But if he came here and told the convention that he had won his fight and had safeguarded the Progressive cause as typified by him in his telegram to W. P. Jackson yesterday there was little doubt that he could have his own convention do anything he wished.

But the Republican leaders did not know whether this was possible. So far Justice Hughes simply has declined to agree to a conference with the representatives of the Republican party who believe that he must be their candidate. And he also has refused to do what the Roosevelt men have tried to get him to do—announce that his original position was unchanged, that he was not a candidate for political honors and that he would not accept a presidential nomination "were it tendered to him."

The plan of the leaders of the Republican party was to permit the convention to listen to the nominating speeches today. Eight hours of oratory were scheduled. If the leaders receive any encouragement that would lead them to believe that there still was a chance to name a candidate who would be acceptable to the Progressive party, Hughes or anybody else, then they would see to it that whatever bargaining was permitted today was inconclusive. If they finally decided that the Progressives had decided that their slogan really was "Roosevelt or bust," then they were ready to go ahead and complete the nomination today.

The Hughes managers made it very plain that they were opposed to permitting the convention to adjourn today before a presidential nomination had been made. They feared delay and the continued hammering of the Republican Roosevelt followers under the leadership of George von L. Meyer was having its effect. In that connection the Roosevelt Republicans were insisting that they intended trying to rally to their cause the Republican delegates who realize that without a united party four years ago the campaign intended to try to start a real demonstration in his honor in the Republican convention that would bring home to the delegates and the old guard just where the colonel stood in the hearts of the rank and file of the populace. Women and men known to have canonized Roosevelt in their hearts were given tickets to seats in selected sections of the galleries. But the men in control of the convention intended that their delegates were stamped-proof so far as Roosevelt was concerned. They might not be able to agree on the man, they said, but they were agreed that this year the Republican standard-bearer would be a man who four years ago was a Republican and voted for the Republican candidate.

Last night's conference between the two committees was in itself remarkable. It was held in one of the parlors of the exclusive Chicago clubs. Before it started both sides conferred. The meeting itself was most friendly. The platform adopted a few hours previously by the Republicans was talked over. All agreed that it was an admirable document, although Governor Johnson of California—radical of the radicals—insisted that it did not go far enough in many respects. But even he was willing to endorse the document as showing that the Republican party no longer was the party of conservatism.

Then when the question of a joint candidate came up, the big rock of dissension was reached. The Progressives would name no one but Roosevelt.

Asked whether it had a second choice, the Progressive committee unanimously said it did not have one and saw no reason why it should have one. The Republicans explained that even though they so desired they did not believe that they could deliver their delegates to the candidate. Finding that they were completely deadlocked the committees finally adjourned to meet late today if nominations had not been made by the Republicans.

School Orchestra Interested.

This morning the school tickets for the symphony concert to be given at the High School Auditorium next Monday afternoon and evening, were distributed to the different schools and a short explanatory talk was given regarding the program, etc., to the pupils of the high school. Especial interest is being shown in these orchestral concerts by the high school pupils, as there is at the high school an excellent orchestra of ten pieces, the musicians being pupils of the school. One very interesting feature of the coming concert is the fact that three out of the five numbers, including the complete Schubert Symphony No. 9, of four movements, have been especially requested. It is through the repeated hearing of these great musical masterpieces that one of the chief educational advantages is gained. The public rehearsal in the afternoon will begin exactly at 4 o'clock. School children's tickets will cost, as usual the nominal sum of ten cents. Adults attending the afternoon performance will be charged twenty-five cents.

A Variety of Assets.

Henry Klein, as trustee in bankruptcy for William H. Van Wagoner of New Paltz, will sell a quantity of Mr. Van Wagoner's personal property at auction at the court house on Wednesday afternoon, June 21, at 2 o'clock. The asset for which it is expected there will be the biggest demand is a Ford automobile. There are also automobile robes, tires, inner tubes, some lubricating oil, etc., a cutter and bob sleighs, and an assortment of gold bonds and stocks of a mining company whose stock is not now found among the quotations of stock exchanges on curb markets, but which Trustee Klein nevertheless expects to sell.

Play at Lake Mohonk.

Tomorrow the Red Seal baseball team will journey to Lake Mohonk, where they will cross back with the fast Mohonk nine. The Seals will have a strong line-up and expect to bring home the bacon.

"WE WANT TEDDY" THEY TELL BORAH

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Auditorium, Chicago, June 9.—The appearance of Senator William Borah of Idaho, on the stage at the Progressive convention shortly before adjourning for noon lunch was a signal for a gigantic Roosevelt demonstration. Senator Borah came direct from the Republican convention where he had been a member of the Republican peace conference committee.

"Welcome home, Bill," yelled the delegates.

"We want Teddy," answered Borah. "So do millions of other people."

Chairman Robins, in introducing Senator Borah, said:

"The time may come, many hope it shall come—when Senator Borah may address us at length. He will now address you, and I understand he wants to wish you a very good morning."

"Mr. Borah said:

"I do not visit you in an official capacity, but as a friend and admirer of the men and women who compose this organization. If the truth were known, I would say that I came over here to get a little inspiration."

"We have a lot of judgment and deliberation in our convention, but I like the way you seem to feel. It is known pretty well that the cardinal affection and deep-seated admiration that I have for your great leader—Tremendous applause interrupted the speaker and the convention started a mighty demonstration."

"We want Teddy," roared the mighty chorus. It grew and swelled. George W. Perkins came back to the stand and led the great cheering. Where he had before called for the soft pedal, now he urged the Moose forward.

"There is no doubt at all," said Borah when quiet came, "that you want Teddy, and there is no doubt that there are hundreds and thousands and millions of people who also want Teddy."

"We want Borah, too," yelled a delegate.

"Certainly, but you can't get him at this convention because you want Teddy worse."

Borah proceeded to pay a remarkable tribute to Roosevelt.

"You are fortunate in having a leader who not only commands your undivided devotion, but who in my judgment has done more than any 100 men in the United States to make the issues upon which this battle will be fought in November. He is recognized not only in this, his own country, but in every capital of Europe as the master of the international problem which this country will be called upon to deal with in the next few years."

"Let us bear in mind, however, that upon whatever these two conventions do will depend the destiny and welfare of the American people in the next quarter of a century. And we can only be assured of success by complete co-operation. It is my judgment that we should fight together."

"I don't know who the nominee will be. But I do know that if it transpires your great leader is selected as the nominee of the two great parties, you find no more loyal and enthusiastic supporter than myself."

Imitation Gold.

By combining ninety-four parts of copper and six parts of antimony and adding a small quantity of magnesium carbonate to increase the weight, a substitute for gold is produced. This alloy, it is said, can be drawn, worked and soldered much the same as gold and it also takes and retains a gold polish. It can be made for about 26 cents a pound when its constituents can be bought at normal prices.

Emerson's Poetry.

Emerson's poetry is a peculiar subject. Carlyle and Lowell, both eminent critics, did not condemn it, but at the same time they were slow to praise it. Dr. F. H. Hodge, who probably knew more about literature than either of them, considered it poetry of a very high order, and Rev. William Furness of Philadelphia, when someone spoke slightly of Emerson as a poet, exclaimed: "He is heaven high above our other poets."—Frank P. Stevens.

Damaged Flock.

Bobbie had never seen a live sheep, but one of his most treasured toys was a little woolly lamb on wheels, which he drew all about the house and yard. Last summer he went to visit his uncle, who owns a sheep ranch in the West. When Bobbie spied a flock, he exclaimed: "You must have got them cheap, uncle, 'cause they've all lost their wheels."—New York Times.

Uncle Eben.

"A man dat has an ax to grind," said Uncle Eben, "is liable to be mo' use to you dan de man dat jes' wants you to listen to funny stories."

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 9.—There was a vigorous demand for stocks at the opening of the market today and at the end of the first 15 minutes nearly all the important issues had been established at a higher level. One of the most important features was the buying of St. Paul by strong interests, that stock advancing a point to 100½.

American Beet Sugar rose a point to a new record of 84½ and gains of around a point were recorded in numerous other issues. Wabash A, preferred, rose ½ to 61½. Steel Common was in brisk demand and rose ½ to 85½, and many of the minor industrials, including Railway Steel Spring, Republic Iron and Steel and Pressed Steel Car, were in good demand at advanced prices.

Studebaker was the most active of the motor group, advancing 2½ to 142½. Northern Pacific rose ½ to 115½ and fractional gains were made in Southern Railway, New York Central and Reading. There was continued buying of Long Island, which sold at 36½.

There was a brisk demand for the old time standard stocks in the late forenoon and many of these issues made gains of over a point. Steel Common was traded in on a large scale, advancing a point to 85½. Canadian Pacific moved up 2 quarters to 178½ and St. Paul 1½ to 101. Substantial gains were also made in a number of the low priced industrials. Money loaning at 2 per cent.

In the late afternoon many room traders were buyers of stocks, but there was a good deal of profit taking at the same time and recessions quickly occurred. U. S. Smelting was exceptionally strong, moving up a point to 80½, and Crucible Steel a point. Wills-Overland showed a lack of demand and dropped 5 points to 300.

The market closed strong. A disposition to discount favorable results at the Chicago convention caused brisk buying in the late trading. The war order stocks were prominent but most attention was concentrated to syndicate buying in steel common, which sold as high as 86. Baldwin locomotive advanced over a point to 90½. Marine preferred, after selling at 95½, rose to 97. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds firm.

Quotations furnished by John D. Kline, Warren Building, Fair street, Kingston, N. Y. Tel. 1423. Correspondent of C. H. Van Buren & Company, members of Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York.

WILL ORGANIZE TO FIGHT R. R. RATES

Grand Council, U. C. T., Approves

Barker Plan to Raise Funds For Legislative Bureau to Oppose Bills or P. S. Commission Rulings

Which May Be Deemed Unfair.

Protection of the traveling public and shippers as well as the object of a brand new branch of usefulness endorsed by the Grand Council, U. C. T., at today's meeting. The idea, which is known as the "Barker idea" from the fact that it originated with George Barker at Rochester, provides for the selling of subscription tickets by which it is hoped to maintain a legislative bureau at Albany to fight against passenger rate increases and freight rulings which may be deemed unjust to the public and to shippers.

Contributions will not be confined to commercial travelers. Each of the latter will be a missionary for the scheme and will have a book of ten tickets, each of which will cost 50 cents. With pretty close to 5,000 members boosting the sales of these books, it is expected that the initial start of the bureau will be assured by next winter with ample funds to carry on the battle at Albany.

An Albany bureau is now conducted by Attorney Deal of Troy in behalf of the Grand Council, U. C. T., but this will be broadened out and the funds available will be used for campaigns of education and other legitimate expenses incurred in opposing legislation which may be deemed unfair to the traveling public.

"In brief, we want some sort of a weapon with which to oppose rate increases," said one of the promoters today. He cited several raises contemplated by railroads.

Manufacturers, jobbers and the general public will be enlisted in this unique plan for an organized weapon for the traveling men and the public. It will be submitted to the Manufacturers and Merchants Association of New York.

Another grievance of the traveling men lies with certain interurban trolley lines which refuse to carry baggage. On a trolley trip from Buffalo, baggage can be checked through to Rochester. From that city east the Empire United Railways refuse to accept baggage and the traveler is obliged to pay express charges. This is defined as a rank injustice by some traveling men.

Gains Shown in Order.

Grand Council Spencer's report showed a greater gain the past year by the Grand Council that was reported by the New England Council.

The Auditing Committee's report showed the finances flourishing and Treasurer L. R. Decker's accounts correct. Considerable benevolent work for widows and orphans of traveling men is carried on by the order but none of this is ever made public, knowledge of its operation being confined to four grand officers. Benefits are also paid for death or injury in case of accidents.

The Publicity Committee reported on the organization of the Metropolitan Past Councils' Association which will have to do with the degree work and which will be the authority for the degree teams of the various councils.

The Jurisdiction Committee brought up the several amendments to the constitution which will come up at the Supreme Council next week and the Grand Council went on record on the various propositions submitted in this referendum.

Who Knows This Man?

Police headquarters received a communication this morning from the Essex County Penitentiary at Caldwell, N. J., asking information regarding one James Poolman or "Toolman," a colored man who had died. The letter stated that the man had been sentenced to the institution for ninety days on a charge of disorderly conduct on September 9, 1914, and that on October 10 of that year he had been transferred to the Essex county insane asylum, and on January 5, 1916, he had been transferred to the Morris Plains Insane Asylum, where he died on June 7. The man had given his birth place as Kingston, and a request was made to endeavor to get in touch with his relatives and notify them of his death.

Ambiguous.

The term "billion" is ambiguous, as it means a thousand millions in the United States and a million millions in Great Britain.

DIAGRAM AT WINTER'S

CONVENTION SIDE LIGHTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

The present conventions here will go down in history as probably the most drab affair—in a sartorial sense—of years of conventions.

As a result, the thousands of women here have had no chance to wear the finery that usually make a big convention a sparkling affair. Straw hats by the hundreds have been consigned to the ash can after several days of Lake Michigan's tears.

Rain has fallen practically incessantly since Monday night. After midnight today it stopped, but began again at 6 o'clock this morning and there is little or no indication of it stopping. The weather bureau offers no hope.

Chicago, June 9.—Former U. S. Senator William Murray Crane of Massachusetts today is singing "Nobody Loves Me." When Crane's name was read at the Republican convention as a member of the "Peace Committee" it was greeted with hoots.

Victor Murdock is getting lots of telegrams these days. Here are two of yesterday's best:

"Artemus Ward said never trust a man with whiskers."

"A friend," was the signature of the last one.

Milt Hollingsworth, of the second Tennessee district, should have been a member of that peace committee. Milt is the original get together disciple. He was named a delegate to the Republican convention by the Republican and Progressive gathering by the Moozers. He called at the Moose hall, got his badge and pinned it on his coat alongside his Republican badge and marched up to the Coliseum.

Reports of the resignation of General George W. Goethals as governor of the Panama canal zone today revived gossip here of a presidential boom for the Panama canal builder. It is being said that he may yet prove to be an eleventh hour dark horse in the Republican national convention should the gathering become hopelessly deadlocked among Hughes, Roosevelt and the favorite sons.

Miss Elizabeth Tucker, a Cherokee Indian princess from Ardmore, Okla., created a sensation when she marched into the Moose convention in full Indian regalia. She is a delegate to the Progressive convention and through to Rochester. From that city east the Empire United Railways refuse to accept baggage and the traveler is obliged to pay express charges. This is defined as a rank injustice by some traveling men.

Miss Tucker, when she isn't delegating for the Moose, manages her two brothers, who are prize fighters.

"When I get time I'm going to have one of my brothers lick Johnny Kilbane, your champion featherweight," she said, much in the tone of a young woman who says she intends visiting her dressmaker.

Don't Let Lowered Vitality Run You Down in the Spring.

If you should go to the doctor and tell him that you are given to being gloomy and blue at times; that you have apprehensions of dreadful things; that you are superstitious; that you are constipated, given to headaches and vertigo or to other similar ailments the doctor would know that you were suffering from a case of "nerves."

Naturally when you realize that these symptoms are signs of "nerves" you can appreciate how impossible it is for a nervous woman to appear charming and beautiful. If these facts were only understood more universally by women they would be ashamed to admit they had "nerves," and they would do all they could to cure them.

No matter how talented a woman may be, how clever, how well read or how interesting, if she is a nervous wreck she will find that little by little her friends will see less and less of her until in time she will find it a rare thing to have a caller. Not because the friends mean to be unkind, but because human nature is so constituted that it longs for happiness and warmth, not for sorrow and gloom.

The fundamental cause of nervousness is lowered vitality. So the wise woman will do everything she can to keep her vitality up to its highest mark. If she feels that her vitality is ebbing away she will stop everything and concentrate on building up the system, the nerve force and supply.

Rhubarb Pie.

Three cups of rhubarb, one cupful of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one tablespoonful of milk. Crust: One and one-half cups of flour, two tablespoonfuls of lard or shortening, one-half teaspoonful of salt.

Sift the flour and salt into the bowl; add the shortening and rub in very lightly with the tips of the fingers until well mixed; add a few drops of cold water at a time until you can shape. Divide in two parts; roll out thin. Dust pie tin with flour, put in dough, cover with one tablespoonful of flour; then add the rhubarb, which has been washed, skinned and cut into one-half inch pieces; sprinkle with one tablespoonful of flour and brush edges with milk. Roll out the top crust, cover and press edges together. Make two or three cross cuts on top (for the steam to come out), brush top with milk and bake in a moderate oven thirty-five to forty minutes. Rhubarb pie is one of the most difficult to make, the rhubarb being so watery. Always be sure to put flour under and over the rhubarb before adding the sugar.

Strawberry Sunshine.

Take four cupfuls of white sugar and half a cupful of water. Boil these together for four minutes; then add four cupfuls of large strawberries and boil ten minutes longer. Pour out in shallow dishes and set in sun for two days; then put in jelly glasses and cover with paraffin. This is the most delicious way of preparing strawberries, as they retain their natural flavor.

Money and Nut Sandwich.

Use white bread spread with honey into which some chopped nuts have been mixed.

He Knew.

"The man is best governed who is least governed."

"That's a man's theory," spoke up a bearded husband. "The women have never subscribed to that as yet."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Dr. Gates in Schenectady.

Dr. Aden C. Gates of this city, superintendent of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, is in Schenectady, N. Y., attending the conference of managers and superintendents of tuberculosis hospitals in this state. The sessions of the conference will be held at the Schenectady Tuberculosis Hospital, beginning at 9:30 this morning. Dr. Gates expects to be back some time tomorrow.

WOOD TO PLAY WITH BOSTON OR NO ONE SAYS LANNIN.

Lee Fohl, the Cleveland manager, is urging President Dunn to pay big money to the Red Sox for the release of Pitcher Joe Wood. But Owner Lannin says that Wood must accept his offer of $5,000 in salary or remain out of baseball.

ESOPUS.

Esopus, June 9.—On account of sickness and various other reasons, the Children's Day exercises will not be held in the Methodist Church until the third Sunday in June, 18th inst.

BAPTISTS TO HOLD UNION EXCURSION

The Sunday schools of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church and the Wurts Street Baptist Church will hold a union excursion to Kaaterskill, Haines Falls and Tannersville, on Wednesday, June 28, over the Ulster & Delaware Railroad. This popular event is always looked forward to with much pleasure by many Kingstonians, and no doubt a record breaking crowd will take in the beauties of this most picturesque region this year.

A special train has been engaged for the event, and everything will be done to make the excursion a most enjoyable one. The scenery through which the railroad now passes between Kingston and Poughkeepsie is equal to anything on the American continent, and the beautiful sheet of water comprising the Ashokan reservoir can be seen for miles from the car windows. Tourists come from all over the world to view this scenery and those who go on the excursion will be given an opportunity to enjoy it at greatly reduced excursion rates. Tickets are on sale at the various drug stores and can be had of members of the two schools.

The foliage on the mountains at this time of year is at its best, and to those who have never taken this trip it will prove to be a never forgotten treat, while to many who have been there before it will be another opportunity to spend a delightful day close to nature amidst the haunts of old Rip Van Winkle.

Does It Run On Kerosene?

THE most important feature of a farm power engine today is the fuel it uses. That, more than anything else, determines its usefulness and economy. At present prices of gasoline and kerosene, you could not afford to accept a gasoline engine as a gift, if you had to use it. You could better afford to pay a big premium for a Mogul kerosene engine. See the Mogul work on kerosene. Ask your dealer to show you the difference in fuel cost between a Mogul in any size from 1 to 50-H. P., and a gasoline engine of the same size. The figures will surprise you.

The Temperature.

The lowest point registered by the Freeman's thermometer last night was 58 degrees. The highest point registered up to noon today was 62 degrees.

Weather Forecast.

Washington, June 9.—Showers to night and probably Saturday.

ALL CREWS NOW AT HIGHLAND

With the arrival of the Syracuse three crews and the Cornell Freshmen on Wednesday, all the crews that are to compete in the intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson opposite Poughkeepsie one week from next Saturday are now there in training quarters.

The Syracuse crews arrived at Highland 5 o'clock in the morning and shortly after 10 o'clock Coach Jim Ten Eyck, that sturdy veteran oarsman, had all three crews on the river whipping them into shape. The Syracuseans made a most favorable impression among the local rowing experts, especially the varsity eight, which seems to be a powerful crew and one that can be expected to finish well up on the day of the race. The coach took his three crews over to the eastern shore and then well up the river, returning after an eight mile row. In the evening Coach Ten Eyck took the crews down the river for a nine-mile pull, taking the route along the east shore.

FIELD OF SPORTS.

Notes of Baseball, Pugilism and Other Lines of Athletics.

By Telegraph to the Freeman.

Washington, June 9.—Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion of the world, for ten rounds toyed with Tommy Lowe, southern champion, at Ardmore, Md., last night, winning without an effort.

Cincinnati, O., June 9.—Garry Herrman, owner of the Reds, said today he will ask President Tener to stop John McGraw from writing baseball articles for publication. Garry's ire was aroused by one of McGraw's stories in which he predicted that Hal Chase and Charley Herzog will have trouble before the season is over.

"McGraw's writings are a deliberate attempt to stir up dissension on the Cincinnati team," opined Garry. "He is always trying to cause internal troubles on other teams."

Children's Day at Trinity.

On Sunday next Children's Day will be observed at both morning and evening services at Trinity M. E. Church. The members of the Sunday school will attend the morning service at 10:30, at which time there will be special music by a large senior and junior choir, baptism of infants, followed by sermon by the pastor, Rev. P. C. Weyant. There will be no regular Sunday school session. At the 7:30 evening service the regular Children's Day program will be rendered, consisting of songs by the school and recitations by the younger members. The services for the whole day promise unusual attraction and a large attendance is expected.

Women Too.

Through some misunderstanding the meeting to be held at 7:30 this evening in Clinton Avenue Church in the interest of state and national prohibition was announced to be for men only. Women and young people are cordially invited. It should be a great rally.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 9.—Benny Kauff's actions on a ball field are far different than is imagined by those who have not seen his sporting on the diamond. When we say that Kauff voluntarily makes himself the most inconspicuous members of the Giants, it may sound like fiction. But it isn't; it's fact.

Having been fed with Kauffisms all during the chill winter and during the early part of this none too gentle springtime, all of us gained the idea that Kauff would be the superlative as a grand stand player. But we were surprised by the modesty of Kauff in the first game in which he figured—and the surprise has recurred in all the other combats in which Kauff has performed. Honus Wagner and Nap Lajoie are no more humble in actions than is "Shrinking Violet."

Kauff, all during the progress of a game, seems oblivious of the fact that thousands are watching him; Kauff on the ball field does nothing else but play the game as best he can. He plays it with an earnestness that is surprising. When he walks to the plate he never turns around to gaze upon the folks in the stands. Oftentimes Kauff has returned to the Giant dugout amid cheers for some play he made either at bat or in the field. Did he slow down as he jogged to the bench so as to drink in the cheers? So as to pose? Not at all.

Whether Kauff comes in to the bench amid cheers or uncheered, he always maintains the same little trot; he always comes hustling in, seemingly anxious to get within the shelter of the dugout as soon as possible. Such an action is the last one would expect from Kauff, because it bespeaks excessive modesty. Yet in just that way Kauff has conducted himself and so has shocked—but in an agreeable way—not only the New York fans, who expected to see in him the greatest poser in the game's history.

The contract between the Kauff who is and the Kauff we were led to expect because of the Kauffisms is explained by the fact that Kauff himself never uttered all the boasts credited to him. As we pointed out in a previous article, they were framed by a press agent of Kauff's whose remuneration depended largely upon the result of his work.

The P. A. had a working agreement with Kauff whereby he was to get a nice slice of the money in case the Giant owners and Harry Sinclair "kicked in" with $5,000 each, demanded by Kauff when he was a hold-out late last winter. Mr. Press Agent figured that a boasting attitude on the part of Kauff would catch the public eye and give Kauff national prominence. The mathematics were O. K. Sinclair didn't loosen but the Giant owners came through with $5,000 bonus to Kauff, deciding that Kauff had been so widely heralded that he'd return that $5,000 in state receipts during the first swing through the circuit.

Kauff has made good as a Giant. He has been with the outfit for two months and John McGraw has decided that the $50,000 paid for him wasn't a dollar too much. Not only is Kauff a drawing card, but he is playing a great all-around game.

The main mark of the 1915 star of the Feds still is below .300—but Kauff is due for higher levels. He has been hand-capped up to now by the fact that he has faced strange pitchers in nearly all of the games during the first eight weeks of battling. He has had to pick his way, so to speak. But from now on he will go back at those same pitchers, having the advantage of knowing what they've got in the line of foolers.

Kauff has demonstrated that he is fast—marvelously fast both afield and on the bases. Right now he is among the leaders of the pack that is racing for base stealing honors. He wouldn't be surprising if he led the listers after the October flag drops.

He's a pretty feller, too, this "Shrinking Violet" with splendid judgment concerning fly balls and ability to travel to either side, backward or forward and snare seeming hits.

And Kauff has a fine wing. He zips in the ball with great speed and accuracy and the foemen of the Giants has ceased testing out that wing. They have been killed too often at the plate to warrant taking further liberties with it.

"Benny Kauff is one of the greatest all-around ball players I have ever seen," says McGraw. Those who have seen Kauff in action in the bulk of his games murmur: "Amen."

Four Dodgers are on the sick list. Other managers are wishing some of their players would join the list if they could hold the same position as Robinson's men.

Perhaps the weather man didn't want to butt in on the conventions. Figured one big story was enough for the readers to peruse.

The White Sox certainly lost a bunch of money through Jap Fluv with two convention crowds and thousands of visitors to draw from.

The American League staged a fight for first place. The Indians and Nationals battled 14 innings to a draw.

It was the only game played in the Johnson circuit.

Newark used to pick on the other teams in the International. Now the other teams are picking on the Jersey bunch.

LOCAL SUFFRAGISTS MEET THURSDAY

The Ulster County Woman Suffrage Convention plans are progressing apace. Several of Kingston's pretty society buds will act as ushers and also be ready to give information to the visiting suffragists at their annual convention to be held on June 15 at Wiltwyck Inn Hall, and Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse has promised to be the chief speaker at the afternoon session, which will be thrown open to the public.

Mrs. Whitehouse, is chairman of the New York State Woman Suffrage party, which is the biggest state suffrage organization in the world. In spite of Mrs. Whitehouse's youth, she has been chosen to head this organization because of her genius for leadership. Her adherents claim she is endowed with that supreme gift by which men climb to the summit of large concerns—that is, how to systematize plans so as to eliminate futilities.

Mrs. Whitehouse was born in New Orleans—how few years ago the organization is rather careful to conceal, since youth, they say, seems to be Mrs. Whitehouse's only handicap. She became an active suffrage worker just before the 1913 suffrage parade and in two years is leader of the most important political movement of her generation.

Probably no one woman outside of those who have served in national and international capacities has been so widely quoted within these past three years.

Mrs. John W. Searing, in speaking of her said: "She has inaugurated most ingenious suffrage stunts. She conducted the suffrage shop at 662 Fifth avenue, N. Y. She had gained recruits of international importance to the cause. She was the originator of most of the brilliant publicity exploits of the recent campaign with the exception of Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, the woman who organized New York city and who will also be a guest of the convention on that day."

Mrs. William Finger will bring over several cars full of delegates from Saugerties and Ellenville is expected over with a large delegation.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, June 9.—Mrs. John Hauck of Kingston and Mrs. Barbara Rull of Rutherford, N. J., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Wells on Broadway Tuesday.

At eight o'clock Tuesday evening occurred a very pretty home wedding at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Mead Davis on Main street. The contracting parties were Miss Lizzie Markle of Accord and Leroy Wells of Tarryville, Conn. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Eugene A. Bookhout, pastor of the Methodist Church. Wednesday the bride and groom left for Tarryville, Conn., where they will make their home.

Mrs. J. Wesley Van Wagner of Poughkeepsie spent Tuesday at her home on Green street.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Neal of Branchville, Conn. are guests of relatives here for a few days.

Mrs. M. J. Steger and son of Union Hill, N. J., who have been the guests of Mrs. Steger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Middah, on Stout avenue, returned home Thursday.

Dr. J. A. Decker, who has attended the health board conference of Saratoga Springs, returned to his home on Main street Thursday.

Grade examinations will be held in public school No. 13 next week Wednesday and Thursday, June 14 and 15.

The Dorcas Society of the Reformed Church will meet at the home of Mrs. George T. Van Aken on Broadway this evening. A full attendance is desired.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gazlay and daughter, Alice, and Mrs. Claude Gillespie of Accord were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mead Davis on Main street Tuesday.

Mrs. Wallace Mable of Green street spent Wednesday with her sister, Miss Nellie Zimmerman, in Kingston.

Date Changed.

The date of the strawberry short cake supper to be held by the ladies of the Wurts Street Baptist Church has been changed from June 23 to June 21.

PLATFORM ADOPTED BY REPUBLICANS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Chicago, June 9.—Following is the report of the resolutions committee of the Republican Convention.

"In 1861 the Republican party stood for the Union. As it stood for the Union of States, it now stands for a united people, true to American ideals, loyal to American traditions, knowing no allegiance except to the Constitution, to the government and to the flag of the United States. We believe in American policies at home and abroad.

American Rights.

"We declare that we believe in, and will enforce, the protection of every American citizen in all the rights secured to him by the Constitution, treaties and the law of nations, at home and abroad, by land and sea. These rights, which in violation of the specific promise of their party made at Baltimore in 1912, the Democratic President and the Democratic Congress have failed to defend, we will unflinchingly maintain.

Peace—Neutrality.

"We desire peace, the peace of justice and right, and believe in maintaining a straight and honest neutrality between the belligerents in the great war in Europe. We must perform all our duties and insist upon all our rights as neutrals without fear and without favor. We believe that peace and neutrality as well as the dignity and influence of the United States cannot be preserved by the shifty expediencies, by phrase making, by performances in language, or by attitudes ever changing in an effort to secure groups of voters.

"The present administration has destroyed our influence abroad and humiliated us in our own eyes. The Republican party believes that a firm, consistent and courageous foreign policy, always maintained by Republican Presidents in accordance with American traditions, is the best, as it is the only true way, to preserve our peace and restore us to our rightful place among the nations.

"We believe in the pacific settlement of international disputes and favor the establishment of a world court for that purpose.

Mexico.

"We deeply sympathize with the fifteen million people of Mexico who, for three years have seen their country devastated, their homes destroyed, their fellow citizens murdered and their women outraged, by armed bands of desperadoes led by self-seeking, conscienceless agitators who, when temporarily successful in any locality, have neither sought nor able to restore order or establish and maintain peace.

"We express our horror and indignation at the outrages which have been and are being perpetrated by these bandits upon American men and women who were or are in Mexico by invitation of the laws and of the government of that country, and whose rights to security of person and property are guaranteed by solemn treaty obligations.

"We denounce the indefensible methods of interference employed by this administration in the internal affairs of Mexico and refer with shame to its failure to discharge the duty of this country as next friend to Mexico, its duty to other powers who have relied upon us as such friend, and its duty to our citizens in Mexico, in permitting the continuance of such conditions, first by failure to act promptly and firmly, and second, by lending its influence to the continuation of such conditions through recognition of one of the factions responsible for these outrages.

"We pledge our aid in restoring order and maintaining peace in Mexico. We promise to our citizens on and near our border, and to those in Mexico, wherever they may be found, adequate and absolute protection in their lives, liberty and property.

Monroe Doctrine.

"We reaffirm our approval of the Monroe Doctrine, and declare its maintenance to be a policy of this country essential to its present and future peace and safety and to the achievement of its manifest destiny.

"We favor the continuance of Republican policies, which will result in drawing more and more closely the commercial, financial, and social relations between this country and the countries of Latin America.

Philippines.

"We renew our allegiance to the Philippine policy inaugurated by McKinley, approved by congress and consistently carried out by Roosevelt and Taft. Even in this short time it has enormously improved the material and social conditions of the islands, given the Philippine people a constantly increasing participation in their government, and if persisted in will bring still greater benefits in the future.

"We accepted the responsibility of the islands as a duty to civilization, and the Filipino people. To leave our task half done would break our pledges, injure our prestige among nations and imperil what has already been accomplished.

"We condemn the Democratic administration for its attempt to abandon the Philippines, which was prevented only by the vigorous opposition of Republican members of congress, aided by a few patriotic Democrats.

"We reiterate our unqualified approval of the action taken in December, 1911, by the president and congress to secure with Russia, as with other countries, a treaty that will recognize the absolute right of expatriation and prevent all discrimination of whatever kind between American citizens, whether native born or alien, and regardless of race, religion or previous political allegiance. We renew the pledge to observe this principle and to maintain the right of asylum which is neither to be surrendered nor restricted, and we unite in the cherished hope that the war which is now desolating the world may speedily end, with a complete and lasting restoration of brotherhood among the nations of the earth and the assurance of full equal rights, civil and religious, to all men in every land.

Preparedness.

"In order to maintain our peace and make certain the security of our people within our own borders, the country must have not only adequate but thorough and complete national defense ready for any emergency. We must have a sufficient and effective regular army, and a provision for ample reserves, already drilled and disciplined, who can be called at once to the colors when the hour of danger comes.

Navy.

"We must have a navy so strong and so well proportioned and equipped, so thoroughly ready and prepared, that no enemy can gain command of the sea and effect a landing in force on either our western or our eastern coast. To secure these results we must have a coherent and continuous policy of national defense, which even in these perilous days the Democratic party has utterly failed to develop, but which we promise to give to the country.

Tariff.

"The Republican party stands now as always, in the fullest sense for the policy of tariff protection to American industries and American labor and does not regard an anti-dumping provision as an adequate substitute. Such protection should be reasonable in amount but sufficient to protect adequately American industry and American labor and be so adjusted as to prevent undue exactions by monopolies or trusts. It should, moreover, give special attention to securing the industrial independence of the United States as in the case of dyes.

"Through wise tariff and industrial legislation our industries can be so organized that they will become not only a commercial bulwark, but a powerful aid to national defense.

Democratic Tariff.

"The Underwood Tariff act is a complete failure in every respect. Under its administration imports have enormously increased in spite of the fact that the intercourse with foreign countries has been largely cut off by reason of the war, while the revenues of which we stand in such dire need have been greatly reduced. Under the normal conditions which prevailed prior to the war it was clearly demonstrated that this act deprived the American producer and the American wage earner of that protection which entitled them to meet their foreign competitors, and but for the adventitious conditions created by the war would long since have paralyzed all forms of American industry and deprived American labor of its just reward.

Repeat Promised.

"It has not in the least reduced the cost of living, which has constantly advanced from the date of its enactment. The welfare of our people demands its repeal and the substitution of a measure which in peace as well as in war will produce ample revenue and give reasonable protection to all forms of American production in meat, fruit, food and factory.

"We favor the creation of a tariff commission with complete power to gather and compile information for the use of congress in all matters relating to the tariff.

Business.

"The Republican party has long believed in the rigid supervision and strict regulation of transportation and great corporations of the country. It has put its creed into its deeds, and all really effective laws regulating the railroads and the great industrial corporations are the work of Republican congresses and presidents.

"For this policy of regulation and supervision the Democrats, in a stumbling and piecemeal way, are undertaking to involve the government in business which should be left within the sphere of private enterprise, and in direct competition with its own citizens, a policy which is sure to result in waste, great expense to the taxpayer, and in an inferior product.

"The Republican party firmly believes that all who violate the laws in regulation of business should be individually punished. But prosecution is very different from persecution, and business success, no matter how honestly attained, is apparently regarded by the Democratic party as in itself a crime. Such doctrines and beliefs choke enterprise and stifle prosperity. The Republican party believes in encouraging American business, as it believes in all who seek to advance all American interests.

Rural Credits.

"We favor an effective system of rural credits as opposed to the ineffective law proposed by the present Democratic administration.

Rural Free Delivery.

"We favor the extension of the rural free delivery system, and condemn the Democratic administration for curtailing and crippling it.

Merchant Marine Subsidy.

"In view of the policies adopted by all the maritime nations to encourage their shipping interests, and in order to enable us to compete with them for the ocean-carrying trade, we favor the payment to ships engaged in the foreign trade of liberal compensation for services actually rendered in carrying the mails, and such further legislation as will build up an adequate American merchant marine, and give up ships which may be requisitioned by the government in time of national emergency.

"We are utterly opposed to the government ownership of vessels as proposed by the Democratic party, because government-owned ships, while effectively preventing the development of the American merchant marine by private capital, will be entirely unable to provide for the vast volume of American freights and will leave us more helpless than ever in the hard grip of foreign syndicates.

Transportation.

"Interstate and intrastate transportation have become so interwoven that the attempt to apply two and often several sets of laws to its regulation has produced conflicts of authority, embarrassment in operation and inconvenience and expense to the public. The entire transportation system of the country has become essentially national. We, therefore, favor such action by legislation or, if necessary, through an amendment to the constitution, as will result in placing it under exclusive federal control.

Economy—A National Budget.

"The increasing cost of the National government and the need for the greatest economy of its resources in order to meet the growing demands of the people for government service call for the severest condemnation of the wasteful appropriations of the Democratic administration, of its shameless raid on the treasury, and of its opposition to and rejection of President Taft's off-repeated proposals and earnest efforts to secure economy and efficiency through the establishment of a simple, businesslike budget system, to which we pledge our support and which we hold to be necessary.

Conservation.

"We believe in a careful husbandry of all the natural resources of the nation—a husbandry which means development without waste, use without abuse.

Civil Service Reform.

"The civil service law has always been sustained by the Republican party, and we renew our repeated declaration that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced and extended wherever practicable. The Democratic party has created since March 4, 1913, 30,000 offices outside of the civil service law at an annual cost of $44,000,000 to the taxpayers. We condemn the gross abuse and the misuse of the law by the present Democratic administration, and pledge ourselves to a reorganization along lines of efficiency and economy.

Territorial Matters.

"Reaffirming the attitude long maintained by the Republican party, we hold that officials appointed to administer the government of any territory should be bona-fide residents of the territory in which their duties are to be performed.

Labor Laws.

"We pledge the Republican party to the faithful enforcement of all federal laws passed for the protection of labor. We favor vocational education, the enactment and rigid enforcement of a federal child labor law, the enactment of a generous and comprehensive workmen's compensation law within the commerce power of congress, and an accident compensation law covering all government employees. We favor the collection and collation under the direction of the department of labor of complete data relating to industrial hazards for the information of congress, to the end that legislation may be adopted to secure the safety, conservation and protection of labor from the dangers incident to industry and transport.

Suffrage.

"The Republican party, reaffirming its faith in government by the people, by the people, for the people, as a measure of justice to one-half the adult people of this country, favors the extension of the suffrage to women, but recognizes the right of each state to settle this question for itself.

"Such are our principles, such are our purposes and policies. We close as we began. The times are dour, and the future is fraught with peril. The great issues of the day have been confused by words, and phrases. The American spirit, which made the country and saved the union has been forgotten by those charged with the responsibility of power. We appeal to all Americans, whether naturalized or native-born, to prove to the world that we are Americans in thought, and in deed, which one loyalty, one hope, one aspiration. We call on all Americans to be true to the spirit of America, to the great traditions of their common country, and above all things, to keep the faith."

SAUGERTIES SPELLERS.

David Schoenfeld is the Champion of That Town.

The spelling match for the town of Saugerties was held Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium of the high school. The following pupils entered as contestants: Oscar Wolven and Arnold Fuller from District No. 3; Margaret Spring and Marion Ingersoll from No. 5; Algernon Finner and Elsie Raabe from No. 6; Russell Benn from No. 7; Dorothy Short from No. 9; Emil St. Lawrence, David Schoenfeld, Ethel Schwab, Ethel Ballard, Florence Doyle and Mabel Doyle from grades 6, 7 and 8 of the grammar school, and Lucy Lanigan and Alice O'Connor of St. Mary's in District No. 10; Catherine Magee from District No. 13; Lillian Snyder from No. 14; William Pfisterer from No. 15; Helen Tipp and Catherine Legg from No. 18; Elizabeth O'Rourke and Mary McLaughlin from No. 21.

When three-fourths of the line had spelled down, the following remained on the floor: David Schoenfeld, Ethel Ballard, Elizabeth O'Rourke, Elsie Raabe, Lila Helms and Lillian Snyder. The last three then "spelled down," leaving David Schoenfeld, Ethel Ballard and Elizabeth O'Rourke; then the two girls lost their places, leaving David as champion speller of the town of Saugerties.

The spelling match was conducted by District Superintendent Emily S. Burnett, with Mrs. Jennie Sickles and Miss Bloodgood as judges.

"Safety First" Means Buying at Shader's Saturday Sale!

Three essentials to the success of this market have been Quality, Value and Service. They have represented our standards of dealings through years of healthy, solid, continuous growth. And in these days of excessively high wholesale prices, we consider them even more important factors than ever. Besides, there is today more cheaply made merchandise than in the old days, with the consequent danger of your paying the price of high grade goods for inferior kinds. Trade here and be on the safe side. Begin Saturday.

GREAT NOMINATIONS IN SHORT SPEECHES

"I desire on behalf of the delegation from Illinois to put in nomination as a candidate for president of the United States Abraham Lincoln of Illinois."

In this simple sentence N. B. Judd placed Lincoln's name before the Republican convention in 1859.

Eight nominating speeches were made in fifteen minutes. There was no display of the emotions, no review in lurid light of the candidate's career.

How different from the frenzied flights of oratory which have become the fashion for most convention nominators and seconders!

The emotional convention speech usually draws applause and sometimes, but not often, results in a nomination.

Chauncey M. Depew after speaking for ten minutes in seconding Harrison's nomination at Minneapolis in 1892, mentioned the name of Blaine. The Maine statesman's delegates, aided by the galleries, took up the rhythmic cry of "Blaine! Blaine! James G. Blaine!" and pandemonium reigned for twenty-three minutes. Then Harrison was nominated.

Ten days later in Chicago Bourke Cockran in a great speech seconding the nomination of David B. Hill was confronted by a tremendous vocal demonstration in behalf of Grover Cleveland. In this case the orator failed to accomplish the object he sought, the convention voting as it had cheered.

The year 1896 brought the free silver fight, the walkout of Henry M. Teller and other western senators from the Republican convention, and at the Democratic convention, the speech in which Bryan declared:

"You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold. You shall not press down upon the brow of labor a crown of thorns."

A Bryan demonstration in the 1908 Democratic convention in Denver lasted an hour and twenty-eight minutes, easily breaking all records. The convention was for the Nebraskan in the voting too.

Every one remembers the details of the conventions of four years ago—in Chicago the wild demonstration for Roosevelt and another extended period of cheering, which was in part a compliment to Governor Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri, followed by Taft's renomination on the first ballot; in Baltimore, where Champ Clark received a majority of votes on the tenth ballot; but Woodrow Wilson was nominated on the forty-fifth in accordance with the two-thirds rule.

Speaker Clark, by the way, has not been the only victim of the two-thirds rule. It was adopted by a Democratic convention first in 1836, and under its operations Martin Van Buren was nominated both in that year and in 1840.

A convention speech has often made a man's reputation. Robert G. Ingersoll first drew country-wide attention to himself through his clever assembling of flowers of speech in a nominating convention. James A. Garfield's eloquence in another's behalf helped to bring about his own nomination. William Jennings Bryan's "cross of gold" speech was the real beginning of his spectacular career, though this speech was not made, in fact, in behalf of any one's candidacy.

GASOLINE DROPS TO 25 CENTS

The joys of the motorists throughout town have been increased by the statement by several of the garages that they will sell gas for 25 cents a gallon. How long this price will remain in effect is doubtful, as the wholesale price has not been reduced to the dealers as yet. The action was brought on by the fact that some dealers have been selling gas for 26 cents cash and 28 cents when the amount was carried on the books. Now with the price cut by several of the dealers to 25 cents and dealers will probably come down to that figure. In many of the smaller places about the county gas sells from 24 cents to 28 cents, according to the locality, although the wholesale price is the same.

TAXPAYERS PROTEST.

Think No Woman Should be Appointed Truant Officer.

Kingston, N. Y., June 9, 1916
Editor of the Freeman,
Kingston, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—
We have noticed that the Freeman is a splendid medium for the expression of public opinion so we trust that you will see fit to publish these remarks. It was with great amazement that we read the letter in the issue of last night as written by Mr. Britt, the truant officer, wherein he states that a woman has been selected as his successor.

We are certainly surprised at this action of the Board of Education, and if it is to be carried out we desire to make a positive protest, not in behalf of Mr. Britt but a protest against the appointment of any woman as truant officer.

We believe in the liberal expenditure of money for school purposes; however it should be expended in a manner designed to produce real results and efficiency. To accomplish this we are impressed with the fact that it requires the service of a strong, active and intelligent man as truant officer.

It is true that there are many positions that women can fill as well as men, however this is a police position and in this instance we question the good judgment of the board.

Yours very truly,
CITIZEN-TAXPAYERS.

Superintendent Harrison Returns.

Superintendent Harrison of the water department has returned from New York city where he has been attending the American Water Works convention at Hotel Astor in that city.

HANDLES TO THE GRIPS.

"It's hot work putting six where four ought to go," said Past Council William C. Dutton to a group in the registry room and then proceeded to hunt up a room for a stray traveling man who was not a member but who had to get a place to sleep over night. Then Mr. Dutton put up his fountain pen order-extinguisher and hurried forth for a taxi to escort some of the reception entertainers in from the dampened outskirts of the city.

If the ladies have tea at their reception the heavens can pour," remarked one delegate from an upstate city where the spring rains have been pouring so long that the residents have frogs in their throats and a wobbly filament starting between toes.

Grand Secretary C. A. Hebbard—he isn't grand at all in his manner—made his "steenth" annual speech of acceptance of that office this morning. He has been doing it for more than fifteen years now, and on account of his youthful appearance he refuses all information.

"The Parlor City is a good name all right for Birmingham," said a delegate from downstate. "I suppose they travel in parlor cars and are on their parlor behavior—and say, some of the parlor maids are certainly there for looks!"

One group lingered over a neighboring bar in the late hours to study the pronunciation of "Ashokan." Two swore that it was pronounced like "ash can" with an "o" in between the syllables. A third said "a" as in "at bat" and the rest plain "shoken." Another round of drinks was "shooked" with some of the Ashokan product and the finer distinctions in accents were lost to their lingual labors. The Chamber of Commerce is going to be asked to put the proper pronunciation of the word on all future literature to avoid trouble.

Speaking of literature the handiest folder of all those on tap for the delegates is the eight page affair with a map on the inner side. All of the delegates are interested in those and they are being mailed far and wide.

Past Council Dugan of Kingston Council has not been on the road in some time but is, nevertheless, well known to many of the visitors of the U. C. T., who took pleasure in speaking of his youthful appearance in exchanging greetings. Mr. Dugan was a busy figure at the initial gatherings and made one of the local group that radiated cordial greetings to delegates in all directions.

Some of the handsomest badges are in evidence at the convention, the key to the city being at premium. This is a heavy affair of metal alloy, the bar at the top being in the form of a key bearing the name, "Kingston." Below is a ribbon in the colors of the U. C. T. with a seal of the city as a pendant. The seal is especially well executed and the reverse of the seal is the monogram of the U. C. T. All in all the badges were handsome contributions to the occasion and much admired. By noon there were none left so great was the demand.

Many delegates have been joshing the mayor about any necessity for oiling the city streets. "Pre-paradise" is the reply. The delegates from the Starch City were the only ones objecting to the rain.

Auburn is making an energetic campaign for the 1917 convention. Chances are that the city on the waters of the Owasco will land it, judging from the quantity of literature describing fair Auburn that is being distributed around the hotel.

The white uniforms of Flower City Council, No. 203, brightened up the display of badges on the streets this morning. A live, energetic lot of fellows comprise the Rochester delegation and their appearance is an advertisement for the enterprise of the old town on the Genesee.

A stranger came to the hotel and inquired for the Lockport delegation. Grand Page A. W. White, who runs true to name all through, could not identify any Lock City men, but he said that he would pick them out of the crowd immediately. He then shouted out:

"Low bridge!"
A coterie of travelers standing in the corner ducked their heads with a suddenness that surprised those near them.

"There's the Lockport bunch," said Mr. White, pointing to the group which he had identified by the same trick that David Harum used in tracing the antecedents of his millionaire city friends.

Elizabeth Wants Roberts.
Vance C. Roberts, secretary of the Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce, was selected Thursday to become secretary of the board of trade of Elizabeth, N. J. Mr. Roberts has not decided as yet whether he will accept the offer or not. In Poughkeepsie the salary is about $2,900, while the secretaryship in Elizabeth pays $2,500.

SUFFRAGISTS FAR FROM SATISFIED

Neither Republican Nor Progressive Platform Gives Them Exactly What They Lacked For, so They Are Indignant.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 9.—A lively and interesting situation has developed in the suffrage problem before both conventions. That one may come to an adequate understanding of the case, let it be remembered that women who are here fighting for the vote demand that the two parties shall favor the giving of the vote to women by national action. This, be it understood, is no combination of state conventions.

The Republicans incorporated in their platform a clause favoring suffrage but insisting that the question be left to the states for action. No national aid for the cause was promised. Which, said the women, was only the negative well-wishing of a party that had sent along its compliments without any invitation to a political dinner.

On the other hand the Moose platform, as it was read to the woman in the original draft, called for full suffrage, to be obtained by both national and state legislation. When the platform appeared for adoption in the convention, it read differently. The word both had been lost in the shuffle, and the word either replaced it, followed by or, this platform was non-committal upon a vital point.

Delegates Coolidge's quick ear caught the shifting of the words. He brought the matter to attention of the convention and a dashing woman delegate from Illinois in the first floor fight over made by a woman in the history of American conventions, insisted upon the restoration of the verbal masterpiece to its original status.

The whole matter was left in the air along with the rest of the platform, and it constitutes one of the main points of hitch between the two conventions.

The women want the Progressive declaration in its real form. They realize that if the two conventions amalgamate and take a joint platform, they have been left nothing more than the husk of the Republican promise, and they propose to fight for their rights in the Moose ranks.

The strength of this item is not to be overlooked in the many varied things that go to make harmony difficult.

Old Timer Names Ticket.

Editor Freeman.

Dear Sir:—Kindly print this letter written by an Old Timer in the Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association. After looking the situation over carefully and making a canvass of the delegates the following ticket, I think, should be put in the old time election for the best interests of the association at large as they are all men who have the best interests of the association at heart and will always do what they can for its general welfare: President, James B. Osborne of Poughkeepsie; vice president, Frank E. Wiley of Suffern; second vice president, Harry Arnold of Staatsburgh; secretary, Patrick J. McCarthy, Hudson; treasurer, Andrew J. Murphy; director, Samuel A. Fowler, Rensselaer. Rensselaer wants the convention for 1917. By all means this ticket should be supported and elected for the best interests of the association, as it selects one man from each town.

Truly yours,
AN OLD TIME FIREMAN.

MORE THAN HALF THE TOWNS ARE DRY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, June 9.—Commissioner of Excise George E. Green has completed a table showing the form of license for the sale of liquor prevails throughout the state and other interesting statistics relative to excise matters.

It is shown by Commissioner Green that there are 339 towns in New York state which are operating under the full license system, 113 which are known as partial license towns and 456 where there are no license privileges for the sale of intoxicants.

For the past few years the campaign conducted to end the liquor traffic in this state has brought about astonishing results. Legislative action increasing the price of liquor tax certificates has helped greatly in the movement to lessen the sale of strong drink and there has been a steady decrease in the number of places where liquor has been sold under state protection.

A partial license embraces four privileges and entitles the holder to conduct a saloon, sell liquor at wholesale, dispose of it as a pharmacist or conduct a hotel.

A full license certificate has no restrictions other than those which are defined by the Ralnes law. No license absolutely restricts the sale of liquor within the precincts of a town where by the vote of the residents such action has been taken.

The dry counties of the state are Tompkins, except the city of Ithaca; Tioga; Chemung, with the exception of Elmira; Chenango, almost entirely; Cattaraugus, very largely; the greater portion of Allegany; most of Ontario, Otsego, Delaware and a considerable portion of Schoharie.

Full license privileges prevail very large in the counties of Sullivan, Suffolk, Erie, Putnam, Hamilton, Lewis, Essex, Niagara, Orleans, Columbia, Onondaga, Rensselaer, Albany and Herkimer. The other counties are split up into full, partial and no license towns and communities.

An interesting map has been prepared by the state department of excise which shows which communities have either full, partial or no license privileges. This map can be obtained upon application to that department. The laws governing the excise privileges as shown upon the map do not become effective, however, until October first of the present year.

Each year the map is altered, following elections at which the liquor question is dealt with by popular vote.

For many years the state department of excise has been the largest revenue producing department through the taxes collected on liquor certificates and the fines and penalties collected for violation of the excise laws. Since the falling off of the liquor traffic the source of income has naturally likewise diminished. It is still substantial, however.

MAYOR CANFIELD IS SURPRISED

Flower City Patrol of Rochester Visit the Mayor at City Hall and Presents Him With Greetings From Rochester's Mayor—Key to Colonial City Reappears.

Mayor Canfield received a call this morning from his secretary, Harold A. Styles, urging him to come to the city hall on important business, and while at the hall he was surprised to receive a visit from Flower City Patrol of Rochester, who brought him the greetings of Mayor Edgerton of Rochester.

The visit, which had been secretly arranged, was a complete surprise to the mayor and the first warning he had of it was hearing martial music on Broadway, and suddenly there came into sight Muller's Band, while behind marched the Flower City Patrol in white uniforms, and in the rear was the patrol of Kingston Council of the Commercial Travelers. The parade turned into the city hall grounds and marched into the common council chambers in the city hall, where they presented the greetings from Rochester's mayor to Kingston's mayor.

Mayor Canfield responded briefly and thanked the Flower City Patrol for bringing the greetings and assured them that he on behalf of the city was pleased to extend hospitality to the Commercial Travelers.

When the mayor had concluded his remarks he was surprised to be presented with the key to the city of Kingston. This was the large wooden key that the Kingston delegation carried to the last convention at the time an invitation was extended to the delegates to hold this year's convention in Kingston. At the close of the convention some of the Kingston delegates carried the key back to Kingston without the knowledge of Mayor Canfield, and he was greatly surprised to receive it back again with the best wishes of the city of Rochester.

After a selection by the band the parade was reformed, with Mayor Canfield at the head carrying the key to the city over his shoulder, and marched back to the convention headquarters at the Elks' Club on Fair street.

Council of War in London.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, June 9.—An important council of war, attended by General Joffre, was held in Downing Street today. It is understood the conference was to discuss the new military situation brought about by Lord Kitchener's death. Others attending were the French ambassador to England, Sir Edward Grey, the British foreign secretary and members of the war council.

KITCHENER DROWNED NEAR THE SHORE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, June 9.—Lord Kitchener and his staff were drowned off the Orkney Islands while trying to make their way to shore from the sinking cruiser Hampshire, according to an Aberdeen dispatch to the Times today. The Kitchener disaster occurred between Marwick and Brough Birsay, northwest of the Scottish mainland. Lord Kitchener and his staff reached the Orkney Islands Monday night and immediately embarked for Archangel. Apparently the Hampshire sank about 20 miles from land, going down in about 20 minutes. Lord Kitchener and his staff were placed in boats but they were soon swamped by the high seas.

PLATFORM STIFFENS WILSON'S BACKBONE

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, June 9.—The adoption by the Republican convention of a strong Mexican plank in their platform is expected here to result in President Wilson becoming more firm in his refusal to withdraw American forces from Mexico, which is being incorporated in the note now being written to Carranza. The uprisings at Chihuahua City, by which Americans were endangered and the seriousness of the monetary situation in Mexico are being considered as reasons for a firmer stand than the government has yet taken.

A significant matter being considered during the drafting of the note is that Amoro Sato, former Japanese minister to Mexico, has been selected to succeed Viscount Chinda in Washington as Japanese ambassador to the United States.

Diplomats here today were attaching great importance to the fact that a new ambassador is going to be named during the European war, and more so to the fact that the prospective successor of the present Japanese statesman has had long service in Mexico. A question has arisen as to whether Japan is more deeply concerned with Mexico than appears on the surface.

AUBURN TO HAVE NEXT CONVENTION

Auburn won the 1917 convention of the Grand Council of the United Commercial Travelers.

That important battle was fought out Thursday night on the floor of the Elks' lodge rooms, with Glens Falls and Niagara Falls as the opponents of the Cayuga capital in a three-way contest.

Delegate C. H. Abbott was the general in charge of the Auburn forces and in the field work he was supported by an active array of Auburn boosters, headed by R. J. Benham, brother of Warden Benham, former warden of Auburn prison. Mr. Abbott promised all sorts of entertainment in the hotel town of the Mutual Welfare League, but he was reluctant about agreeing to give the keys to the city to any visiting traveling men.

"We in Auburn probably have more people from every city of the state represented in our midst than any other community except Ossining, although all of them are not free to welcome their former townspeople coming to conventions. There are other and weighty conventions which keep them confined. It is always the plan of cities to deliver the keys of the city to visitors but we cannot do that for if we did some of you would be turning your friends loose."

Continuing, Mr. Abbott expressed the welcome from Auburn. Chamber of Commerce, the Auburn Council and divers other organizations. All the power of Niagara could not pull the convention away from Auburn and Glens Falls was a third. By unanimous vote the convention decided upon Auburn for next year.

Celebrating Auburn's victory with Mr. Abbott were C. L. Sheldon, Hon. Fred K. Duray, Floyd Selover, John L. Welty, Alderman E. G. Weeks, Robert J. Benham, B. A. Lakey, Carl Bowman, Fred Ten Eyck, Al. Brown, W. S. Gardner and George Macomber. Each of the delegates except the last two named are accompanied by their wives and Miss Ruth Ten Eyck is also a member of the party.

The presence of two officers of the supreme council, which will meet next week in Columbus, Ohio, lends interest to the deliberations of the convention today. Supreme Junior Counselor George E. Hunt of Boston is here together with Supreme Sentinel R. A. Tate of Utica. Both are listening with interest to the discussion of various amendments to the supreme council constitution which are to come up at Columbus. The grand council this morning expressed its approval or disapproval of the various amendments which are submitted in the form of a referendum to all the grand councils.

Grand Pate A. W. White is from Jamestown and wants it so published. He was announced as being from Watertown by the committee and says that he never takes water for any committee. He is being hailed as grand conductor following election this morning.

"The Seven Seas."

"The Seven Seas" is a poetic name for the oceans of the earth. To answer definitely the question of "J. M. A." the "waters embraced" in the term include, therefore, all the great waters of the earth. Specifically, the seven seas are divided as the North and South Atlantic, North and South Pacific, Arctic, Antarctic, and Indian Oceans.

Height of Napoleon.
The question of the exact height of the Emperor Napoleon is one of considerable interest, and yet it is almost impossible to find any authoritative statement on the subject. In the appendix to "Napoleon: The Last Phase," by Lord Rosebery, there is a statement by Captain Maitland that he was about 5 feet 7 inches in height, and another by Mr. Bunbury that he appeared to be about 5 feet 6 inches.

GORDON APPROVES OF KINGSTON FOLKS

"Kingston," the conductor shouted. I picked up my grip and got off the train. A total stranger in a strange town. Looked around and was undecided as to which way to go. Noticed an officer and went over to ask him which way I am to go to get to the main part of the town. "Right this way, sir," he replied, and didn't turn away until he gave me full instructions as to how to get to my destination. Instructed me with the utmost courtesy. And it made me feel right at home. To have public officials of this kind is a credit to a town, as it is the first impression that remains in your memory for a long time. Took the car and went up town. Got off and stopped on a street corner, and started to take notice of the people passing by. Now, I have traveled quite some, and had the occasion of being in a great many towns and meet different classes of people, and have acquired a little knowledge of human nature, and have noticed from the outer appearances that they are a class of people that aren't discriminating, but that are always ready to welcome a stranger, as a great many that passed me by greeted me, and I realized that I was in a town which every American is proud of. And to my sorrow, I must say, that there aren't many like it in this country. You will say, why every town in this country is good, and that all the people in this country are nice. Yes, to a certain extent. You can only convince yourself to that fact when you travel. There are different classes of people. There are some people that welcome their fellow men regardless of whether they are relatives, friends or total strangers. But there are some people that are selfish and discriminating, and who look upon a stranger as an impostor and an intruder. Now, after being here a short time, I convinced myself that my first impression was not a false one. On the contrary, it strengthened it to an unlimited extent. I had the occasion to call on the honorable mayor of this city. And again, I noticed, the intelligence and good judgment of the people of Kingston by selecting as their chief executive a man of his calibre, as his appearance alone expressed honesty, integrity, and a man that is trustworthy, and that was the welfare of others at heart. He was very busy, too busy to talk to me, but not too busy to give me a pleasant smile, and a hearty greeting, and which was greatly appreciated by me. Benjamin Franklin said "good words are followed by good deeds." He was right. If only every one in this world would have a good word for his fellow man, hatred and bad feeling would be a thing of the unknown. Newspapers? Yes, of the honest kind only. No cheap rotten politics, no false sensations, but good and clean news, interesting, as well as beneficial reading.

In conclusion, I will say, and say with the utmost sincerity, that Kingston is a city whose foundation is the constitution of the United States. Prejudice and discrimination is unknown, and where real good and true American spirit prevails. It is an American city in the full sense of the word. It is a treat to be in Kingston.

SIR WM. ROBERTSON
Genl. Film Service.

(Viscount Milner and Sir William Robertson).

There is a possibility of a political struggle in England in the naming of the successor to Lord Kitchener as Secretary of State for War. It is probable that Gen. Sir William Robertson, present chief of staff, will continue to act in that capacity under a civilian head.

Viscount Milner prominently mentioned as the successor to Kitchener is an empire builder. Born in 1854, he devoted himself to journalism under Morley and Stead and began his public career under Lord Goschen. As Governor of the Cape of Good Hope during the Boer war, he was bitterly criticized by the Liberals for the part he played with Chamberlain and Cecil Rhodes. As a testimony to his work in South Africa he was presented with an address in 1906, signed by over 370,000 names.

Like Asquith, Milner is a Balliol man.

Adam Thiel Found Not Guilty of Charge After Lengthy Trial in Recorder's Court—Other Matters Before Recorder Lang.

Thursday afternoon Adam Thiel and Chester Kilmer, the two young men who had been arrested charged with dousing a cat in oil and then setting fire to the animal on the complaint of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, were arraigned in recorder's court before Recorder Lang to which time the case had been adjourned when the young men were arrested. Amos Van Ethen represented the society while Judge N. Frank O'Reilly appeared for the young men.

The charge was withdrawn against Kilmer, but the case was pressed against Thiel. Considerable testimony was introduced by both sides. Thiel's contention was that he was sitting on his front porch when the blazing cat staggered around the corner of the house and he was attempting to extinguish the fire when seen by the one who had lodged the complaint with the society.

After hearing all of the evidence Recorder Lang found Thiel not guilty and discharged him.

The trial of Mrs. Granville Quick on a charge of disorderly conduct which had been adjourned to Thursday afternoon was again adjourned until next Tuesday owing to the fact that it was after five o'clock before the cat case was concluded.

Samuel R. Christian, who stabbed Herbert Harbeck with a pen knife, had his case adjourned again for another two days as Harbeck was not able to leave the hospital to appear in court.

ROOSEVELT STANDS IN PATH OF PEACE

His Ambition and Assertiveness the Only Obstacles in the Way of an Agreement Between the Parties.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Coliseum, Chicago, June 9.—Unless Col. Theodore Roosevelt shall eliminate himself as a candidate for president, peace between the Republican and Progressive parties is impossible. This was the judgment of the leaders of the Republican party when its convention reassembled here today.

The peace conference was ready to report "progress" but that was all that could be said. The Progressive party committee had agreed that there would be no trouble in getting together on any question of policy. But it insisted that Col. Roosevelt was the only man to lead the fight of a reunited party. And the insistence was of such a character that the Republican leaders saw little hope. So it was decided that unless the situation cleared up the convention would proceed to the next order of business and let the candidates be placed in nomination.

The Progressive leaders insisted that they did not know just what they would do. Their delegates were anxious to go ahead and nominate Col. Roosevelt and put the issue of whether he would be accepted by the Republicans, or whether that party preferred to go down again to defeat, squarely up to the Republican convention. The Progressive leaders, of course, could present this, but whether they would do so only they themselves knew.

Col. Roosevelt talked by telephone to several of his friends on the Republican leadership list, but he seemed simply to be trying to find out what was to be done and it was understood that he insisted again that he was a candidate. Meanwhile the managers of the favorite sons were considering a plan to unite on a single candidate after the first ballot and thus prevent the nomination of Justice Hughes. They easily could do this but both Frank Hitchcock and Governor Whitman insisted that they had all of the votes they needed to put Justice Hughes across when they decided that the right moment had arrived.

The great mass-play of the men behind Hughes—the men who want party success and the endorsement of the Progressives, was being carried out in secret. They were in touch with a representative in Washington whose identity was carefully guarded. He was trying to get into communication with Justice Hughes and ask him to come out into the open and say where he stands on the great question of Americanism. If he would do so and do it with emphasis, then his nomination by the Republicans and his endorsement by the Progressives could be secured. Otherwise this was out of the question.

It is understood that the conservative Progressives with whom Hughes is a second choice should Col. Roosevelt eliminate himself and Hughes should be elected, would make it a plain to the Hughes managers that under no circumstances could they support Hughes unless he personally, and in language that could leave no doubt of what it meant, purge himself of the charge that he favored hyphenism. After the conference between the conservatives from the Republican and Progressive conventions broke up, the men let it be known that the only way Hughes could be made acceptable was as follows:

Announce in emphatic terms that he stood for America first and for the maintenance of neutrality at all costs.

After immediately to retire from the bench and make his flight on the declarations of the Republicans and the amended platform of the Progressives.

If Hughes were willing to do this these Progressive leaders pointed out, then he could count on the support of Col. Roosevelt and the Colonel would come to Chicago on a special train and deliver his own delegates to Hughes. It was admitted that only Roosevelt would deliver the Progressive nomination to any other than himself. But if he came here and told the convention that he had won his fight and had safeguarded the Progressive cause as testified by him in his telegram to W. P. Jackson yesterday there was little doubt that he could have his own convention do anything he wished.

But the Republican leaders did not know whether this was possible. So far Justice Hughes simply has declined to agree to a conference with the representatives of the Republican party who believe that he must be their candidate. And he also has refused to do what the Roosevelt men have tried to get him to do—announce that his original position was unchanged, that he was not a candidate for political honors and that he would not accept a presidential nomination were it tendered to him.

The plan of the leaders of the Republican party was to permit the con-

"WE WANT TEDDY" THEY TELL BORAH

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Auditorium, Chicago, June 9.—The appearance of Senator William Borah of Idaho, on the stage at the Progressive convention shortly before adjourning for noon lunch was a signal for a gigantic Roosevelt demonstration. Senator Borah came direct from the Republican convention where he had been a member of the Republican peace conference committee.

"Welcome home, Bill," yelled the delegates.

"We want Teddy," answered Borah. "So do millions of other people."

Chairman Robins, in introducing Senator Borah, said:

"The time may come, many hope it shall come—when Senator Borah may address us at length. He will now address you, and I understand he wants to wish you a very good morning."

Mr. Borah said:

"I do not visit you in an official capacity, but as a friend and admirer of the men and women who compose this organization. If the truth were known, I would say that I came over here to get a little inspiration."

"We have a lot of judgment and deliberation in our convention, but I like the way you seem to feel. It is known pretty well that the cardinal affection and deep-seated admiration that I have for your great leader—"

Tremendous applause interrupted the speaker and the convention started a mighty demonstration.

"We want Teddy," roared the mighty chorus. It grew and swelled. George W. Perkins came back to the stand and led the great cheering. Where he had before called for the soft pedal, now he urged the Moose forward.

"There is no doubt at all," said Borah, when quiet came, "that you want Teddy, and there is no doubt that there are hundreds and thousands and millions of people who also want Teddy."

"We want Borah, too," yelled a delegate.

"Certainly, but you can't get him at this convention because you want Teddy worse."

Borah proceeded to pay a remarkable tribute to Roosevelt.

"You are fortunate in having a leader who not only commands your undivided devotion, but who in my judgment has done more than any 100 men in the United States to make the issues upon which this battle will be fought in November. He is recognized not only in this, his own country, but in every capital of Europe as the master of the international problem which this country will be called upon to deal with in the next few years."

"Let us bear in mind, however, that upon whatever these two conventions do will depend the destiny and welfare of the American people in the next quarter of a century. And we can only be assured of success by complete co-operation. It is my judgment that we should fight together."

I don't know who the speaker will be. But I do know that if it transpires your great leader is selected as the nominee of the two great parties, you find no more loyal and enthusiastic supporter than myself."

Imitation Gold.

By combining ninety-four parts of copper and six parts of antimony and adding a small quantity of magnesium carbonate to increase the weight, a substitute for gold is produced. This alloy, it is said, can be drawn, worked and soldered much the same as gold and it also takes and retains a gold polish. It can be made for about 25 cents a pound when its constituents can be bought at normal prices.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 9.—There was a vigorous demand for stocks at the opening of the market today and at the end of the first 15 minutes nearly all the important issues had been established at a higher level. One of the most important features was the buying of St. Paul by strong interests, that stock advancing a point to 100 1/2.

Beet Sugar rose a point to a new high record of 84 1/2 and gains of around a point were recorded in numerous other issues. Wash A. preferred, rose 1/4 to 61 1/2. Steel Common was in brisk demand and rose 1/2 to 85 1/2, and many of the minor industrials, including Railway Steel Spring, Republic Iron and Steel and Pressed Steel Car, were in good demand at advanced prices.

Studebaker was the most active of the motor group, advancing 2 1/2 to 142 1/2. Northern Pacific rose 1/2 to 115 1/2, and fractional gains were made in Southern Railway, New York Central and Reading. There was continued buying of Long Island, which sold at 36 1/2.

There was a brisk demand for the old time standard stocks in the late forenoon and many of these issues made gains of over a point. Steel Common was traded in on a large scale, advancing a point to 85 1/2. Canadian Pacific moved up 2 1/2 to 101. Substantial gains were also made in a number of the low priced industrials. Money loaning at 3 per cent.

In the late afternoon many room traders were buyers of stocks, but there was a good deal of profit taking at the same time and recessions quickly occurred. U. S. Smelting was exceptionally strong, moving up a point to 80 1/2, and Crucible Steel a point. Willys-Overland showed a lack of demand and dropped 5 points to 300.

The market closed strong. A disposition to discount favorable results at the Chicago convention caused brisk buying in the late trading. The war order stocks were prominent but most attention was concentrated to syndicate buying in steel common, which sold as high as 86. Baldwin locomotive advanced over a point to 90. Marine preferred, after selling at 95 1/2, rose to 97. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds firm.

Emerson's Poetry.

Emerson's poetry is a peculiar subject. Carlyle and Lowell, both eminent critics, did not condemn it, but at the same time they were slow to praise it. Dr. F. H. Hedge, who probably knew more about literature than either of them, considered it poetry of a very high order, and Rev. William Furness of Philadelphia, when someone spoke slightly of Emerson as a poet, exclaimed: "He is heaven high above our other poets."—Frank P. Stevens.

A DOCTOR'S STORY

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

When I first set up my shingle as a physician I was told by the older practitioners to look out for traps set for me by lawbreakers, for it is the inexperienced doctor who is called upon to aid them, they knowing very well that an old bird is not to be caught with chaff.

I had not been practicing long when I was asked one day to call at a certain address. I found a stately mansion standing by itself. I was admitted by an elderly gentleman, whose dress and appearance was in keeping with the premises. He led me into a reception room and said to me:

"Doctor, you have come some distance and at the call of one unknown to you. Under the circumstances I do not think it fair to you to ask you to treat a patient without handing you your fee in advance, and that fee should be liberal."

Stepping to a little mahogany desk, he wrote a check and handed it to me. It was for $50.

By this time it began to dawn upon me that I had struck one of those cases against which I had been warned. But I took the check and put it in my pocket. It might get me into trouble, but it might be valuable as evidence. The gentleman led me upstairs to a room where a man was holding a young woman down on a lounge. She was struggling to free herself from him and was hysterical.

As soon as she saw me she became more so than ever. My conductor took me aside and in a low voice told me that she was insane and he was intending to take her to a retreat for such patients. She had been so violent that he feared she would injure herself and desired that I give her some soothing remedy.

I took a small vial from my medicine case, dropped some of its contents in a glass of water and, approaching the young lady, told her to drink it. She looked up at me with a frightened glance and almost shrieked: "Don't poison me! I'll do anything if you won't poison me!"

Now, I am a believer in physical indications, and I consider myself an adept at interpreting them. If I see two persons together whom I don't know and have never seen before I can tell if they are of the same blood. I can also tell by a person's eye whether he or she is insane. I looked into the young lady's eye and saw no evidence of insanity whatever. Another matter influenced me—the handsome fee I had received in advance.

"Don't fear me," I said to her in a reassuring voice. "I am a physician, and this is a simple soothing draft to quiet your nerves."

She looked at me searchingly and anxiously, evidently having felt confident that I had been brought in to poison her.

"I don't need anything to soothe me," she said, "if they'll only let me go. They took me here in a carriage. They are going to shut me up for a lunatic!"

"Drink it," I said, holding the glass to her lips. "It won't hurt you and will do you good."

I told her with my eyes what I had spoken with my voice, and she took the dose. It was really a help to her in restoring her equanimity and lessening the advantage her enemies—if they were such—had over her. Leaving her, I went to a window and, taking out a prescription slip, wrote something on it. Then, casting my eyes up at the ceiling as if in thought, I crumpled the paper in my fist and taking another slip wrote the prescription for bread pills, which I handed to the gentleman who had me in charge and who never took his eyes off me for a moment. Then I went again to the young lady and felt her pulse.

"Good day," I said, taking her hand in mine. "Don't fear to take the medicine I have prescribed for you."

In the palm of my hand was the prescription slip I had crumpled, and I left it in her palm, she closing her hand on it. What I had written was: "I understand the situation. Leave all to me. Do what they compel you to do without struggling."

From her I turned to my conductor, to whom I said that he need not give her the medicine prescribed unless she became violent and if she became very violent before he could remove her I send for me. He seemed satisfied with this and confident that I had either been deceived or the fifty dollar check had stifled any suspicion I might have.

I left the house and, going to a store near by, telephoned my chum, Charlie Knowlton, who had gone into law when I went into medicine, to come to me at once. For half an hour I watched the house I had been in till Charlie came, then told him the story and in half an hour more he had detectives on the watch. Charlie rushed off to take legal means to free the young lady and succeeded, though I never quite understood how he managed it. He told me, using a lot of Latin words, "the lady was innocent," "habens corpus" and "sili" that—but I knew nothing of what he meant.

The case was one of those which happen now and then wherein claimants to an estate attempt to get rid of a legal heir by claiming him or her to be of unsound mind and unable to manage property.

Charlie made a fortune by the operation, for he married the heiress, while I, poor devil, even returned the check I had received for my fee.

ALL CREWS NOW AT HIGHLAND

With the arrival of the Syracuse three crews and the Cornell Freshmen on Wednesday, all the crews that are to compete in the intercollegiate regatta on the Hudson opposite Poughkeepsie one week from next Saturday are now there in training quarters.

The Syracuse crews arrived at Highland 5 o'clock in the morning and shortly after 10 o'clock Coach Jim Ten Eyck, that sturdy veteran oarsman, had all three crews on the river whipping them into shape. The Syracuseans made a most favorable impression among the local rowing experts, especially the "varsity eight," which seems to be a powerful crew and one that can be expected to finish well up on the day of the race. The coach took his three crews over to the eastern shore and then well up the river, returning after an eight mile row. In the evening Coach Ten Eyck took the crews down the river for a nine-mile pull, taking the route along the east shore.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 9.—Benny Kauff's actions on a ball field are far different than is imagined by those who have not seen him sporting on the diamond. When we say that Kauff voluntarily makes himself the most inconspicuous members of the Giants, it may sound like fiction. But it isn't; it's fact.

Having been fed with Kauffisms all during the chill winter and during the early part of this none too gentle springtime, all of us gained the idea that Kauff would be the superlative as a grand stand player. But we were surprised by the modesty of Kauff in the first game in which he figured—and the surprise has recurred in all the other combats in which Kauff has performed. Honus Wagner and Nap Lajoie are no more humble in actions than is "Shrinking Violet."

Kauff, all during the progress of a game, seems oblivious of the fact that thousands are watching him; Kauff on the ball field does nothing else but play the game as best he can. He plays it with an earnestness that is surprising. When he walks to the plate he never turns around to gaze upon the folks in the stands. Oftentimes Kauff has returned to the Giant dugout amid cheers for some play he made either at bat or in the field. Did he slow down as he looked to the bench so as to drink in the cheers? So as to pose? Not at all.

Whether Kauff comes in to the bench amid cheers or uncheered, he always maintains the same little trot; he always comes hustling in, seemingly anxious to get within the shelter of the dugout as soon as possible. Such an action is the last one would expect from Kauff, because it speaks excessive modesty. Yet in just that way Kauff has conducted himself and so has shocked—but in an agreeable way—not only the New York fans who expected to see in him the greatest poser in the game's history.

The contract between the Kauff who is and the Kauff we wanted to expect because of the Kauffisms is explained by the fact that Kauff himself never uttered all the boasts credited to him. As we pointed out in a previous article, they were framed by a press agent of Kauff's whose remuneration depended largely upon the result of his work.

The P. A. had a working agreement with Kauff whereby he was to get a nice slice of the money in case the Giant owners and Harry Sinclair "kicked in" with $5,000 each, demanded by Kauff when he was a hold-out late last winter. Mr. Press Agent figured that a boasting Kauff on one day of Kauff would catch the public eye and give Kauff national prominence. The mathematics were O. K. Sinclair didn't listen but the Giant owners came through with $5,000 bonus to Kauff, deciding that Kauff had been so widely heralded that he'd return that $5,000 in gate receipts during the first swing through the circuit.

Kauff has made good as a Giant. He has been with the outfit for two months and John McGraw has decided that the $30,000 paid for him wasn't a dollar too much. Not only is Kauff a drawing card, but he is playing a great all-around game. The macing mark of the 1915 star of the Feds still is below .300—but Kauff is due for higher levels. He has been handicapped up to now by the fact that he has faced strange pitching in nearly all of the games during the first eight weeks of batting. He has had to pick his way, so to speak. But from now on he will go back at those same pitchers, having the advantage of knowing what they've got in the line of foolers.

Kauff has demonstrated that he is fast—marvelous fast, both at field and on the bases. Right now he is among the leaders of the pack that is racing for base stealing honors. It wouldn't be surprising if he led the miffers when the October day dawns.

He's a pretty fielder, too, this "Shrinking Violet," with splendid judgment concerning fly balls and ability to travel to either side, backward or forward and snare seeming hits.

And Kauff has a fine wing. He zips in the ball with great speed and accuracy and the foemen of the Giants has ceased testing out that vine. They have been killed too often at the plate to warrant taking further liberties with it.

"Benny Kauff is one of the great, all-around ball players I have ever seen," says McGraw. Those who have seen Kauff in action in the bulk of his career murmur: "Amen."

(By Frank G. Menke.)

Four Dodgers are on the sick list. Other managers are wishing some of their players would join the list if they could hold the same position as Robinson's men.

Perhaps the weather man didn't want to butt in on the conventions. Figured one big story was enough for the readers to peruse.

The White Sox certainly lost a bunch of money through Jap Flury with two convention crowds and thousands of visitors to draw from.

The National League had a day of idleness. Pretty soft for the tail-enders.

The American League staged a fight for first place. The Indians and Nationals battled 14 innings to a draw.

It was the only game played in the Johnson circuit.

Newark used to pick on the other teams in the International. Now the other teams are picking on the Jersey bunch.

Mrs. Fred Hendrickson and daughter, Miss Lulu, spent Thursday with Miss Ray Markle.

LOCAL SUFFRAGISTS MEET THURSDAY

The Ulster County Woman Suffrage Convention plans are progressing apace. Several of Kingston's pretty society buds will act as ushers and also be ready to give information to the visiting suffragists at their annual convention to be held on June 15 at Wiltwyck Inn Hall, and Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse has promised to be the chief speaker at the afternoon session, which will be thrown open to the public.

Mrs. Whitehouse, is chairman of the New York State Woman Suffrage party, which is the biggest state suffrage organization in the world. In spite of Mrs. Whitehouse's youth, she has been chosen to head this organization because of her genius for leadership. Her adherents claim she is endowed with that supreme gift by which men climb to the summit of large concerns—that is, how to systematize plans so as to eliminate futilities.

Mrs. Whitehouse was born in New Orleans—how few years ago the organization is rather careful to conceal, since youth, they say, seems to be Mrs. Whitehouse's only handicap. She became an active suffrage worker just before the 1913 suffrage parade and in two years is leader of the most important political movement of her generation.

Probably no one woman outside of those who have served in national and international capacities has been so widely quoted within these past three years.

Mrs. John W. Searing, in speaking of her said: "She has inaugurated most ingenious suffrage stunts. She conducted the suffrage shop at 663 Fifth avenue, N. Y. She had gained recruits of international importance to the cause. She was the originator of most of the brilliant publicity exploits of the recent campaign with the exception of Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, the woman who organized New York city and who will also be a guest of the convention on that day."

Mrs. William Finger will bring over several cars full of delegates from Saugerties and Ellenville is expected over with a large delegation.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, June 9.—Mrs. John Hauck of Kingston and Mrs. Barbara Rull of Rutherford, N. J., were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Wells on Broadway Tuesday.

At eight o'clock Tuesday evening occurred a very pretty home wedding at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Mead Davis on Main street. The contracting parties were Miss Lizzie Markle of Accord and Leroy Wells of Tarryville, Conn. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Eugene A. Bookhout, pastor of the Methodist Church. Wednesday the bride and groom left for Tarryville, Conn., where they will make their home.

Mrs. J. Wesley Van Wagner of Poughkeepsie spent Tuesday at her home on Green street.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Neal of Branchville, Conn., are guests of relatives here for a few days.

Mrs. M. J. Steger and son of Union Hill, N. J., who have been the guests of Mrs. Steger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Miskin, on Stout avenue, returned home Thursday.

Dr. J. A. Decker, who has attended the health board conference of Saratoga Springs, returned to his home on Main street Thursday.

Grade examinations will be held in public school No. 13 next week Wednesday and Thursday, June 14 and 15.

The Dorcas Society of the R. P. formed Church will meet at the home of Mrs. George T. Van Aken on Broadway this evening. A full attendance is desired.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gazlay and daughter, Alice, and Mrs. Claude Gillespie of Accord were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mead Davis on Main street Tuesday.

Mrs. Wallace Mabie of Green street spent Wednesday with her sister, Miss Nellie Zimmerman, in Kingston.

Two Bad Diseases.
The failure of the mortality rates of measles and whooping cough to show a reduction during the past fifteen years is due to the fact that these diseases are highly communicable in their early stages, when diagnosis is most difficult.
